HOOVER AIMS TO CARE FOR IDLE WITHOUT DOLE

Reveals Plans for Winter Relief.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Adequate machinery to meet any relief crisis that may arise this coming winter as a result of unemployment will be formulated by federal, state, and local authorities during the next few weeks, President Hoover announced today.

While not mentioning the word "dole," the President made it clear that the administration plans to handle the situation along the lines of the methods adopted last year, when charitable institutions and state and local committees bore the load. The statement indicated that all attempts to enact federal dole legislation in any form would be fought.

The President foresaw a considerable relief problem to be met during the winter, although he stated that improvement in the unemployment situation seems promising at this time.

Estimating Relief Load.

Mr. Hoover stated that for the last three weeks he has been engaged with administration and state officials and leaders of the business world, studying the problem of unemployment relief likely to confront the nation during the coming winter. The President promised that whatever relief problem that develops this winter will be met.

As a first move steps have been taken, at White House direction, to determine the probable volume of relief which will have to be provided for. It was emphasized, however, that no attempt is to be made to determine the number of unemployed at this time or later this winter.

Among those with whom the President has discussed the unemployment problem recently are Silas Strawn of Chicago and Julius H. Barnes, representing the United States Chamber of Commerce; Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross, Secretary of Commerce Lamont, and Secretary of Labor Doak.

Chamber Charts Program.

The Chamber of Commerce has taken on the task of obtaining a general picture of the unemployment situation and the probable need for relief. It has also sent out questionnaires to 200 business leaders seeking their views as to the feasibility of formulating a long time program for combating unemployment. Surveys of the unemployment situation also are being made by the Red Cross and the President's emergency committee determining how best the government can cooperate with state and local organizations.

In virtually all cases those who conferred at the White House warned the President that an adequate unemployment relief system must be set up by the federal and state governments if dole legislation is to be kept off the statute books.

Immediately after issuing his statement President Hoover departed for his Rapidan, where he will spend the week-end. Unemployment insurance will be discussed there, as the President's guests include Senator Felix Hebert (Rep., R. I.), who has spent the summer studying European unemployment insurance.

President's Statement.

"During the past three weeks I have been engaged, together with members of the administration, in a study of the problems of unemployment and relief likely to confront us during the coming winter and the organization necessary to meet the situation," President Hoover announced. "This improvement in the situation in many directions seems promising, and the problem, whatever it may be, will be met.

"With the organized cooperation of local, state and federal authorities, and the large number of relief and charitable organizations, the problem can successfully handled last winter. We shall adapt organization methods in such manner as may be necessary for the coming winter.

"The first of the facts to be determined is the probable volume of the need of distress which will need to be provided for. The various bureaus of the government are engaged in an exhaustive study of last winter's experience of all organizations in the aver-

Miss Dietrich 'Other Woman' in Love Suits

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Marlene Dietrich, German motion picture star, has been named as "the other woman" in legal actions brought by the divorced wife of her "discoverer" and importer, Joseph von Sternberg, American film director, it was revealed during a legal hearing here today.

Miss Dietrich, who in private life is the wife of Rudolph Sieber, a German film executive now visiting here, has been named defendant in two actions filed by Riza Royce [Mrs. von Sternberg], actress. Both actions, one asking $100,000 from Miss Dietrich on accusations of libel and the other demanding $500,000 for asserted alienation of Von Sternberg's affections, were filed by Von Sternberg's wife in New York and the papers to the actions remained sealed there.

Result of Alimony Claim.

The German actress' name came into the local proceedings, which were intended to decide Mrs. von Sternberg's charges of contempt of court against her husband for asserted overdue alimony payments, when Mrs. von Sternberg's attorneys filed a copy of the $100,000 New York libel action.

Introduction of Miss Dietrich's name was resisted by Von Sternberg's attorneys, Zach Cobb and E. A. Littlejohn, but came about after indirect testimony had been presented seeking to show that Von Sternberg withheld alimony payments to his wife because she had "harassed" him by filing "two suits against a certain lady."

Mrs. Von Sternberg took the stand in Judge Lester Roth's court, and from the witness box accused her husband of making no defense to charges that he had "opened charge accounts in Los Angeles stores and furnished an apartment for the defendant in the alienation action."

Met in Germany.

The paper in the libel action disclosed the defendant was Marlene Dietrich whom Von Sternberg met in Germany a year and a half ago and whom he directed in a series of important motion picture hits within the last eighteen months, including "Blue Angel," made in Germany, and "Morocco" and "Dishonored," made in Hollywood.

While on the witness stand Mrs Von Sternberg said she had had a conversation with her ex-husband, during which the film director "offered to take the debts of the lady" on his shoulders. Mrs. Von Sternberg testified: "I told him in reply that I was suing the lady, not him, and he would be a fool to pay for her."

Von Sternberg took the stand, following his wife, and declared his wife had ruined his work as a film director for three months by her suits. He testified:

"I was advised by my attorney that I was within my rights to hold back the alimony payments because of this harassing."

The New York libel action accuses Miss Dietrich of causing an Austrian newspaper to publish an article asserting that Mrs. Von Sternberg had been an undutiful wife, had been guilty of some marital misconduct, and that Von Sternberg had been ready to divorce his wife.

DRY AGENTS CATCH "FISH"; FIND A LOAD OF FANCY LIQUORS

Dry Agent Albert E. Aman and a partner followed a small truck late yesterday as it left an express agency at Sherman and Harrison streets. Their advance information advised them they should seek a shipment labeled "Fish." The shipment was from Boston.

The operatives drew close enough to the truck to observe that the eight crates loaded on it bore labels announcing in big letters that they contained fish.

A block away a touring car with two occupants crashed into the prohibition agents' machine. The men, it is alleged, were "spotters" protecting the load of crates marked "Fish." At Van Buren and Market streets, the "spotters'" car crashed into the agents' machine again. This time Aman and his assistant leaped out, seized one of the men, and also grabbed the driver of the truck.

Instead of "Fish," the agents found dozens of cases of Old Log Cabin and Three Star Hennessey whisky, Buchanan Scotch and other liquors. Aman returned to the express agency and found thirteen more crates marked "Fish." In all 175 cases of booze were confiscated.

CUBAN CRUISER SHELLS BRITISH MERCHANT SHIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Aug. 7.—A Cuban warship, patroling the coast to prevent landing of arms or invading rebel expeditions, today fired on and seized the unarmed British freighter Laure Park, which was proceeding in ballast from Norfolk.

When the cruiser Cuba sighted the British ship, Commander Ramon Diaz del Galleog opened fire, at the same time signaling the merchant ship to halt. A searching party was sent aboard, but no contraband was found.

Clothed, Girl Rescues Man in Dark Lake

Wenham, Mass., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Hearing cries for help at Pleasant pond after midnight, 17 year old Pauline Germainen jumped into the water without stopping to remove clothing, swam out 50 yards, and rescued John Kelley, 46, from drowning.

Before she jumped in she shouted to automobilists to turn the headlights of their cars on the water so she might be guided to the struggling man's side.

In a glare of lights she made her way out. As she progressed she passed a woman, swimming toward shore with a child.

Grips Her and Both Sink.

Pauline swam on. She reached Kelley's side. He was in an exhausted condition, barely able to keep afloat. She took hold of him and started toward shore. Kelley took a grip on the girl. They went down, but she broke the hold and came up. Then she dived for Kelley, brought him up and made her way to shore, dragging him by the hair.

The prone method of resuscitation was used, with Pauline directing affairs. Kelley recovered. In half a hour he was in shape to continue to his cottage.

Wife Saves Daughter.

Kelley, with his wife and 8-year old daughter, had gone in bathing, an hour after midnight as a relief from the heat. The daughter was on the father's back when she slipped and went under. Kelley tried to save her, and down he went.

Mrs. Kelley, a strong swimmer, seized the daughter and then shouted for help. She swam with the daughter to shore.

It was the cries of Mrs. Kelley that were heard by Pauline who promptly went to the rescue. Pauline was little the worse for her experience.

"Just another incident in country life," she said.

Home "Lab" Experiment Fatal to Purdue Student

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Phillip Bowman, 21, died today at a Warsaw hospital of injuries received Monday night when he was blown from the home of his parents, near Princeton, by explosion of a chemical which he had prepared to use in blasting stones on his father's farm. Bowman was a junior at Purdue university, where he studied chemical engineering.

TRADE LEADERS OF CHICAGO ASK MODIFICATION

Want Rum Control to Curb Crime.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Business in Chicago has had enough of prohibition. It wants to see the sale of liquor under federal and state control. And it asks the inclusion of planks to that effect in the national platform of both the Republican and Democratic parties.

The Industrial Club of Chicago, it was learned yesterday, took this position forcibly at its last meeting before the summer adjournment. Then it authorized its executive committee to go ahead with active work toward the goal established. It also voted for real beer through modification of the Volstead act.

Leaders of Chicago Business.

This organization is numerically small, but it consists of men who are leaders in their lines. The club is regarded as a cross section of the representative financial, industrial, commercial, and professional life of the community.

It has even been said that so far reaching are the interests of its members—they are directors in so many big corporations—that definite and decisive action by this group on a national problem may be considered indicative of the attitude of business in the United States as a whole.

There are no representations, in its declaration against prohibition, that the club sought to wield such a voice. It spoke only for itself in closed session. Even now the organization is opposed to publication of its proceedings on this subject. Its spokesmen contend that the cause they have determined to support would be advanced further if the plans are not announced until they are further ahead.

Plans Told in Folder.

Those plans came to the attention of THE TRIBUNE through distribution to members of a folder consisting of the minutes of a dinner held at the Chicago club on May 28. It is believed that because of the mailing of more than 100 copies of this document secrecy may no longer be maintained.

That meeting was the result of intensive attention given to prohibition by the club.

Ten days earlier the Industrial club had joined with the Chicago Association of Commerce in arranging a banquet for 1,000 Chicago leaders at the Stevens hotel to listen to Col. Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, Va., who as a member of the Wickersham commission, wrote his own section of the commission report urging a system of liquor control similar to the Swedish system.

Outline of Anderson Plan.

Necessarily the Anderson plan is complicated. The Virginia lawyer says the first thing to do is to replace the eighteenth amendment with one giving congress control of the liquor situation by authorizing it to regulate or prohibit intoxicating liquors.

He proposes that if congress decides to use the first of these powers there shall be a bi-partisan federal liquor commission resembling the interstate commerce commission or the federal reserve board.

Col. Anderson would give each state the right to determine whether it will create a commission of its own subordinate to the rulings of the federal commission. All liquor would be handled by authorized private corporations with their profits limited to 7 per cent, all surplus to go into the United States treasury.

Club Polls Its Members.

Even before the Stevens hotel banquet at which Col. Anderson spoke the Industrial club had begun a poll of its members on the "Anderson plan." At the May 28 meeting, after District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson had told the club his conviction that beer racketeering must be terminated in order to smash crime rings, the results of the "Anderson plan" poll were announced.

Those results and a proposed program of procedure based on them formed the body of the confidential minutes of the meeting now before the entire membership of the club. But on the front page of the circular appears the list of those present and participating in the action.

That list is headed by the name of the chairman of the board of the Illinois Bell Telephone company and includes the presidents of several banks.

Farm Board Rejects Berlin Bid for Cotton

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The federal farm board today turned down the offer of the German government to buy 600,000 bales of the board's 1,300,000 bales of stabilization cotton and to take an option on 200,000 additional bales.

The board balked at the German terms, particularly those stipulating that delivery be extended over a year at the rate of 50,000 bales a month, and those concerning the price to be paid.

Germany's proposal was to pay the current cash price prevailing during the month of delivery, the price to be determined by one of two methods, either on the average for the month at New York or on the average of the prices prevailing at New York, Liverpool, and Bremen during the month of delivery.

Berlin Asks 3 Years to Pay.

As had been announced, Germany offered to take the board's cotton provided the board would allow payments to be made over a term of three years with interest at 4½ per cent. To this part of the proposal the farm board had no objection.

The farm board rejected the German offer, it was pointed out, because the sort of deal it had in mind contained a minimum price and an immediate delivery of at least a major portion of the cotton involved. To sell so much a month during a year the board felt would have kept driving the market down and with no price minimum the latter deliveries might have to be made at a ruinously low figure.

Another Plan Considered.

In making its announcement of refusal the board revealed that the Hoover administration has in process still another effort to give help to German finances. This is an attempt by the treasury department to speed up the payment of the claims of German Nationals against the United States for property confiscated during the war.

Many of these claims have already been adjudicated by the mixed claims commission and others are in the process of settlement. The total, it was explained, will represent considerably more than the $30,000,000 involved in the stabilization cotton deal.

This money will go directly to the German corporations involved and into the German banks and will give the Reich that much more ready cash, part of which at least may be spent in purchasing cotton from the American trade.

RUSSIA VS. UNCLE SAM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—While Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett has been trying to reach an agreement with Germany for the sale of American cotton and wheat on a two, and possibly a three years' credit plan, other countries are competing with the American farm board and have approached German business men, promising "most favorable conditions" if the Germans buy from their countries.

While officials denied today that offers competing against the American suggestion for the sale of wheat have been received, it is learned that Germany has received an advantageous offer to purchase Russian and Balkan grain at a price considerably below 75 cents a bushel. It is pointed out that no such price will be paid by Germany, since there has been a 20 per cent drop in the world price of wheat and a drop in the price of rye in Germany during the last two weeks.

"If necessary we will eat only rye and get on without the expense of wheat," said the minister of food, who virtually controls the imports of food into Germany.

The Russians, without funds to extend credit, have offered to take German machinery in exchange for its wheat.

CRAMER, DOWN ON OCEAN, FIXES MOTOR, GOES ON

BULLETIN.

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh set his monoplane down on the waters of an open lead beside the ice at 2 a. m., Pacific standard time (3 o'clock Chicago daylight saving time), today, completing a 536 mile flight from Aklavik, N. W. T. The flight from Peel bay, on the Mackenzie river, was made in 7 hours 30 minutes. On the way the plane was in frequent radio communication with the station here and at Aklavik, reporting its progress. When the flight was about half completed a low lying fog bank was met, and Lindbergh turned his plane inland to find better flying weather.

BULLETIN.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 8. — (Saturday.) — (AP) — Parker Cramer, American airman, landed at Thorshavn, Faroe islands, at 11 o'clock last night (6 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time), from Iceland after being forced down in the north Atlantic by engine trouble. The motor was fixed on the sea. Radio advices said his airplane had been overhauled and was now ready to resume its flight to Copenhagen. Cramer said he planned to be here by Sunday.

BY AXEL THORSTEINSON.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 7.—Parker D. [Shorty] Cramer, American aviator, and his Canadian loaned radio operator, Oliver L. Paquette, who are flying from Detroit to Europe to study possibilities of a regular air service over the northern route, landed here from Angmagsalik, Greenland, at 3:50 a. m. today [11.50 p. m. Chicago time Thursday] after a seven hour flight. After getting a bite to eat and refueling their Diesel motored monoplane they took off again for the Faroe islands, 450 miles away.

The flyers were late due to the fact that they entered fog banks upon nearing the southwest tip of Iceland. They lost their bearings and were not heard from for some time. Upon emerging from the fog, the airmen got into radio communication with the capital and speedily found the correct path. They flew at a height of 10,000 feet most of the way.

The weather, Cramer said upon landing, was favorable, but a little chilly. When they landed they remarked about the unusual experience of flying over Greenland in brilliant sunshine.

Eager to Take Off.

Cramer and Paquette looked well and declared they were not suffering from the effects of their hazardous trip over the far north. They were anxious to start off again for Copenhagen within 10 minutes after their arrival, but were persuaded to take a nap and await the weather reports over the Faroe islands. They then sat down and ate a square meal.

Cramer had little to say about his flight, which was cloaked with so much secrecy that the world had no knowledge of the air voyage until he dropped out of the sky at Greenland on Wednesday.

Will Retrace Flight Home.

"The object was to make this trial trip for an American airline company to investigate the possibilities for a future regular air service along this route," he said. "I can't go into further particulars, as these must be reserved for my report to the company, but I may say that up to now I have not met with any unforseen difficulties and the landing possibilities in Greenland were not discouraging.

"We are in no hurry and probably will fly back here on the way home in three weeks. There were no disagreeable experiences during the trip. It was rather cold last night ten thousand feet up, but the cold was not annoying on the inland ice, as the sun was shining."

The plane carried fuel for eight hours. The flying time to the Faroe islands is five hours. Cramer said he would take his bearings from ships en route.

LINDBERGHS TAKE AIR

AKLAVIK, N. W. T., Aug. 8 (Saturday).—(AP)—Two hours after Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from here at 10:30 o'clock last night, Chicago daylight time, on their vacation trip to the orient, the Point

Barrow, Alaska, radio station was in contact with them. Their next stop is Point Barrow, 536 miles away. The plane passed Herschel island at 12:30 a. m., 180 miles from this trading post.

Clearing weather permitted the flying couple to leave after being grounded here two days and two nights in the longest stop since they started from Washington ten days ago on a 7,000 mile aerial vacation jaunt to the orient.

Fog at Point Barrow was the only unfavorable condition in weather reports from the route along the arctic rim of Alaska and Col. Lindbergh and his wife decided to take off. The flight to Point Barrow should take about five hours as the Lindbergh plane has been averaging about 105 miles an hour on previous hops.

May Fly to Ship.

The route is along the lagoon dotted tundra shore land of Alaska, past numerous native settlements. There are many landing places for the pontoon equipped plane.

The United States Coast guard cutter Northland, carrying a gasoline supply intended for the Lindberghs at Point Barrow, was blocked by ice about 100 miles away and there was a possibility the Lindberghs might fly direct from Aklavik to the Northland and refuel alongside the ship.

While the Lindberghs waited improvement in weather today they tested and checked their plane and its radio equipment thoroughly. Mrs. Lindbergh spent considerable time with the Aklavik wireless operator experimenting with the plane's radio transmitter. The Lindberghs have been guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Urquhart, and Mrs. Lindbergh insisted on helping Mrs. Urquhart with the dishes.

Col. Lindbergh personally supervised the refueling of his low wing monoplane from supplies cached here for the Royal Canadian air force. The plane can carry a little more than 500 gallons of gasoline.

Plan Pacific Hop Next Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 7.—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., American flyers who gave up the attempt to set a new 'round the world flight record in Siberia, today announced that they planned to hop from Samushiro beach, 280 miles north of here, for Seattle next week. They hope to span the Pacific in a single hop and thereby win a $25,000 prize offered by a Japanese newspaper for the first continuous flight between the United States and Japan.

Their plane has been seized by Japanese authorities on the allegation that the flyers had taken motion pictures of Japanese fortifications.

Herndon and Pangborn were again summoned for questioning by Tokio police today. What action the government will decide upon was still in doubt tonight. It is reported that the war and navy ministries insist that the flyers be severely punished for their negligence in breaking regulations. They are legally subject to a term of three years in prison or an alternative fine of $1,500.

DO-X Halts in Brazil.

SAN LUIZ, Maranhao, Brazil, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The German flying boat DO-X arrived here this afternoon from Camocim, in the state of Ceara, on her way to the United States. The ship was to be held here overnight and take off in the morning for Para, 300 miles away.

Graf to Fly to Brazil.

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—The Graf Zeppelin, German dirigible, will start for Pernambuco, Brazil, on Aug. 26, it is announced. The airship will carry mail and 24 passengers.

3 PLANES CRASH 4,000 FEET HIGH; 2 FLYERS JUMP

Mount Clemens, Mich., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Three Selfridge field planes collided at 4,000 feet altitude a mile east of the army field here today, sending two of the machines diving and forcing their occupants to leap for their lives. The third plane made a safe landing.

The pilots who leaped drifted by parachute into a plowed field and were not injured seriously. They were Lieut. Robert W. Burns, 24, of Madison, Wis., attached to the 7th pursuit squadron, and Lieut. Kenneth W. Mosher of Rockford, Ill., a reserve flyer of the 94th squadron.

Eighteen Selfridge planes were flying in formation when Lieut. Mosher's wing tip hit the propeller of the ship flown by Lieut. Richard Crabb, 24, of Orlando, Fla. Crabb righted his ship and landed safely in a field. The collision, however, threw Mosher's plane against Burns' machine. Both planes fell. Burns had difficulty leaping from his machine because wires were in his way. Mosher leaped free at once.

SENT TO DEPOSIT $6,900 IN BANKS; HE DISAPPEARS

At 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, George A. Metz, 35 years old, employed in the real estates offices of Frederick H. Bartlett & Co., 69 West Washington street, was handed $6,900 and instructed to deposit it in three different banks.

At 5 o'clock he had not returned, and officials of the company requested First District police to find him. Sergts. Roy Kaindt and John Geary were assigned to the case.

Preliminary investigation revealed that Metz had not made deposits in any of the three designated banks. At the Marshall hotel, 1226 North La Salle street, where he lived, it was said he had been a resident there for three years.

JUDGE DELAYS HIS DECISION ON SUBWAY SUIT

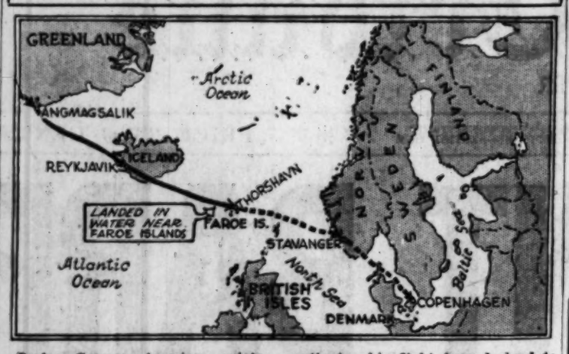
Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court declined yesterday to give his decision in the taxpayers' suit to enjoin the city from subway construction. He had previously restrained the city from spending money on actual construction, but had permitted expenditures for plans.

The court explained that Judge Stanley Klarkowski in quo warranto proceedings had passed upon all of the issues involved in the taxpayers' suit. The state Supreme court will give its view on Judge Klarkowski's decision and Judge Lindsay will act accordingly. He continued the taxpayers' suit generally.

Home of Theater Official Ransacked; Loot Is $3,000

When Mrs. David Levine, wife of an assistant vice president of R. K. Jewelry and clothing valued at $3,000 were taken. Every room was ransacked,

CRAMER SAFE IN FAROE ISLANDS



Parker Cramer, American aviator, was reported safe in the Faroe islands last night after being forced down at sea by a faulty motor near his destination. According to reports from London, Cramer succeeded in getting his plane aloft after the mishap and continuing his flight from Iceland to Thorshavn in the Faroes. Map shows route Cramer has taken in his flight after reaching Greenland from Detroit. Dotted lines indicate route to Copenhagen, his final destination.

Proposals Put to Members.

The referendum announcement was that the vote on two questions was as follows:

1. I approve the Anderson plan as offering the possible solution of the evils arising from the prohibition proolem. Yes, 91. No, 4.

2. I approve the development by the executive committee of a program for the furtherance of popular acceptance of the Anderson plan, which program as soon as prepared will be presented to a closed meeting of the club. Yes, 88. No, 5.

The program referred to in the second question, already prepared by the executive committee, was presented by Elmer T. Stevens and was adopted, the printed minutes not indicating whether there were any negative votes.

The Program as Adopted.

The text of the program follows:

"The Industrial Club of Chicago, after a consideration of the so-called crime situation through its own committees and through the experience of its members working in connection with other agencies, presents the following conclusions:

"1. That the surest approach to a solution of the crime situations is through an attack on the income of organized crime.

"2. That the essential part of crime's income comes from the illicit traffic in alcohol, the existence of which is traceable directly to the prohibition situation.

"Crime Corrupting Justice."

"3. That inasmuch as the huge financial resources of crime are being used and will be used to tear down our governmental structures and to corrupt our justice, no permanent reform can be hoped for as long as this source of income exists.

"4. That, intolerable as the present situation is, it does not warrant any action which will permit a return of the old saloon.

"5. That the eighteenth amendment should be modified so that [a] the saloon shall remain a thing of the past, [b] illicit traffic in alcohol shall be stopped, [c] the cause of real temperance shall be advanced, and [d] the districts which desire to be dry may have the opportunity, at present denied them.

Anderson Plan Indorsed.

"6. That the club therefore indorses the Anderson plan because [a] it is the best plan so far presented which promises the foregoing results, [b] it has the necessary flexibility, and [c] it eliminates crime's chief source of revenue, through solution of the prohibition problem.

"7. That the club take steps to put its conclusions in this matter before the two major political parties asking that they adopt planks looking toward reasonable modification in accord with the principles of the Anderson plan and thus avoid the bitter emotional conflict which is inevitable should the coming election be devoted to the so-called wet and dry issue instead of the basic economic problems in which the safe future of our country is so greatly involved."

Two other resolutions then were adopted. The first authorized the executive committee "to proceed in accordance with its best judgment to take steps looking toward the adoption of the principles outlined in the Anderson plan."

The second resolution, presented by Edward J. Brundage, directed that the executive committee consider endorsing an amendment to the Volstead act to permit "the making of beer."

Prince Edward Isle Rule Falls on Dry Law Issue

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Liberal government in Prince Edward Island, led by Premier W. M. Lea, was defeated in yesterday's provincial elections, 19 to 11. The election was regarded as a vote of confidence in the policies of the federal government. The enforcement of the prohibition act by the Liberal party was one of the chief issues before the people.

CANADIAN 'MOUNTIES' PICK PANSIES, BAKE PIES FOR LINDBERGHS

AVLAVIK, N. W. T., Thursday, Aug. 6.—[Delayed.]—Red coated officers of the law, the members of the Aklavik detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted police, were hosts to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at dinner tonight. The Lindberghs walked over to the "mounties'" log cabin and were entertained by Constables R. Nicholson, A. King and R. C. MacDowell. Miss Catherine Brownlee, nurse at the Aklavik Mission hospital, was another guest.

It was a bachelor dinner but the "mounties" set a dainty table, a fresh lettuce was taken from the garden and a bouquet of pansies, also grown here, were in the center place. I linen tablecloth was dug up from somewhere.

The policemen even baked apple pies for their visitors. Fresh fruit and vegetables are unusual for Aklavik, but the "mounties" managed to find tomatoes. It was a big event for the police barracks and the hosts wore their red tunics and blue serge breeches with the yellow stripe running down the side.

Sips 9 Tom Collinses in Few Hours, Too.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Drinking four quarts of ale, three gin rickeys, and nine Tom Collinses, with maybe a few beers thrown in for good measure, was all in one night's work for a United States prohibition agent's girl decoy.

So said 19 year old Ruth Callahan today in her cot in a hospital, where she is recovering from injuries suffered Wednesday night when the auto in which she and the dry agent, Ralph E. Dell, were riding, crashed into another machine. She was arraigned yesterday on a drunkenness charge.

Through with Snooping.

Ruth is inclined to believe that if she never sees another Tom Collins it will be entirely too soon, and when she gets out of the hospital and has settled her difficulties in the city court she is going to resume her hunt for a job in which there is "no double-crossing and no drinking."

It was only that she and her mother needed the money for the barest necessities that she ever consented to become the decoy for Dell, known as an expert "buy" man.

"I was offered $10 for every piece of evidence that turned into an arrest," Ruth explained.

"I had been paid $70 in all for two previous trips with Dell," she recalled. "I suppose that meant that my activities had led to the raid of at least seven of the places that we had visited and I am sorry now. I don't like to double-cross anybody and that was what I had to do while at work as a dry decoy."

"I met Dell at 9 o'clock Wednesday night and we started at once for the military road section outside the city.

Musy Buy Three Drinks.

"At the first place we stopped we had two quarts of ale apiece and one Tom Collins. I was told that it would be necessary in most cases to have at least three drinks to make the evidence conclusive.

"At our next stop we had three more Tom Collinses. On the way to Buffalo we stopped at a restaurant for three beers, another restaurant where we had three more Tom Collinses, and then at another where I had two drinks and Dell had three.

"I don't remember much more except that we stopped at two more saloons and I had a highball and a Tom Collins at the first one and three gin rickeys at the other. We wound up at a beer flat where private rooms were available.

Dry Agent Disappears.

"After the crash Dell and I walked a little way up the street. Blood was streaming from the cut in my temple. A woman came out of a house and took me in. She bathed the wound and meanwhile Dell disappeared.

"I managed to get out of the house and back on the street, where I met a policeman. I asked him to take me to a hospital. Then I was arrested for being drunk. I'll tell everything when I get into court."

"I sometimes had a little wine with my meals," Ruth explained to questioners, "but before I got into this work with Dell I never drank a great deal. I am sure that I never will again."

Canada Bars 15,000 Nude Cultists Now in Siberia

MOSCOW, Aug. 7.—(AP)—It was announced today that 15,000 Russian doukhobors, nude cultists, who sought to emigrate to Canada as agricultural colonists, have been denied admittance by the Canadian government. They are now said to be in Siberia.

Canada Denies Request.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The department of immigration and colonization at Ottawa today said it had received no application for admission into Canada of 15,000 Russian doukhobors, and "such application could not be considered anyway."

ORDERS POLICE OUT WHEN THEY RAID SPEAKEASY

Two Prisoners and Booze Seized in Loop Place.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Dan Moore, larceny, sentenced to one to twenty years in Pontiac reformatory; George Cox and Raymond Brady, robbery, sentenced to one year to life each in the penitentiary; Jesse McGill and John McGill, murder, sentenced to one to fourteen years each in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Raiders from the state's attorney's office found a well furnished speakeasy yesterday afternoon on the second floor of the building at 59 East Lake street, just above the Lake street branch of the Chicago postoffice. The proprieter, Morrie Weiss, objected emphatically to the visit of the detectives.

CAPT. McCARTHY.

"This place can't be touched," Weiss told Sergts. Michael Ahern and John Scherping. "Why, I've been here five years and no one ever dared bother me. You coppers will be in trouble in a half hour if you don't get out of here P. D. Q."

But Weiss and his bartender, John Wagner, together with several baskets of assorted liquors, bourbon, Scotch, gin and alky, were taken to the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office, where Prosecutor Charles J. Mueller is in charge. Weiss was then turned over to the government for prosecution.

Raid Studio Speakeasy.

The same policemen then raided a studio moonshine parlor at 221 East Ontario street, and found a quantity of alcoholic drinks. They arrested Elmer Jewell as the proprietor.

The prisoners seized on Thursday night in a series of north side raids made on orders of Prosecutor Mueller were arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and were all held to the federal grand jury. These included Carl Ehegartner, arrested at 4021 Broadway, where the raiders reported seeing Police Capt. Hugh McCarthy, who commands the Town Hall station, with a young woman.

An Admission from Captain.

Capt. McCarthy was of several minds yesterday, admitting that he had been in the Broadway place and had hurried out when the raiders entered. He had previously denied being the man surprised while in the company of the woman. Prosecutor Mueller ordered a subpoena for his appearance next week before the special grand jury which for seven months has been investigating the police department. Capt. McCarthy would have been called, anyway, Mueller said, to explain his bank deposits as other captains have been doing for several months.

G. A. R. VETERANS HOLD 41ST PICNIC IN PARK TODAY

Forty-one years ago this summer several hundred members of the George A. Meade post of the G. A. R. gathered on the lake shore in what is now Jackson park, boiled their coffee and fried their becon over driftwood fires, and retold the stories of their campaigns under Grant and Sherman.

The picnics were continued from year to year, and recently, the ranks of Meade post having been thinned from an original 700 members to seven octagenarians, invitations to the picnic were extended to all members of the G. A. R. in Chicago. They will hold their forty-first annual picnic today in Jackson park, near Stony Island avenue and 60th street.

James H. Campbell, 2108 West 69th place, state commander of the G. A. R., will be present. The picnic is given by the Women's Relief corps of the Daughters of Union Veterans and Sons of Union Veterans.

Hunt Blackmailer After Death Threat to Lawyer

Threatened with death in a blackmail letter, Attorney David T. Alexander, 3258 Douglas boulevard, appealed yesterday to Lake county authorities for aid in arresting the extortionist. The letter, mailed from Waukegan on Thursday, said: "I hereby inform you to follow the order or you will be shot to death." It ordered Alexander to place fifty $10 bills under a rail of the Chicago and North Western tracks near the Asbestos station in Waukegan. A decoy package was placed at the spot by an agent of Sheriff Lester Tiffany yesterday, but no one called for it. Alexander was formerly an assistant corporation counsel.

JUNKETERS QUAFF FOAMY BREW ON BANKS OF RHINE

Drys Join Wets; All Want Beer.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—Sitting around a large table piled high with the ingredients of a typical German lunch—cold fruit juice, soup, pig's knuckles and sauer kraut—members of the Illinois prison commission junket today sipped brown beer and gravely discussed the problems of prohibition in America.

The host was Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria, who treated the Illinois legislative junketers to a luncheon at the old Garden Siechen brewery. After he had outlined his plan for adoption of the Swedish system in handling the liquor problem in the United States, the entire delegation, wets and drys, Republicans and Democratis alike, agreed that Illinois should have a beer plank in all future platforms. That was when they were sipping the amber fluid.

"I hope," said one member, blowing the foam from his brimming stein, "that Illinois beer will not be only in platforms, but also within reach."

They Work Awhile.

Immediately after the luncheon, the commission conferred with Drs. Hauptvogel and Schaefer of the federal ministry of justice regarding treatment of prison problems in Germany. They were most impressed with the German pardon system, whereby only a small proportion of the relatively large number of persons convicted of murder ever actually pay the death penalty.

Under the German system, the judge appointed to investigate each case reports his findings to the state prime minister and cabinet, who are empowered to dole out pardons. German prisoners serve set sentences but get 25 per cent off as "rebate for good behavior."

May Go to Moscow.

One small group, composed of Junketers Barr, Hart and Childers, is thinking of flying to Moscow for a bit of entertainment and to look at the soviet jails.

While the commissioners were enjoying a morning of sightseeing today a wire came from Senators Courtney and Broderick in London asking: "Is it safe for us to come to Germany?"

The message found the crowd in a cool and comfortable beer garden. Hart took one look over the garden, where German citizens sat leisurely sipping huge steins of beer, and wired back: "Come on in; the water's fine."

83 MILE TRENCH DUG TO FIGHT BIG FOREST FIRE

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Forest fire fighters today ringed the Deer creek fire with spades and plows for 83 miles, while predictions of rain heartened crews battling other thousands of acres of blazing northwest woods.

The Priest river valley fire in Idaho, which ravaged 22 homes and drove hundreds of refugees before it, was being combated by from 1,200 to 1,700 men.

Approximately 300 fires, ranging in size from a quarter of an acre to 40,000 acres, were burning today. More than $1,000,000 damage had been wrought.

CHARIVARI ENDS AFTER 15 NIGHTS; NEWLYWEDS NAP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The Marengo valley charivari, which has kept Arvo Juoni and his bride awake for fifteen nights, was ended today when the bridegroom furnished 200 sandwiches and as many cups of coffee to the celebrants.

This marathon of noise in the last few days had become a matter of state-wide importance. Gov. Philip La Follette had been requested by the Juonis to take action and had ordered that a full report of the affair be sent to him by District Attorney Johnson.

By the terms of the compromise—Arvo's Finnish neighbors had demanded $15 to quit beating their tomtoms and tooting their horns—all the charivari makers are to cease from undue noises and permit the young couple to rest in peace. Sheriff Elmer Sanders, on whom had fallen the burden of trying to halt the disturbance, thus is relieved from the necessity of seizing any more of the carnival equipment.

The charivari, or "shivaree," as it is commonly pronounced hereabouts, was only briefly interrupted when the sheriff took charge of enough equipment on Wednesday to fill up his jail. Again last night he raided the charivari and took a few more wagon loads of wash boilers, saws, kettles and cowbells. In spite of this summary action the charivarians continued their work with loud yells and airs on harmonicas and jews harps.

Then rain came on to dampen enthusiasm. It was suggested a truce be called and bearers of gaining power be sent to talk the situation over with the Juonis. When the couple appeared on the porch the amateur musicians in the rear played "Comin' Through the Rye."

A little later the heralds returned with the glad news that Arvo and his bride had invited everybody in to have a sandwich and a sip of coffee. The celebrants of the marathon charivari trooped in out of the rain and showered belated congratulations on the bride and groom. Everybody seemed to be happy.

Wilkins Drops Submarine Trip to Pole, His Wife Says

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Lady Wilkins today said her husband, Sir Hubert Wilkins, will not attempt to reach the north pole this year in the submarine Nautilus. Instead, she said, he will try out the submersible under the ice in the vicinity of Spitzbergen and will return in about a month to Bergen, where the vessel will remain during the visit.

RANSOM OFFERED TO FREE GARY HANDBOOK CZAR

Gambling Chief Kidnaped by Gunmen.

Partners of William C. ["Cully"] Finnegan, kidnaped czar of the handbooks in Gary, sent word through underworld channels last night that they will pay any reasonable ransom for his safe return. He was abducted shortly before daybreak yesterday by three men as he was walking his wife's Pekingese dog.

The kidnaping took place in view of two policemen, according to one witness, and only a block from police headquarters, in the heart of Gary. Finnegan, reputed to have accumulated a considerable fortune by more than 15 years' operations as a gambler, lived at the Hotel Gary and the kidnaping took place on Broadway near 7th avenue, near the hotel.

Gary police said they believed the kidnaping was the work of a Chicago gang. A witness, whose name they refused to disclose, told them last night that the car used by the gang bore an Illinois license.

Called "Straight" Gambler.

Finnegan was well known in the steel city, and had a reputation as a "straight" gambler, it was said. Just a few days ago, it is reported, he engineered a merger of all the handbook establishments in the city into one syndicate, which he operated from headquarters across the street from the hotel where he lived.

Handbook gambling on horse races has been wide open in Gary for two months, it was said, since Lieut. Paul Tristun quit the police force of the city after a row with Mayor Roswell O. Johnson. Tristun had been active in raiding handbooks, and on one occasion arrested James Umpleby, who had been campaign manager for the mayor, on such a charge.

Six Groups Start Up.

With the restraint off the handbooks, six different groups started operations within a few weeks, it was learned. Each had a central headquarters and branches, said to number between 75 and 100, in various cigar stores, poolrooms and speakeasies in the city. Competition between the groups became so keen, it was said, that the bookmakers offered long odds and took freak bets to such an extent that the betting public got all the profits of the business.

Then, it was said, Finanagan stepped into the picture. He pointed out to the warring bookmakers that if they would adopt the methods of big business, consolidate their headquarters, and stop ruinous competition, all would benefit. The result was the establishment of the syndicate headquarters last week, from which he directed the operations of all the handbooks in the city.

Believed Held for Ransom.

Finnegan accomplished his object without the use of bombs or gunmen, common in some bookmakers' wars in the past, his associates said, and for that reason they hold the theory that he is held for ransom and was not taken for a ride by gangster enemies.

The kidnaping was witnessed by Charles Goodman, a clothing merchant. Finnegan, he said, was walking along Broadway, nearly deserted at that hour, leading his wife's dog. A large sedan in which three men were riding pulled to the curb beside him.

Capture Display Revolvers.

Two of them leaped out and seized Finnegan by the arms. He did not struggle, Goodman said, and appeared to know the men. But when he saw that they were trying to force him into the back seat of the car, he pulled back, and only entered when his captors drew revolvers and shoved them against his body.

As the car drove away, Goodman noticed two uniformed policemen standing on a nearby corner. He ran to them and told them that Finnegan, whom he knew, had been abducted, but they left the neighborhood without taking any action, he asserted.

U. S. CONSIDERS CLOSED SEASON TO SAVE DUCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Sportsmen throughout the country may have to forego their duck shooting this year, it became known today, for the department of agriculture is seriously considering an entirely closed season on ducks due to the scarcity of wild fowl caused by drought in the breeding grounds.

H. P. SHELDON. [(C) Harris & Ewing Photo.]

While no definite action has yet been taken, H. P. Sheldon, chief of the division of bird and game conservation, believes that the emergency warrants the closed season. Moreover, he stated that in his opinion several years of careful control will be necessary before the flocks will regain their former numbers.

Individual sportsmen and large duck shooting clubs, Mr. Sheldon said, have already written many letters expressing willingness to forego their hunting this year as an emergency measure.

The situation arose out of excessive drought, which has affected the Canadian breeding grounds, whence come millions of the wild fowl. Biologists of the department who have made tours of inspection through these areas declared the grounds have been 98 per cent dried up during the last year or two.

The open season on ducks this year has already been shortened by two weeks. The department's conservation experts, however, are unanimous in believing this will not provide adequate protection for the birds.

Kilroy dropped in the rocking chair in which he was sitting to the second story porch below.

DEPUTY ARRESTS TWO AFTER THEY LYNCH HIS NEGRO PRISONER

De Witt, Ark., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A Negro in custody of a deputy sheriff, en route to a preliminary hearing on a murder charge, was taken from the officer today and shot to death as he stood on a highway, Henry Cummins, the deputy, said tonight.

Cummins said he was taking John Parker, Negro, to Bayou Meto when O. C. Lumsden, white, and John Brooks, Negro, stopped his automobile and forced him to surrender Parker, who was shot to death. The deputy arrested both men.

BANDIT COUPLE TORTURE WOMAN; ROB HER OF $150

A woman bandit and a male companion last night tortured Mrs. Martha Thiel, owner of an apartment building at 4327 North Sacramento avenue, and compelled her to surrender $150. The instrument of torture was a cord which either was attached to an electric socket or coated with a chemical substance to induce a burning pain.

The couple posed as prospective tenants and asked to see vacant apartments. One apartment apparently suited them, and the man produced a $10 bill as a deposit.

As Mrs. Thiel sat at her desk the man drew a revolver and asked for her money. At the same time the woman extracted a cord from her purse and wound it about the arm of the victim. The cord caused a burning sensation. When Mrs. Thiel refused to surrender her money the woman pressed the mysterious cord to her face and neck. Mrs. Thiel screamed in pain and then gave up the money.

MABEL'S GRAPE SALES DRAW FIRE OF METHODISTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Methodist board of temperance today opened an attack upon the government and Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general, for their part in the widespread sales of grape concentrates convertible into wine.

An article in the Voice, a publication of the board, which was reprinted from the Adult Bible Class Monthly, said the Methodist organization had "watched with great apprehension the development of a flank attack upon the very citadel of prohibition."

The government, through its loans by the farm board to the grape interests, was charged with directly fostering a nation-wide industry in partly manufactured wines.

The board said it was "disconcerting" that Mrs. Willebrandt, characterized as "a woman whose eloquent voice has been raised in Methodist conferences and in the councils of dry leaders," had now become counsel for Fruit Industries, Ltd., the concern manufacturing the grape concentrates.

"She it is through whom the government has been won to this benevolent attitude toward a traffic so inimical to temperance," the article continued. "She it is who has convinced the government that this traffic is not in fact a violation of the terms of the Volstead act."

"She it is whose high standing with the devoted temperance people of the United States may have convinced the government that this arrangement would not be subjected to the criticism of the 'dry' groups."

"It may well be," the board asserted, "that it may be necessary to amend the Volstead act requiring that fruit juices be protected from fermentation before being sold."

MARRIAGE TRAP DENIED BY WIFE OF RICH LAWYER

Mrs. Simmons Tells Her Side of Romance.

Mrs. Mary de Diemar Wright Simmons, 54 years old, 6750 Greenwood avenue, in an interview yesterday in the office of her attorney, A. H. Petlak, 128 North Wells street, made vehement denials of the allegations in the annulment suit of her husband, Parke E. Simmons, 73 year old wealthy retired attorney of 1746 Hinman avenue, Evanston.

Simmons charged he had been entrapped into marriage last Jan. 12 by Mrs. Simmons by her announcement he was to be the father of a child. Simmons declared he found after the marriage that the story about the child was false. Simmons had been a widower for 16 years and Mrs. Simmons was the widow of a New Haven, Conn., manufacturer for eight years prior to their marriage.

Family Friends for Year.

"Mr. Simmons and my family have been friends for 20 years," said Mrs. Simmons yesterday. "I have known him all that period, but it was only a year ago he began his courtship. We met last July at the home of his neice, Mrs. Carl Peterson, 144 Maple avenue, Wilmette, where I was visiting.

"I dined with him at the University club and other places. His charge that I pursued him to arrange a clandestine meeting in a hotel is false as is his statement that we were intimate several times before marriage. I never told him I was going to have a child."

"But you are going to have a child?" Attorney Petlak asked.

"Yes, next January," replied Mrs. Simmons. She then told of accepting Simmons' proposal of marriage Dec. 19, 1930, and extended her hand to display a large diamond ring.

Tells of Their Marriage.

"If he didn't love me why did he give me that?" she asked. "Members of his family did their best to part us, particularly his sister, Mrs. Nell Given, who is his housekeeper. We were married in Geneva on Jan. 12 by a Methodist minister. After the ceremony Mr. Simmons told me it was the happiest moment of his life."

Mrs. Simmons told of a two months' honeymoon in California, during which she said Simmons was an ideal husband. On their return he advised her to take a separate residence until he could reconcile his family to her, she said. She also told of a slight rift with her husband when she refused to comply with his request to buy a home in California and deed it to him.

"Until he brought this bill I was ready to live with him as his wife," she declared. "And now even with the child coming—I am undecided."

Attorney Petlak announced a crossbill for separate maintenance will be filed in behalf of Mrs. Simmons. The bill will demand a third of Simmons' annual income estimated at $28,000.

GOVERNMENT TO DEFEND 2 DRYS WHO BEAT MAN

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The federal government's first move in this district to defend prohibition enforcement officers named in a civil action was made today when John K. Gerken, assistant United States attorney, filed in supreme court a demand for a copy of the complaint in the $25,000 civil damage action brought against three prohibition agents by Alton Baird of Irving, N. Y., who alleges he was beaten and badly injured by the agents when they raided his father's hotel on July 3.

Baird declared in an affidavit that at least one of the agents was drunk at the time of the raid.

The three agents are Edward Baker, James Mahoney and Fred Wilson. They are accused of second degree assault and at a hearing July 23 before Justice of the Peace Edwin L. Coon of Silver Creek, were held for the Chautauqua county grand jury. After they were brought before Justice Coon, Eugene Fox, chief of police of Silver Creek, served each with papers naming him defendant in the $25,000 damage action brought by Baird. No copy of the complaint was furnished them.

KILLS HIS WIFE, TWO NEIGHBORS ENDS OWN LIFE

Potosi, Mo., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Elliott Missey, 45, of Cannon Mines, a small village in Washington county, went into a murderous rage today and after slaying his wife and two neighbors and dangerously wounding a third man, shot and killed himself.

Shortly before noon Missey and John Pitzer, 55, a neighbor, quarreled at the bottom of a 15 foot surface mine. Missey seized a double barrel shotgun and shot Pitzer and Clarence Leach, Union, Mo.

Pitzer fell dead and Leach was wounded three times. Missey then climbed from the mine, walked a quarter of a mile to the home of James Coleman, another miner, with whom he is said to have quarreled recently, and shot him to death. Missey called his six children from the house, locked them in a barn and shot and killed his wife. Then he turned the shotgun on himself, dying instantly.

ACTION IN COURT SHOWS HOW MR. A TOOK HIS NAME

For Advertising Purpose, He Explains.

Mr. A. A. who was hailed recently as the possessor of the shortest name in the world, has had that name only eight months, he admitted yesterday when action was started against him in the Felony court under his former name, Earl F. Gerske.

AARON A.

However, he is the legal possessor of the name Aaron A, which leads all the rest in the telephone directory. His change of name was approved by the courts, he said.

"I've a deal on with a laundry company, "he said," to use my name for advertising purposes. They thought it would be a good idea if they could advertise that the phone number of their laundry was the first one listed.

The Felony court action was a charge of forgery, made by J. M. Boland, a representative of R. L. Irvin and company, 7 South Dearborn street. He charged that Earl F. Gerske, "alias Aaron A," discounted a note for $684, purporting to be signed by William Ross, 1226 South Kedzie avenue, with the Irvin company. Ross appeared in court and denied that the signature on the note was his. Judge John J. Rooney issued a warrant for the arrest of Gerske, or A.

"The City Improvement company, of which I was president, did $180,000 worth of business laying sidewalks on Kedzie avenue two years ago," Mr. A said. "We discounted about $50,000 worth of notes, which we got from different property owners for that work, with the Irvin company. The notes were handled by employés, and not by myself, but the employés were reliable men. I believe when the warrant is served on me we will be able to prove that Ross did sign the note."

U. S. OPPRESSES ALIENS, REPORTS WICKERSHAM

Deporting Methods Called "Tyrannic."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—In a report replete with criticism for the system of alien deportations, the Wickersham law enforcement commission today gave public notice of grave abuses and unnecessary hardships in the system's administration and declared:

G. W. WICKERSHAM [Acme Photo.]

"The apprehension and examination of supposed aliens are often characterized by methods unconstitutional, tyrannic and oppressive.'

While agreeing that "a vigorous enforcement of the deportation laws is necessary, both to carry out our immigration policy and to rid the country of undesirable residents," the commission held that the concentration of the functions of investigator, prosecutor and judge in the department of labor vested the laws' administration with "despotic power." The issuance of the report provoked unusual attention, for the manner in which it was held back by the administration has been the occasion of considerable speculation. The report was transmitted to President Hoover last May 27.

Caused Flood of Rumors.

The delay of more than two months caused the spread of rumors that the report was being withheld until the department of labor could make changes to meet the criticisms contained in it.

In contradiction of the validity of these criticisms, it has been pointed out that the commission was divided in its opinion and that the majority contented itself with adopting the conclusions and recommendations of its investigator, Reuben Oppenheimer, Baltimore lawyer.

Nine of the eleven commissioners, headed by Chairman George W. Wickersham, signed the majority report. Commissioners Henry W. Anderson and Kenneth Mackintosh declined to concur, saying that the evidence was insufficient and inconclusive. They further refused to agree to Mr. Oppenheimer's suggestion that many of the powers now in the department of labor be delegated to a suggested "board of alien appeals."

"Personal Liberties" Violated.

More than nine-tenths of the report was occupied by the report of Mr. Oppenheimer, who brought home his point that the execution of the deportation laws involves "most important rights of personal liberty," by showing that the process of deporting 16,631 aliens, as was done in 1930, involved the detention and examination of 100,000 persons and that many of these are United States citizens or aliens lawfully in the country.

He declared that in many cases persons are deported when further development of the facts or proper construction of the law would have shown their right to remain; and that many persons are permanently separated from their families "with results that violate the plainest dictates of humanity."

He found that state and local authorities were not coöperating with immigration officials as they should. As a result, he said, alien criminals were frequently allowed to remain instead of being deported. He argued for concentration upon that class of deportable aliens.

Deportations Growing.

During the last 10 years more than 90,000 aliens have been deported from the United States it was shown by the statistics cited by Mr. Oppenheimer, and in addition more than 95,000 aliens subject to deportation have been allowed to depart before the consummation of warrant proceedings. Deportations under warrant rose from 4,517 in 1921 to 16,631 in 1930.

In the year ending June 30, 1931, department of labor figures show that 18,142 aliens were deported.

Under existing law, the report pointed out, the entire system of deportation is centralized in the department of labor, the only appeal to the courts being through application for a writ of habeas corpus. The aliens bear the burden of proof; the preliminary examination is not public; the suspect is not allowed counsel, is not always advised that what he says may be used against him; immigration inspectors frequently employ unwarranted methods of questioning and may write up the record to suit themselves.

Arrests Without Warrant.

The arrest, detention, and the examination, Mr. Oppenheimer explained, are all rried out without the issuance of a warrant; suspects are often subjected to search.

At the hearing following the issuance of a warrant, which is often telegraphic and not based on the record of the case, the examining official, said the report, is often the same one who conducted the preliminary examination. It is the aim of the average officials, it was charged, to make a record number of deportations rather than to concern themselves with the fairness befitting a judicial officer. The board reviewing the cases in the department, the report stated, is torn between its function as a body prosecuting the case of the government and its duty as a judicial tribunal.

The report vehemently denounced warrantless raids, in which as many as 500 or 1,000 persons, often citizens or aliens legally here, are taken into custody.

Too Much Power Given.

Extracts from Mr. Oppenheimer's findings were:

"The preliminary examination in deportation cases often partakes far more of the nature of compulsory cross-examination than of voluntary statement.

"It is doubtful if anywhere in the entire system of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence are government officials given similar unfettered rights of private inquiry or is the exercise of governmental power more often characterized by violations of fairness and decency."

Mr. Oppenheimer recommended more and better selected border and immigration inspectors, but above all he insisted on the necessity for a "board of alien appeals" which should have the sole right of issuing warrants of arrest and deportation, conducting hearings on the warrants, and of relaxing the regulations in special cases. It was to this proposal that Commissioners Anderson and Mackintosh took exception.

Regarding the smuggling in of aliens, which he said had developed into a highly organized "racket," Mr. Oppenheimer said in part:

"A large part of the unlawful entry of aliens, particularly in the east, is the work of organized rings.

"Often all of the available money of the alien is taken, and he or she is kept practically a prisoner until the time for the attempt comes near. Aliens who are shrewder do not pay their passage money in advance, but make arrangements that it shall be paid upon delivery to a friend or relative in the United States."

Officials Pledge Efforts to End Communist Strike

The resources of the municipal government were pledged yesterday to stamp out the rent strike which communists have been fomenting in the south side colored district and which led to the riot in which three Negroes were killed last Monday.

At a meeting of the Chicago real estate board, called by its president, Mark Levy, in the board's headquarters at 59 West Monroe street, Acting Chief Justice Frank M. Padden of the Municipal court and Albert J. Horan, Municipal court bailiff, pledged the full exertion of their authority to maintain the processes of the law.

"The Municipal court has no option but to operate under the law in these premises," declared Judge Padden. "If an acute situation prevails on the south side it is a matter solely for the charitable and social agencies of the city to settle. Whatever is done to alleviate the situation must be accomplished by private initiative."

Landlords Hard Hit, He Says.

South side landlords have begun to suffer acutely from the rent strike, it was declared by Thomas J. Fleming, chairman of the renting division of the realty board, who presided as chairman of the meeting.

"Property owners have been hit heavily by the agitation now going on," said Mr. Fleming. "The real estate men are sympathetic with the situation of the unemployed in the colored belt. We are willing to do what we can to help, but it is impossible to compromise with what is strictly a business proposition."

Referring to the "rent moratorium," which certain colored leaders advocate, Mr. Fleming declared it no more logical than to propose a moratorium by grocers, clothiers, and movie proprietors.

Realty Agent Heard.

Melvin J. Kolliner, south side rental agent, whose attempt to evict a Negro tenant precipitated Monday's riot and who witnessed the clash between the police and the crowd, emphasized the absence of racial feeling in the situation.

"There was absolutely no feeling between the races in the clash," Mr. Kolliner said. "The reputable, conservative colored residents, comprising 90 per cent of the population of the district, regretted the clash as much as any one. The blame lies directly on the communists."

Driving through Washington park at 8 a. m., the realty agent said, he saw the Red agitators inciting the crowds to join rental and buyers' strikes, and returning through the park at 10 p. m., he saw the soap box orators proclaiming that they "had the cops on the run."

Another realty agent, Paul Hobscheid, said he had attended four of the park meetings recently with a bodyguard of fifteen men, and heard the communists advocate sedition.

"I spent four evenings there listening to those agitators telling the Negro crowd how they would run the country, and I couldn't understand how the authorities let them get away with it," Hobscheid said. "Why can't the government check them?"

U. S. Prosecutor Explains.

Assistant United States Attorney Victor E. La Rue explained that the federal authorities had not been officially advised of the communist activities. If and when complaints are made indicating that the Red agitators are violating the federal law, United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson will take grand jury action, Mr. La Rue said.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Levy announced that he and other officials of the real estate board would meet within the next few days with representatives of the organized charities to determine what aid the board could give to deserving tenants now impoverished.

300 Police to Be on Guard.

Nearly 30 policemen were detailed last night to be on duty today at the Odd Fellows hall, 3337 South State street, where the communists are planning to hold a mass funeral at 2 p. m. for two of the three slain Negroes, Abe Grey and John O'Neal. William Matheson, secretary of the council of unemployed, communist affiliate at 23 South Lincoln street, predicted that 50,000 people would attend the funeral.

Irked by the reports that the council of unemployed was collecting $1 dues from all members, Matheson sent out a statement calling the report "cheap propaganda from the ministers and press." The dues, he said, is 2 cents a week.

SECRETARY DOAK'S VIEWS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A statement is to be issued tomorrow giving the views of Secretary Doak on the Wickersham commission's report on deportation, which vigorously criticized officials of the labor department.

Doak made this announcement tonight, saying that until the statement is made public he preferred not to comment on the report.

The secretary at a recess press conference in discussing criticisms said imigration officials necessarily had a wider latitude than police in picking up and questioning doubtful aliens. It often is necessary, he said, to question these people without a warrant.

The burden of proof that he has entered the country legally, the secretary said, lies with the alien. Should he be unable to prove legal entry he may be deported.

ASK AID FOR JOBLESS

A program seeking immediate relief for unemployed breadwinners and their families, chiefly through increased public funds, was adopted last night by the newly formed Chicago Workers Committee of Unemployment, meeting in the Eleanor club, 19 North State street. The demands will be presented to Mayor Cermak and the unemployment committee of the city council, according to the chairman, Karl Borders, secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy.

Special sessions of the legislature and of congress to provide relief funds were asked, as well as the resumption of public works already provided for.

Among the members of the committee of 100 attending last night's meeting were James Mullenbach, the Rev. Harold M. Kingsley, Negro pastor of the Congregational Church of the Good Shepherd, Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb, member of the county board, and others.

No Ransom Plot

Police and officials of the Central Republic Bank & Trust company were convinced yesterday there had been no ransom plot in the kidnaping Thursday night of John Hough, 5516 Flournoy street, purchasing agent of the bank, nor any intention of harming him.

The kidnapers, Ray Wallace and Fred LaMarche, who had been living at the Belleview hotel, 450 North Clark street, were being held in Milwaukee for extradition to Chicago. They were captured and Hough was rescued when a Milwaukee police squad stopped the automobile and Hough called to them that he was being abducted. He had voluntarily given the two men a ride, Hough said, and then they ordered him to drive to Rhinelander, Wis.

"We just wanted to get to Rhinelander for a vacation and we would have sent him on his way from there," said Wallace.

NEARLY HALF OF CHINA'S 432,000,000 FOUND JOBLESS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 7.—China's army of unemployed is vastly greater today than the population of the entire United States, according to an estimate issued by the minister of industry.

The estimate, based on a census of 120 districts embracing approximately a tenth of the total estimated population of 432,000,000, calculates that there are 200,000,000 unemployed, or nearly half the country's total inhabitants.

These jobless live a hand-to-mouth existence, doing occasional odd jobs, begging or being supported by their relatives.

CALLS CHICAGO BATTLE FRONT OF RED AGITATORS

Foe of Radicals Attacks Lack of Prosecution.

Chicago has become a battlefront of the communist party. Far from being spontaneous, the rent strikes in the Negro district on the south side were the direct results of the efforts of agitators concentrated here by the radical element, men in touch with the situation asserted yesterday. Moreover, they added, "this thing is only just getting under way."

"Economic conditions that have created fertile soil for the type of propaganda these people spread, drew these seditionists to this city," N. E. Hewitt, statistician for the American Intelligence federation, asserted. "The Negroes don't realize it, but they have been and they will be 'put in the middle' by these Reds as long as they listen to them.

Flee When Trouble Starts.

"You can depend upon it that the Red leaders never are on hand when any real violence develops. Invariably they start the fires of unrest, then they step aside and let some poor devil face the ensuing trouble.

"That's exactly what happened the other evening down on the south side."

Immediately afterwards the Reds rallied their forces, Mr. Hewitt pointed out, and set their printing presses to work to publish handbills demanding the death penalty for the police who had killed the rioters. The hammer and scythe, trademark and symbol of the soviet republic, adorned this as well as all the rest of their propaganda.

Raps Lack of Prosecution.

"Illinois has one of the finest sedition laws in the Union," Mr. Hewitt continued, "but the state's attorney has not prosecuted a single case brought to his attention in which these trouble makers are preaching the overthrow of our government. It looks as though the influence of the Civil Liberties union, condemned by Representative Hamilton Fish in his recent report to congress on Red activities as one of the chief avenues of support for the Reds, is too much for our Chicago officials.

"The Chicago committee of this organization, which has provided much of the defense of Reds against prosecution, is headed by Arthur Fisher of Winnetka. Fourteen professors of the University of Chicago are members and do far more than their share of egging on this movement against the peace and quiet of this country.

"One especially, Robert Morss Lovett, has been busy making speeches to such crowds. We have one report taken by a court stenographer, where he addressed the Reds as 'comrades,' and encouraged them to go out and work hard on their program.

"Then there is the item of legal defense of these Reds. A member of the Chicago bar, David J. Bentall, with offices in the Chicago Temple, is named in the Red literature as their official attorney, and takes his orders direct from the Internationale at Moscow.

"One of the most serious aspects of the present disturbances is the recruiting done here by mothers of the nine Negro lads held at Scottsboro, Ala., under death sentence for raping two white girls. Mrs. Viola Montgomery, one of these Negro mothers, was a speaker a few nights ago at a meeting in St. Matthew's church at Orleans and West Oak street, and others have come and gone.

"Jack Tilford, a widely known Red, is active in this area now, and others making strenuous efforts to obtain converts to their creed are Bob Turner, a Negro just returned from Moscow; Will Bowder, white, a district organizer here for the international labor defense, a subsidiary of the Red Internationale; B. K. Gebert, district organizer in this vicinity, and a white woman, Lydia Beidel, alias Bennett. They have all been shouting themselves hoarse in the meetings in the northwest corner of Washington park."

County Urged to Increase Its Fund for Poor Relief

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The United Charities, through a subcommittee of its board of directors, headed by Mrs. John V. Farwell, urged the finance committee of the county board yesterday to increase substantially its aid to the poor and unemployed. Mrs. Farwell asserted that more funds will be needed this winter than were distributed last winter.

MRS. J. V. FARWELL. [Keehne Photo.]

As indicative of the increasing need of deserving families and the degree of their destitution, Mrs. Farwell said:

"There has been an increase of 311 per cent in the number of families applying for relief in the last six months, and the increase in relief given by the United Charities was 618 per cent. In June of last year the relief distributed totaled $32,395, while last June it jumped to $268,327 and last month to $286,652. You will find 2,941 mothers on the waiting list for mothers' pensions.

Points to Increasing Need.

"Not only is there an increase in the number of families which need aid, but there is a large increase of the needs of such families. In 1930 it was found that 32 per cent of the families applying were in need of material relief. Last month the percentage vaulted to 71. We have increased our district offices from 10 to 16 and the working personnel from 70 to 179."

Arguing more directly on the urgency of a large county allotment for the aid of the poor, Mrs. Farwell continued:

"The unemployment census, taken by the federal government last January, showed 369,000 wage earners out of employment in Chicago. Assuming their average wage is only $4 a day, this represents $1,476,000 loss in daily wages. To be sure, it is impossible to supply a large portion of that loss.

"The best that can be hoped is that the families suffering from undernourishment, families in which fathers, mothers, and children are daily losing weight, becoming susceptible to disease and infection, and some developing tuberculosis, may be given something approximating the necessities of life.

"The United Charities anticipates that during the next year it will need $5,000,000. Even if that sum is obtained, the organization realizes that it cannot adequately care for all who apply for assistance.

"The tax supported agencies of Chicago have not increased their relief in proportion to the increased need. Nor have they done as well as other communities. In May, 1930, 68 per cent of Chicago 'outdoor' relief was borne by public funds. In May, 1931, the percentage was only 46 per cent. Comparing May, 1930, with May, 1931, Boston increased its share of public relief from 91 to 94 per cent; and Milwaukee from 85 to 94 per cent."

County Board Defers Action.

Members of the county board expressed sympathetic interest in the plea, but deferred action until the meeting of the governor's commission on relief and unemployment, which is scheduled for Aug. 17.

President Emmett Whealan of the board disclosed for the first time his plan of granting more relief without increasing taxes. This plan is to use some of the taxing power now utilized for road construction and maintenance to obtain cash with which to aid the unemployed.

It was pointed out that the motor fuel tax is rolling in about $4,000,000 a year to the county board in addition to a direct highway tax of 12½ per cent, which brings in several millions more. It is President Whealan's plan to have the legislature authorize use of part of this money for relief work temporarily.

He said that he had conferred with members of the governor's revenue commission for the purpose of getting legislation, permitting this plan to become effective, at the proposed special session of the general assembly.

At the last session of the legislature authority was granted to issue $2,000,000 in bonds for "poor relief." Part of that amount was to pay bills incurred by the county in relief work last winter. It is understood that some of the $2,000,000 will be available for this winter.

Reynolds Supports Plea.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, chairman of the advisory board of the county bureau of public welfare, supported the plea for a larger allotment of public funds for relief work. He said the county provided $1 where private agencies distributed $3 in last winter's struggle against cold and hunger.

In his letter to the county board he indicated that the governor's commission on relief and unemployment will be disbanded. The letter said:

"An organization of a joint emergency relief fund campaign, which may be said to be the successor to the governor's commission, is now planning a campaign for voluntary contributions totaling $8,000,000 to $10,000,000, of which from $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 will be spent in family relief."

Mr. Reynolds recommended that $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 from the public treasury be used for relief work.

His report shows that in the last seven months the county relief expenditures have totaled $1,708,765, as compared with appropriations of $380,000 in 1926, $400,000 in 1927, $450,000 in 1928, $475,000 in 1929, and $590,000 in 1930.

Mayor Cermak announced yesterday that he will confer on Monday with Samuel Insull Jr., member of the governor's commission. Mr. Cermak is still a member of the county board.

HOOVER VOWS TO CARE FOR IDLE WITHOUT DOLE

age number of persons in distress and their location. Further examination is being made of the probable list during next winter. The economic changes during the year will materially improve certain areas and others may be worse. These reports are not yet complete.

"The second requirement is to appraise the action now in progress by agencies which are available for the winter, the methods which have proved successful and the organization needed to coöperate with these agencies.

"I have been in communication with several governors and with other public authorities. Already many states and municipalities have begun to lay the foundation for action necessary to meet their problems.

"I have been canvassing the situation in conference with business, financial and labor leaders as to the different methods in interstate industries which may be of aid.

"I have had a number of conferences with leaders of relief and business organizations throughout the country with a view to consolidation and coördination of their efforts to support the national, state and local action.

Conducting a Resurvey.

"We have now under way a re-examination to determine the actual number to be employed through the steadily increasing volume of federal public works. We are canvassing state and municipal and industrial construction to ascertain what may be expected in that direction.

"The completion of these conferences and inquiries will require another month. By that time all the facts should be clear, both as to the load to be met, the progress and strength of organization in different regions, and the character and method of national organization necessary to coördinate and support them."

In amplifying his remarks on unemployment President Hoover emphasized his belief that the only safe way to plan relief measures was to determine the number of persons needing relief rather than those out of work.

Explains His Method.

The President said that in his opinion no method exists for accurately determining the exact number of persons out of work. The only solid basis, he said, was to find out the number which needed relief last winter and then determine the increase or decrease in that number which will be needing relief in the various areas.

Figures given out last January purporting to show that 6,000,000 persons had been out of work at that time contained many defects, he said. He added that estimates such as that put out recently by the American Federation of Labor indicating that 7,000,000 persons would be out of work next January were bewildering and misleading.

WINTER MONTHS ROAD WORK MAY EMPLOY 20,000

State Considers Program to Aid Jobless.

BY HAL FOUST.

Rock Island, Ill., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Director Cleaveland of the state department of public works this afternoon gave favorable consideration to a proposal that the highway division of his department carry out a $10,000,000 winter construction program to furnish jobs for 20,000 men during the cold months. It has been the practice in normal times to suspend virtually all construction with the arrival of freezing weather because of the extra expense of operating at low temperatures.

A. R. CLEAVELAND [Ishmar Photo.]

"The plan sounds feasible," said the director, who was interviewed at his home here. "It will be taken up with the governor and his unemployment commission next week."

Have good news for the jobless came out of the interview with Mr. Cleaveland. He said he expected to be able to award contracts for $4,583,000 of metropolitan area road projects included in the state's $11,843,270 August lettings, which dispatches from Springfield this week indicated would be indefinitely postponed because of difficulties in administering the "prevailing wage act" passed by this year's general assembly.

$6000 in Chicago Area.

These projects in Cook, Du Page, and Lake counties—twenty-one of them—will get approximately 2,250 men to work on the roads and furnish employment for 6,750 more men in preparing and delivering material and supplies.

"In normal times," said Mr. Cleaveland, discussing the winter construction proposal, "it would not be fair to the motoring public, which foots the bill, for the state to pay the extra expense of cold weather construction. But these are not normal times.

"Bridges, grade separations and grading can be carried on through the winter with an extra expense of between five and ten per cent for the cost of breaking frozen ground, heating sand, and water and protecting fresh concrete from freezing. On a $10,000,000 program this additional expense would amount to between $500,000 to $1,000,000. This does not seem like too much to pay for the benefits of keeping 20,000 men employed.

Wage Act Hampers.

"A difficulty in carrying out this proposed winter program will be the prevailing wage act, which has already delayed for more than a month about $10,000,000 worth of the state's $35,000,000 summer construction program, keeping approximately 5,500 men from their jobs and affecting the employment of 16,500 more men who would be preparing and delivering material and supplies. It seems likely now that $2,500,000 downstate share of the scheduled August letting will be omitted from construction this year."

The prevailing wage act was sponsored by some union labor leaders as a protest against heavy wage cuts in organized territories since the slump broke two years ago. The measure provides that the rates paid on public construction shall be no lower than the rates prevailing for similar work in the vicinity of the project.

Wage Fixing Fails.

This attempt to fix wages by legislation, similar to the control of industry in soviet Russia, so far has been no more successful than the federal government's attempt to fix the price of wheat and, for the same reason, a supply in excess of demands.

"The act," said Mr. Cleaveland, "requires the state to specify in its advertisements for bids what the minimum wage shall be, this minimum to be the prevailing wage. The act further provides that taxpayers can protest the rate fixed by the state and appeal to a special board to be selected by the governor and finally appeal to the courts to prevent the award of contracts with a protested wage scale."

Union Leaders Object.

For the $11,843,270 contracts now being advertised, which incidentally should have been awarded a month ago, the state in fixing the minimum wage scale took as the "prevailing wage" the rates that have been paid during the depression, the low scale that prompted passage of the bill. Union leaders have objected, contending, it is said, that the rates during the recent boom should be considered as the prevailing wage mentioned in the statute.

Menagerie in Home Irks Wife; She Asks Divorce

Four dogs, a goat, two pigeons, two rabbits and two parrots absorbed all of the affection of her husband, Joseph, Mrs. Anna Skala, 5058 South Lincoln street, charged yesterday in a bill for divorce filed in the Superior court by Attorney Victor Frohlich. Time which her husband, a salesman, should have spent with their two children, Jackie, 4 years old, and Shirley, 6, was spent with his pets, she added.

Baby's Fall Into Bathtub of Boiling Water Fatal

Buddie suffered Aug. 2 when he fell into a bathtub containing boiling water, caused the death of Charles Anderson Jr., 18 months old, 1241 North Rivers avenue, in the West Suburban hospital in Oak Park last night. The child was momentarily out of sight of his mother when the accident occurred.

Baby Reaching for Lily Falls in Pond; Drowned

Guest Sinden, 22 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Sinden of Aurora, slipped when she reached for a flower in a lily pond in the yard at her parents' home yesterday and was drowned. There was only nine inches of water in the pond.

Homes Robbed as Troubles Are Aired in Court

Mrs. Cora Rowe (left), who charged Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue, with giving noisy parties in her apartment at 940 East 82d street; Homer Andreas, Mrs. Rowe's attorney, and Mrs. Blacklidge, who was cleared, before Judge John J. Lupe in South Chicago court. While the case was being heard burglars entered the apartments of both women and ransacked them.

BOTH MYRTLE AND FOE LOSE —TO BURGLARS

Mrs. Blacklidge Freed in Court.

The bridge parties which Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge gave in her apartment at 940 East 82d street were a matter of dispute yesterday in the South Chicago court between the former collector of internal revenue and her accusing neighbor, Mrs. Cora Rowe.

At the close of the hearing, however, Judge John J. Lupe dismissed the charges against Mrs. Blacklidge, declaring the evidence of revelry in her home was insufficient to support the charge of maintaining a nuisance.

Then both principals went back to the apartment building where Mrs. Rowe lives on the first floor and Mrs. Blacklidge directly above her on the second.

Again the Police Are Called.

In a twinkling the phone rang in the Burnside police station, and Mrs. Rowe was once more invoking the aid of police. In her absence, she reported, burglars had broken into the apartment.

Scarcely had she hung up when the police telephone rang again. It was Mrs. Blacklidge. She had arrived home to find her apartment ransacked. Policemen leaped for a squad car and took the now familiar trail to 940 East 82d street for another interview with Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Blacklidge.

Missing from the Blacklidge apartment were an $800 string of pearls, a $600 ring and a $200 fox scarf. Mrs. Rowe's loss was one rug and one fur coat. Neighbors said they had heard a vacuum cleaner running in the Blacklidge apartment, the burglars apparently using the machine to cover the noise they made in their search.

The Court Hearing.

In court Mrs. Blacklidge, who was forced to resign as internal revenue collector after the famous Springfield faro game in which Edward R. Litsinger lost $50,000, appeared in a white sports suit, a Panama hat and high spirits. She was accompanied by some of her guests at one particular party named in the complaint, held on July 28.

Mrs. Rowe and her husband, Frank Rowe, testified that the din from the Blacklidge apartment that evening prevented them from sleeping.

"They broke chairs and shouted and pounded on the floor," Mrs. Rowe asserted. "They knocked the calcimine off my ceiling. I had complained to the police on three different occasions. This time the noise continued until 2 o'clock in the morning."

Other Neighbors Testify.

Mrs. U. S. Greener, who lives above Mrs. Blacklidge, declared that she had heard no loud noises on the date in question. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kingston, 8159 Ingleside avenue, whose front door adjoins Mrs. Blacklidge's, also said there had been no disturbance, as did Mrs. A. E. Cotey, 8157 Ingleside avenue. Those at the bridge party left at 12:30 o'clock, Mrs. Cotey added. Other witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Kelly, 7834 Ingleside, and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Maetzold, 8119 Ingleside.

Asked by Homer Andreas, attorney for Mrs. Rowe, to "at least give Mrs. Blacklidge a warning," Judge Lupe replied that he could not even do that.

"A man's or woman's home is all they have, and they have a right to do what they want, providing they do not disturb other residents," he said.

LAUNDRY BLAMES BOMBING ON ITS DISCOUNT POLICY

Refusal of the Great Northern Laundry company to cease its practice of giving a discount on laundry carried to its office was given as the reason why the company's branch office at 2401 East 75th street was bombed early yesterday.

Nathan Levitetz, vice president of the company, whose main offices and plant are located at 2125-47 West Madison street, told Lieut. Edward Goggin of the Grand Crossing police station that recently he had been ordered to stop giving the discount by members of a laundry association. The bomb caused damage estimated at $1,000 and shattered windows in 32 nearby apartments.

Postal Official, 37 Years in Service, Gets $1,000

P. J. Madigan, assistant superintendent of mails, was given a check for $1,000 and a certificate of award by the postoffice department yesterday for his thirty-seven years of "meritorious service." Mr. Madigan's service in the mechanical division of the Chicago postoffice has been marked by many inventions and improvements for the expeditious handling of the mails, according to Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, who made the presentation.

NURSE ACCUSED BY WIFE LOSES PLEA TO WORK FOR DOCTOR

Miss Emily Ranos, a nurse, who has been named as co-respondent in the divorce suit of Mrs. Anna Millstone, 742 East Marquette road, against Dr. Henry J. Millstone, failed yesterday to obtain the dissolution of an injunction restraining her from working for the doctor, who is a plastic surgeon.

Judge James J. Kelly in the Superior court refused to dissolve the injunction when Attorney Harry X. Cole, representing Mrs. Millstone, produced as witnesses Miss Ranos' 13 year old sister, Anna, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Ranos, 833 Pennsylvania avenue, Gary.

Although Attorney Thomas Johnson, representing Miss Ranus, told the court that the injunction was working a hardship on the nurse and had rendered her destitute, Mrs. Ranos, however, said she wished her daughter to return home.

"I can produce three nurses," Attorney Cole added, "who will testify that even while Miss Ranos is attempting to have the court dissolve the injunction, she is violating the court order, entering the doctor's office through a back door." On their way out of court Mrs. Ranos asked Emily to go back to Gary.

"You can't do anything to me now," the nurse was heard to say, breaking away from her mother. "I am over 21 years old and I can take care of myself."

WOMAN LOSES $2,000,000 SUIT; COURT HISSED

Redwood City, Cal., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Peremptorily instructed to do so, a reluctant jury here today returned a verdict denying Constance May Gavin of Los Angeles a $2,000,000 share in the estate of the late James L. Flood which she claimed on the ground she was his illegitimate daughter.

The instruction to the jury was made by Judge George H. Buck on the motion of counsel for the acknowledged heirs of the San Francisco multimillionaire. Mrs. Gavin had sued for a two-ninths share of the $9,000,000 holdings.

Spectators who packed the courtroom were astonished and showed their disapproval by staging a near riot.

After the jury had been out for a few moments considering the instructions it returned and asked Judge Buck if his orders were mandatory. He said they were.

Mrs. Aileen Maguire, one of the jurors and a lifetime friend of the judge, said: "I refuse to sign such a libel. What's the use of impaneling a jury if it has no discretion?"

"Aileen, you had better sit down," Judge Buck said. But she continued to protest, and the crowd cheered her and hissed the judge. In a few more minutes the jury came out again with the verdict signed. Mrs. Maguire said ten of the jurors were in favor of giving Mrs. Gavin a verdict and two were in favor of the heirs.

DIES AFTER HIS ARREST IN GARY TERRORISM QUIZ

An ex-convict's story that he had been hired to conduct a campaign of terrorism against cleaners and dyers in Gary yesterday caused the technical arrest of Ben Coler, 38 years old, owner of the Modern Cleaner establishment in the Indiana city. A few hours later Coler, a patient in the Methodist hospital in Gary, died, supposedly of shock following an operation.

The ex-convict is John Kerry, 23 years old, 3708 Broadway, Gary. He asserted that more than a year ago Coler and Leo Oslan, owner of another cleaning and dyeing plant, hired him to destroy the business of their rivals. He listed a dozen occasions on which he tossed bombs or poured acid in the plants of these rivals.

SALOON KEEPER SHOT DOWN BY PAIR OF ROBBERS

Robert Nugent, owner of an alleged speakeasy at 5901 South Damen avenue, was shot three times late last night when he attempted to escape from two armed men who entered the place supposedly on a mission of robbery. The bullets lodged in the left thigh, and Nugent was taken to the Holy Cross hospital.

FILES CHARGES AGAINST VETERAN OF HEALTH OFFICE

Charges of neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming a city employé were filed by Health Commissioner Bundesen yesterday against Dr. G. A. Koehler, for nearly twenty years an assistant health commissioner. The civil service commission set the hearing on the case for Aug. 13. Dr. Koehler, who was suspended on April 30 by Commissioner Bundesen, was reinstated later and is now on leave of absence.

DR. G. A. KOEHLER

The charges involve Dr. Koehler's preparation of the quintennial report of the health department, which was issued when Dr. Arnold H. Kegel was health commissioner. The report, Commissioner Bundesen charges, "was full of errors, misstatements, and mistakes and intimations which might lead to wrong conclusions and be used for political purposes."

Dr. Koehler is also charged with falsifying records of the department and with coercing other employés of the department, through threats, to commit unlawful acts. The quintennial report, Dr. Bundesen charged, was so full of errors that it had to be revised and reissued after he took office.

"I am willing to submit the charges to the fair minded civil service commission or to the Chicago Medical society," Dr. Koehler said.

GIRL FREED ON PROBATION.

Adeline Oreszewski, 17 years old, 4747 South Paulina street, who stole jewelry valued at $1,000 from Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, 6432 Eggleston avenue, after the couple had taken her into their home and befriended her, was granted probation yesterday by Judge John J. Cooney in the Felony court. The Andersons agreed to the probation.

HOOVER MOVES HIS DOCTOR UP IN NAVAL RANK

Approves Promotion List That Includes Boone.

DR. J. T. BOONE. [Harris & Ewing.]

Boone, who holds the temporary rank of captain while serving as White House physician, was one of seven medical officers approved for promotion by the President upon recommendation of a naval selection board, after a previous list had been rejected.

Acting Secretary Jahncke of the navy refused to make public the first list on the ground that to do so would be in violation of navy ethics and procedure. A report published at the time President Hoover returned the list ascribed this action to omission of Boone's name.

Reveals Hoover Letter.

Jahncke made public, however, a letter from President Hoover, dated July 17, in which the President said: "I wish it to be known and recorded by the new board that the President has no interest in this matter other than to see that the best men should receive promotion."

Boone, who has been personal physician to President Hoover since April, 1929, holds a congressional medal of honor and the army's distinguished service cross for heroism in France.

His name appeared sixth on the list of seven. In seniority he was near the end of the list of 33 from which the seven were selected for promotion.

Mr. Jahncke Explains.

Jahncke issued a statement saying "seniority is only to be considered where two candidates have records and possess qualities of like character and where differentiation is indistinguishable. Merit must be the dominating glude."

He added, "The recommendations of the previous board were not approved upon the advice of naval authority."

The others listed for promotion, all from lieutenant commander to commander were:

MUSSOLINI AND GERMANS PONDER WOES OF WORLD

Seek Means of Ending the Present Crisis.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Aug. 7.—Premier Mussolini, the iron man of Italian Fascism, and Chancellor Bruening of Germany, whose political life has been threatened more than once by Hitlerite Fascists at home, today began laying groundwork for a new and stronger friendship between their countries.

Dealing frankly with European sore spots, and boring straight into the center of the much disturbed political and financial situation in their first meeting, Mussolini and Bruening plunged into a brass tack discussion of practical measures for the common good of the world and, more particularly, Germany and Italy.

The visit is the first made by German ministers to Germany since 1914.

Statesmen Trade Praises.

At a dinner given tonight by Mussolini in horor of Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, the diplomats toasted each other in phrases that promised sincere efforts to lift the veil of depression which has fallen over all Europe.

Speaking at the dinner, il duce paid tribute to German culture, expressed his sympathy with the reich in its present difficult plight, and hailed the Hoover war debt moratorium plan as an aid in healing the moral and material wounds of the war.

Chancellor Bruening also mentioned the Hoover plan, calling it a measure "of trail blazing importance."

Mussolini met the German statesmen at the railroad station when they arrived this morning, and they plunged immediately into a discussion of world affairs. The Italian premier seemed in high good humor as he strode about the station platform while waiting for their arrival, and his easy manner and apparent friendliness as he greeted the Germans immediately established a basis of cordiality.

Guarded by Troops.

The little group, guided by il duce, passed through long lines of brilliantly uniformed guards and well armed plain clothes officers, then paused for a moment before the usual battery of cameras before dashing away in automobiles. Crowds of Italians and members of the German colony cheered them lustily.

The German statesmen were taken to the Grand hotel, where a permanent guard of honor has been stationed.

The frank, sometimes almost blunt, manner of Mussolini swept aside all more trivial matters at once and made for speed toward the real matters for discussion, and the Germans presented an attitude which immediately made plain their intention to deal frankly with such questions as their country's financial difficulties.

At tea this afternoon at Tivoli, and later at the dinner tonight, il duce and his diplomatic guests had a heart-to-heart talk, which will be continued tomorrow, when the trio will be guests at a luncheon by the German embassy.

Meet In Il Duce's Office.

The principal discussion today was held in the office of Premier Mussolini. Those present were Mussolini, Dr. Curtius, Chancellor Bruening, Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy, and the German ambassador, von Schubert.

The Germans are in Rome on a "courtesy visit," principally to thank Mussolini for his prompt acceptance and strong support of the Hoover plan. The diplomats made it plain, however, that they are using the opportunity to pass about mutual promises that war is over and that each will help the other in its difficulties.

HINDENBURG AIDS PRESS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—President von Hindenburg stood up today as the defender of liberty of the German press. He demanded that the government do everything in its power to end the dictatorial rule by decrees.

"In reply to numerous telegrams received today," Von Hindenburg's office announced, "the president allows it to be known that orders of the Prussian government for compulsory publication of its proclamation against the plebiscite for dissolution of the Prussian diet induced him to instruct the cabinet to immediately submit proposals for improvement of the emergency decree regarding liberty of the press."

No changes will be made until Monday, when Chancellor Bruening returns from Rome, but the German people are elated to find that the president will not tolerate abuse of the power he granted officials through the emergency decree.

Young Reds Riot.

With the plebiscite drawing nearer, excitement is increasing rapidly. Tonight 500 young communists tried to break through Wilhelmstrasse to the white house, but were turned back by police. They then broke windows of nearby shops, and overturned a private limousine which was parked nearby.

Shops with bright silver knives in the windows tempted them but before they could reach it mounted police and riot cars stormed the crowd and the youths fled. A score were arrested. Two were held on charges of carrying stones, which were termed "dangerous weapons."

Fears of a general throttling of German imports through restrictions on foreign exchange were given at least a temporary respite today when the government announced that "until further notice" the purchase of foreign currencies by legitimate import and export firms would be unrestricted.

Must Use "Restraint."

The announcement, however, said that firms would be expected to use "restraint" in regard to foreign luxury articles, in view of the present financial crisis, but did not state what measures will be taken against firms which fail to heed this warning. All business houses operating under this ruling will be forced to submit periodical reports to the government of the business involved.

ON FARM BOARD

FRANK EVANS.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Frank Evans, of Salt Lake City, former executive secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation, was appointed to the farm board today by President Hoover.

He will fill the vacany created by the retirement of C. C. Teague, vice chairman and fruits and vegetables member. One other vacancy now exists.

In making the appointment, Mr. Hoover selected a second official of the Farm Bureau federation, a nationally known farm organization with thousands of members. Sam H. Thompson, named when Alexander Legge, former chairman, retired last March, was president of the federation until his appointment and served together with Evans.

The federation has consistently supported the board and the agricultural marketing act.

FEAR MILITARY 'COUP' AS CHILE'S OFFICERS PARLEY

Ibanez' Old Premier Comes Disguised.

BY JOHN LIVINGSTONE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 7.—The capital of Chile tonight is full of rumors as a result of extraordinary military and naval bustle. A secret conference of army and naval officers is reported to have been held owing to the discontent and anger which has arisen over the violent press campaign demanding punishment for former President Carlos Ibanez and his friends, ousted from power by a civil revolution several weeks ago.

Carlos Froedden, premier under the régime of Dictator Ibanez, has reached Coquimbo in disguise for the alleged purpose of conferring with his former colleagues who are still loyal to the fallen dictator, and who are located with the fleet which is anchored off that northern port.

Commercial circles are anxious, and special meetings have been held to consider the demand by the press for a dissolution of the American organized nitrate combine on the grounds of alleged corruption and illegality.

Investigate Fallen Rule.

The chamber of deputies yesterday decided to postpone for three days the resolution on a bill giving ample power to the provisional president to reorganize the administration.

The committee to investigate the fallen Ibanez régime met yesterday for the first time, presided over by Minister of Justice Gutierrez. The committee then named Alejandro Bezanillo, former supreme court minister, as president.

One subcommittee has ordered the finance minister to reveal details on all loans contracted since 1927, their conditions and objects. A second group has ordered the minister of the interior to hand over a list of all persons imprisoned or deported during the dictatorship.

PERU'S ELECTION FIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

While the younger political firebrands, Lieut. Col. Luis Sanchez-Cerro, who led the revolution which resulted in the overthrow of former President Augusto B. Leguia, and Raoul Haya de la Torre, are campaigning in the southern and northern provinces of Peru, the two older and more experienced candidates, Artura Osores and Rafael Larco Herrera, are making no vigorous bid for public favor. Señor Osores is recuperating from influenza at his residence in Lima, and Larco Herrera is on his way to New York for a visit.

Three Dark Horses in Race.

Despite Señor Herrera's denial that he will become a candidate, his followers here are vigorously pushing his candidacy as head of the newly formed Economic party. Osores, a lawyer, is an old line politician. Possible dark horses in the race are former President Oscar Benavides, recently returned to Peru from a long exile in Paris, and acting President David Samanez Campo and War Minister Gustavo Jiminez of the existing government.

It is generally conceded that the government junta is making every effort to hold honest elections, although there is widespread complaint against the intricacy of registration requirements.

Start Placing Piers for Link Bridge Next Week

Work on the outer drive bridge at the mouth of the river was concentrated yesterday on the building of two huge cofferdams, inside of which will be placed the pier supports. The placing of these piers will begin next week, according to H. Otto Weeger, superintendent of the Lincoln park system, who stated that construction of the project was being pushed as rapidly as possible.

3,000 TAXPAYERS FACE INQUIRY ON REDUCED VALUES

Board Seeks Reason for Personalty Cuts.

Some 3,000 taxpayers, heads of business houses and hotels, soon are to be called before the board of review to explain why their personal property assessments for 1930 should not be increased. This was disclosed yesterday by Andrew W. Gatenbey, chief clerk of the board.

Lists of the business houses are now being prepared and notices will be mailed out to the owners and executive heads within the next few days, Gatenbey said.

The board is taking action following an examination of more than 12,000 personal property schedules which have been placed in the hands of the reviewers with the books of the board of assessors. A comparison between the amounts of the schedules filed in 1929 with those filed in 1930 was made.

Those schedules which were less in 1930 than in 1929 were placed on the notification lists. Only those businesses in which the personal property was valued at more than $2,500 were included.

Board Puzzled in Many Cases.

"It is true that in many cases the business depression is to blame for the decrease in the amount of listed property," Gatenbey said. "But in many cases we can see no apparent reason why the schedules are so noticeably smaller.

"We are withholding the names of those on our lists in order to protect the innocents among the group."

It was recalled yesterday that similar action was taken by the board of review in 1929. The bankers of the county were called before the board to explain the low schedules presented for personal property. After the session the reviewers cut the schedules they had protested a total of approximately $40,000,000.

ASSESSORS GET SETBACK

Members of the board of assessors, who have been charged by J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency engineer, with dissipating their appropriation through the hiring of inefficient political pay rollers, may under certain conditions be made defendants in taxpayers' suits for recovery of wasted funds, the finance committee of the county board was informed yesterday in an opinion by County Attorney Hayden N. Bell.

Mr. Bell's opinion was contained in a letter to the board on the legality of the assessors' request for an emergency appropriation of $75,000, without which, they assert, they will be unable to complete the 1931 quadrennial reassessment.

Admits Extra Fund Not Needed.

Shortly after the opinion had been read, Charles E. Fox, director of appraisals for the assessors, admitted in answering a question by Miss Amelia Sears, one of the county commissioners, that it is possible for him to complete the reassessment without the extra appropriation.

Attorney Bell then held verbally that under such circumstances no emergency exists, and no extra appropriation would be legally possible.

Action on the appropriation had already been postponed, pending a report from Attorney General Carlstrom, to whom Attorney Bell sent a copy of his opinion in which he held that under certain circumstances the board might give the assessors the money.

It is a matter of constitutional law, Attorney Bell held, that a governing body may make emergency appropriations to meet a situation which threatens its continuing in existence. Assessment and collection of taxes, he said, is a function which, if halted, would threaten the life of the county government, and thus the county board might make an emergency appropriation to complete the reassessment.

Miss Sears Asks Questions.

That state of affairs, however, was changed by the question which Commissioner Sears put to Fox.

"As I understand it," she said to the appraisal chief, "an emergency exists only if you can't get out the reassessment with the $90,000 you have left from your regular appropriation. Are you able to do that?"

"With the money I have now I'll be able to get out a fair assessment in which there is no fraud," Fox assured her.

Attorney Bell had started to leave the committee room. When he heard this he turned and said:

Opinion on "Wasted Funds."

The section of his opinion in which Attorney Bell held that the assessors might be personally liable for any funds which could be proved to have been wasted on pay rollers stated:

"Where an appropriation in a current year is improvidently consumed by the head of the office, resulting in delay or nonperformance of office to the injury of members of the public, in my opinion, the head of the office is and remains liable for damages suffered, as one's own wrong is no legal defense in the law of personal liability."

Later Attorney Bell pointed out that under his opinion it would be necessary to prove, in any action to force repayment of a wasted appropriation to the public treasury, that the pay rollers who were hired out of such an appropriation had failed to perform the duties for which they were hired.

Judge Orders Accountant to Pay Wife $100 a Month

Richard Morton, an accountant, yesterday was ordered to pay his wife, Mrs. Ethel Morton, 1653 East 72d street, $100 a month for the support of herself and their 8 year old son, Richard Jr. The order was made by Judge Joseph Graber yesterday in the Court of Domestic Relations. Miss Bobbie Carlyle, 26 years old, a manicurist, who admitted that she had been living with Morton at 1939 Lincoln avenue since February, promised Judge Graber that she would return to her home in Memphis, Tenn.

ROB FATHER AND DAUGHTER.

Bandits robbed Samuel Polskee and his daughter, Elaine, 25 years old, of $525 in jewelry and $57 in cash as they entered the vestibule of their home at 1412 Chase avenue early yesterday.

BOOKS

Three Books Easy to Read on Hot Days

Take Either One First, Order Doesn't Matter.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

IN this torrid summer, which breaks heat records like cheese straws, the average person welcomes light, diverting books rather than brain wearying discussions on abnormal psychology and the imperial candidate for the next decline and fall. "Marry for Love," by Allene Corliss [Farrar and Rinehart]; "Four in Family," by Humphrey Pakington [Norton], and "Fed Up," by George A. Birmingham [Bobbs Merrill], are a trio that should prove amusing and entertaining.

HUMPHREY PAKINGTON.

The first is a not-too-heavy novel that can be picked up at leisure and read between golf and tennis. It's all about a girl named Stanley Paige and if you want to know what she looks like just glance at the slim, long limbed, half sophisticated, half naive young lady in the soap and cigaret ads, or the smiling, alluring young person on any magazine cover and you have her picture.

She had the velvet skin, the fresh complexion, the kissable mouth and all the other items that lure the fancy of a man and are promised to the users of Whatsis soap and Whoosis dental cream. And she had the aristocratic bearing one always associates with the sponsors of laundry flakes and java. Yes, Stanley Paige was a beauty.

And she was loved by three men. First was Perry Deverest, who called her "darlin'" and was the Rock of Gibraltar, Bank of England type that represents the very safest port in a storm and a restless spirit's best bet in the long run. And who is usually left high and dry, in the story books, and wears a martyr's halo.

Second, there was Drew Armitage a man of devastatingly attractive looks, whose favorite indoor sport was taking the hearts of the fair sex and cr-r-r-ushing them. When he and Stanley meet their glances fairly crackle and before you know it she has fallen in love with the rogue.

Then, last, there is John Harmon Northrup, always called by his first two names, whom Stanley meets on a park bench. He's an ambitious young writer with Dreams [capital D for Dreams], and he promptly proceeds to idolize her.

Now, if you're still with us, which of the three do you think will be the lucky man? No fair looking at the last chapter. You'll have to read the whole book to find out. And I hope you're entertained.

"Four in Family," by Humphrey Pakington, is a mirth provoker that is wholly delightful and entirely inconsequential. To this reader, at least, it is worth its weight in gold, for it is as rare a find as was "O Glory," by Harford Powell, some weeks ago, and while it is not at all the same sort of thing, it has the light touch, the chuckle to every page that made Mr. Powell's novel such excellent amusement.

Nothing happens in "Four in Family." That's why it's such fun. There are heaps of light, airy episodes about simple, everyday types of English people, and they are all bound together and permeated with the bubbling, effervescent humor of the author. "Four in Family" is too unsophisticated to be called a glass of extra dry champagne. It's more like some delicious sauterne, or merely a glass of limeade with a lot of charged water in it. Call it what you like, but do read it! It's a treat.

Any one is bound to like the two elders, Robert and Helen and their three daughters and one son, Crispin. [Robert aired his knowledge of Shakespeare and the church calendar by calling the child Crispin.] And as for Aunt Etta and Uncle William and the Bishop and old Eaton-Shrubsole—just try to look solemn when you are reading about them!

George A. Birmingham, who has a long list of amusing books to his credit has written another funny one called "Fed Up" [Bobbs Merrill.] While it is not as witty or humorous as Mr. Pakington's story it is, nevertheless, pleasant light reading.

The author spoofs English politics and all the hot air and mean-nothing speeches that go with an election. It is hard to tell which candidate is the more banal, Charles Beauchamp, the conservative, or Big Peter Boyd, the liberal.

Both men get sick to death of campaigning and seize at a fortunate accident to run away. On the way home from a meeting their cars collide. Here is a chance to shake off the whole mess.

They escape, like two guilty school boys from a birthday party. They catch a ride on a truck, commandeer it, catch a train, and by using their wits manage to reach Ireland with no one the wiser. There they proceed to have a glorious time far from the madding crowd of their constituents.

What happens at home, what the papers say, and what Edith Beauchamp finally does about the situation make up the rest of the book. Very light comedy, and fairly clever.

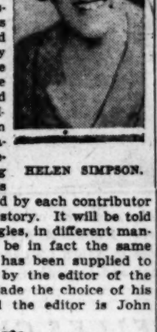
Brand Whitlock Compares Dry Law to Saloon Door

Brand Whitlock, former diplomat and ex-mayor of Toledo, O., discusses prohibition with a nimble irony and a mocking philosophy in his book "The Little Green Shutter" [Appleton]. The swinging half-door of the old time saloon he regards as a symbol of the whole question. The actual door has been removed but its function—that of merely screening the drinker from prying eyes rather than to keep him out—has been taken over by the federal law itself.

SEVERAL WRITERS TELL SAME STORY, EACH IN OWN WAY

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—A curious book is in preparation here which may, or may not, prove of considerable interest to readers and to collectors of curiosities. This is a collection of short stories by various well known writers. It will be issued in two forms—one a limited edition, each copy of which will be signed by all the contributors, and the other an ordinary trade edition without signatures. And the remarkable thing about this book is that the story told by each contributor will be the same story. It will be told from different angles, in different manners, but it will be in fact the same story. The plot has been supplied to the contributors by the editor of the book, who has made the choice of his contributors; and the editor is John Fothergill.



HELEN SIMPSON.

Mr. Fothergill is known far and wide as the poet who keeps an inn; and as his inn is celebrated as a good inn he enjoys many patrons among the poets and prose writers of England. His inn is situated near to the city of Oxford, at a smaller town called Thame, which is set among some of the loveliest scenery in England; and it is called "The Spread Eagle." Here every day Mr. Fothergill entertains his guests with refreshment for mind and body, and his inn is increasingly a port of call for those whose pleasure takes them toward Oxford, and into the byways of Oxfordshire and poetry.

The authors upon whom Mr. Fothergill is relying for his book—I name only the chief of them, but there will be nearly twenty of them—are: Thomas Burke, G. K. Chesterton, A. E. Coppard, E. M. Delafield, Mary Borden, Storm Jameson, Margaret Kennedy, A. P. Herbert, Sheila Kaye-Smith, L. A. G. Strong, and Rebecca West. A strong team, it will be agreed. To them must be added Helen Simpson, who is so far known chiefly as a collaborator with Clemence Dane in a couple of "different" detective stories. But I am told that Helen Simpson has written a new, long, delightful, and rich and varied novel, to be published in the autumn, which will cause her name to be revered by all. Not having read this book myself, I cannot give any particulars of its charms. But my informant is a man of great experience and insight, and his word may be relied on. Miss Simpson, then, is an accession to the list of Mr. Fothergill's contributors.

To this volume is to be prefixed a long discourse—said to be serious and valuable—upon the subject of the variation-form in music and literature. This essay is being written by R. G. Collingwood, another friend of the editor's, and one who does not write short stories.

Three Write on Lenin; Only One Uses Facts

Personal Passions Damage Two Biographies.

BY CLIFTON M. UTLEY.

"Lenin," by D. S. Mirsky. [Little-Brown.]

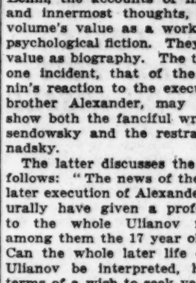
"Lenin, Red Dictator," by George Vernadsky. [Yale University Press.]

IT was perhaps inevitable that the biographies of so combative a character as Nicolai Lenin, born Vladimir Ulianov, should be tinged with controversy. Yet it is none the less to be regretted that of the three volumes here offered the American public one should be fantastic fiction and another the eulogy of a convert to Marxism, leaving only a single work [that by Vernadsky] meriting consideration as an objective life story.



LENIN.

"Lenin, Red Dictator," is a straightforward account of the career of the man who rose from political prisoner and exile to be dictator of all the Russians. It is not a great work; indeed, it is only too clear that the final biography of Lenin remains to be written. But the story as told by Vernadsky is restrained and balanced, the essential facts are all there, and if the author has any prejudices he conceals them successfully. It is probable that his volume will stand for some time as the standard work on the Red dictator. Special mention should be made of the final chapter evaluating Lenin as a political leader. Here is deep insight undistorted by the emotional color that injures the work of both Mirsky and Ossendowsky.

Ossendowsky has produced not a biography but 419 pages of biographical fiction. Lenin's entire life, from birth to death, is set down with a wealth of detail much of which can only have come from Mr. Ossendowsky's fertile imagination. Unquestionably many or all the startling and sometimes gruesome events described did take place somewhere in Russia. But to assert that they all happened to Lenin and to use them to explain Lenin's development is to impose unduly upon the reader's credulity.

The endless quotations imputed to Lenin, the accounts of his romances and innermost thoughts, add to the volume's value as a work of a semi-psychological fiction. They destroy its value as biography. The treatment of one incident, that of the young Lenin's reaction to the execution of his brother Alexander, may be used to show both the fanciful writing of Ossendowsky and the restraint of Vernadsky.

The latter discusses the incident as follows: "The news of the arrest and later execution of Alexander must naturally have given a profound shock to the whole Ulianov family and among them the 17 year old Vladimir. Can the whole later life of Vladimir Ulianov be interpreted, however, in terms of a wish to seek vengeance for the death of his brother? The contention seems ill founded." Ossendowsky quotes Lenin [then known under his real name] as saying to his sweetheart: "I swear revenge upon the Romonovs, but my time has not yet come. And when my time does come blood will flow . . . in a sea of blood." Later, when the czar is about to be murdered, the dictator "whispered to himself, 'At last! The only personal ambition of my whole life will be fulfilled!'" The two methods of treating this incident are typical of the approaches used throughout by the two authors.

D. S. Mirsky is a convert to Marxism and writes as such. He is more bolshevik than the bolsheviki. Lenin is a superman. He never—well, hardly ever—made a mistake, and even when he did there were good reasons for having erred. Thus when he insisted upon the disastrous march on Warsaw in spite of the adverse verdict of the military men he was justified in acting as he did because "the results of victory were incommensurable with the results of defeat." The book will recommend itself chiefly to the reader of loftiest tendencies who already knows but wants to be reassured that Lenin was the personification of political astuteness and perfection. For the objective reader its chief value is incorporated in the final chapter on "Leninism," in which the leader is explained in terms of his movement.

MOVIE OWNERS MAP CAMPAIGN FOR SHUTDOWN

Will Demand Ouster of Maloy's Brother.

Campaign plans were mapped yesterday by the 100 members of the Allied Theater Owners' association of Illinois, who have agreed to close their theaters after the last performance tomorrow night in a war on the ruling of the Motion Picture Operators' union requiring two operators in each theater.

JOSEPH MALOY.

The association appointed a committee, headed by Aaron Saperstein, president, which is to call on Mayor Cermak on his return to the city Monday from a week-end trip. The committee is to ask the ouster of Joseph Malloy, chief examiner of applicants for operators' licenses and brother of Thomas Maloy, business agent of the union. Both Maloys are under indictment for conspiracy and fraud in connection with the operation of the union.

Want Inquiry Started.

The committee is also to call on State's Attorney Swanson to demand that an investigation of the union ruling compelling them to use two operators be coupled with the conspiracy case. Attorney Theodore Levin, representing the association, was instructed to prepare a petition for an injunction to restrain the union from picketing or overt acts. The petition is to be filed at the first indication of trouble.

At the same time union officials entrenched themselves for a long fight. Maloy left for New York to confer with the national union. Officials refused to discuss the possibility of a state or national sympathy strike, declaring such a move had not been considered. They hinted an action will be begun by their attorneys, the law firm of Nash & Ahern, to hold the movie owners for breach of contract in the allegation the owners had contracted to employ two operators until Jan. 10.

Expects 50 More to Close.

The owners' association predicted 50 more theaters in Cook, Lake and Du Page counties will join in the general shutdown. The association has 204 members in the county, of which 54 are large enough to employ two operators, said W. A. Steffes, representative of the national association, coöperating with the local group.

"We cannot reveal the additional theaters as they have not given the union notice of their stand," Steffes said. "However, those to join will give their operators two weeks' pay as notice Sunday night and close at that time. I expect all of the remaining 50 to stand with us."

Hint at Nonunion Labor.

The demand for the ouster of Joseph Maloy was seen as pointing toward employment of nonunion labor. Because of Maloy's connection with the union through his brother, owners feel they could not get licenses for nonunion operators.

"At this time we are not fighting union labor," Saperstein said. "We are fighting against unnecessary help as demanded by the operators' union. If the fight is long the owners may reopen and operate the machines themselves or get other help."

The operators' union is known as one of the strongest in Chicago. Until a year ago when Leo Brothers, convicted slayer of Alfred Lingle, was given a card, no card had been issued for 14 years. During that time many operators were given temporary permits.

Other Houses to Close.

The names of four theaters not on Thursday's list of those to close were released by the association. They are: The Ray, 2638 East 75th street; the Ray and Ritz of Berwyn, and the Vilas of Cicero.

A phone call, purporting to be made by Ed Selig, owner of the Gem theater, 650 South State street, announcing his theater was erroneously listed with those to close and declared the association to be a racketeer group, was received at THE TRIBUNE. The caller gave his phone number for verification. Investigation revealed the number to be that of the operators' union.

Selig denied making the call, declaring he was with the association in its stand to close.

MR. AMBLE GETS RID OF HIS NOTE; NOW HE'S JAILED

Thomas Amble, 6726 Glenwood avenue, was tendered a bogus $10 bill by one of the guests of the Glenwood Apartment hotel, which he manages. Mr. Amble was furious. It was not the $10 so much as the realization that he had been duped that grieved him.

Mr. Amble pondered his predicament for several days, and then a remedy suggested itself. Somebody had passed a phony $10 bill upon Mr. Amble, so why shouldn't he pass it upon somebody else.

Three times he tried to get rid of that spurious note, but his intended victims were too astute for him. One of them went so far as to make a memorandum of the serial number. This he reported, together with Mr. Amble's name, to Capt. Thomas J. Callahan, head of the United States secret service.

The fourth time Mr. Amble passed the bill.

Mr. Amble told his story simply and frankly to United States Commissioner Walker yesterday. Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West declared that such an attitude was hardly consistent with guilt, but that under the law there was nothing the commissioner could do but hold the defendant to the grand jury. The commissioner did, in bond of $2,500, and Mr. Amble, not being able to raise bail, went to jail.

TWO HELD IN $10,000 BONDS.

Judge John J. Rooney in the Felony court yesterday held Daniel Prendergast, 33 years old, and Edgar Cortner, 30 years old, to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 each on charges of robbery.

RECEIVERS FILE DEPOSIT CLAIMS IN CLOSED BANKS

Nelson Tells Swanson of Co-operation.

Ernest Ridgeway, receiver for the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, and R. C. Sullivan, receiver for the Inland-Irving National bank, announced yesterday that they have started filing claims of depositors.

"We are making progress on the collection of money due the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank," Mr. Ridgeway said. "All claims must be filed by Oct. 31."

Mr. Sullivan stated yesterday that the filing of claims of the Inland-Irving bank's 40,000 depositors will take three months. "We have already started collections on the bank's loans," said Mr. Sullivan, "and next week we shall start liquidating the bank's assets. Any action taken by the receiver, however, will in no way hurt the reorganization plans of the committee which is seeking to reopen the bank. Plans for the reorganization are in the hands of a committee headed by William L. Runzel.

Nelson to Coöperate.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson in a letter to State's Attorney Swanson, made public yesterday, expressed his willingness to coöperate with the grand jury in its investigation of the banking situation.

"The July grand jury for Cook county publicly recommended that you continue inquiries into the closing of state banks," said the letter. "I take this means of calling to your attention the fact that in every instance where irregularities have been found by the state auditor the evidence has been given to the state's attorney for use in criminal prosecutions. Of equal importance, the state auditor has proceeded to recover every dollar that could be recovered of any funds wrongfully taken from the banks.

"In most instances where state banks have closed, the officers and directors of the bank made almost superhuman efforts to protect the depositors through rehabilitation of their banks. General conditions over which these officers have no control have been responsible for their inability to convert their assets into cash.

"I will be pleased to appear before the grand jury to give you any information which may be in my possession relating to the subject in hand and to assist you in every possible way."

Reorganization Goes Ahead.

W. H. Vanderploeg, president of the Washington Park National bank, which closed on June 8, yesterday expressed satisfaction with the progress of the efforts to reorganize the bank and reopen it under the name of the Park National Bank and Trust company.

"The reorganization committee is now functioning at the bank," Mr. Vanderploeg stated. "A great many of the depositors of the old bank are coming in and making application to go into the new bank. The success of the plan, of course, is dependent upon the coöperation of the depositors."

Auditor Nelson yesterday filed bills for the dissolution of the corporate existence of three more banks—the Lyons State, Berwyn State, and Immel State banks.

Depositors' Committee Meets.

A united depositors' committee representing twenty-two closed banks met last night in the Den Norski café, 2721 West North avenue, and heard the outlines of several plans designed to aid depositors in getting the maximum return from the assets of the institutions.

One suggestion, made by Roland W. Erickson, representing the Boulevard State Savings bank depositors, involves heavy financial aid from the state of Illinois. He urged legislation to establish an intermediate credit bank to take over all the assets of the closed banks and to pay the depositors 80 per cent of their claims. The intermediate credit bank would obtain the cash through a bond issue of a hundred million dollars or more guaranteed by the state and, after paying it out, would liquidate the assets slowly.

An alternative plan having some similar features was brought forward by Thomas Bell, representing the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank depositors. The seventy-five representatives present were asked to present the plans to their own depositors' committees. A later meeting is to decide definitely on the plan believed to be best suited to the conditions.

POLICE CRACK SILENCE WALL IN SHOOTING OF FIVE N. Y. CHILDREN

New York, Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The police today broke through the wall of silence which surrounded the shooting of five children a week ago Tuesday.

ANTHONY TROBINO

A young Italian, whose name they withhold and whose person they are carefully guarding, came through with a detailed story of the crime. He named three of the four men in the car and supplied part of the number of the sedan they drove.

His story, dovetailing closely with information supplied yesterday by Anthony Trabino, the intended target of the shots, brought police to the point where they feel they soon will dispel the notion that Sicilian murders cannot be solved.

Their informant has promised to lead a detective to where Vincent Coll, Bronx racketeer, is in hiding. The three men known to have been in the car are members of the Coll mob, which has been warring for the Harlem narcotic trade with a rival organization headed by "One Eye" Rock and Joseph Rao, with whom Trabino was affiliated.

The men who fired the shots at Trabino, according to the new witness, are "Trigger Mike" Catolo, a Coll henchman with a long record of arrests, and two other members of the Coll gang, known as Louis and Grecco. the fourth man, at the wheel of the car, was not known to the informant.

INDICT MAYOR OF NEW ORLEANS FOR TRUST VIOLATION

New Orleans, La., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Orleans parish grand jury late today indicted Mayor T. S. Walmsley, returning two bills charging violation of the law of investing city trust funds and failure to have the books of the funds properly kept.

GEN. T. SEMMES WAMSLEY. [Acme Photo.]

Notified at city hall of the indictments, the mayor drove immediately to the Criminal courts building and submitted himself to authorities. He was released on two bonds of $500 each.

"I have nothing to say at this time, but I may have later," the mayor said, as he left.

U. S. COMPLETES ITS EVIDENCE AT DIAMOND TRIAL

Many Witnesses Tell of Booze Trade.

New York, Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The government rested its case today against Jack [Legs] Diamond and his chief henchman, Paul Quattrocchi, for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law and the defense got haltingly under way.

The closing of the prosecution followed a long procession of witnesses from the glens of the Catskill mountains. They had testified for two and a half days concerning the liquor situation in Greene county with specific references to its conquest by Diamond. They told the story from the beginning to the end.

They started with Diamond's appearance in Cairo a year ago; his organization of truck drivers and assistants; his persuasion of several citizens to sell beer for him, and finally the extent to which his territory had been enlarged.

Innkeepers on Stand.

Slow spoken, sandy haired inkeepers came down from the murmuring pines and hemlocks to recount their beer sales for Diamond.

Others spoke of the unregistered still which Diamond is charged with having established in a barn on the Hanna farm on the outskirts of Cairo. Merchants, telephone operators, soda water salesmen, hardware purveyors and a young plumber with the picturesque name of Leonard Ben Greco all contributed their paragraphs to the story of crime and deception compiled by the government.

The defense opened abruptly and without any preliminary address to the jury after Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins, before whom the trial is being conducted, had reserved decision on the usual motions to dismiss.

Witnesses from Hospitals.

Two witnesses, messengers from Polyclinic and Manhattan General hospital, were put on the stand with records to show that Diamond had been continuously confined in those institutions, under treatment for bullet wounds sustained in the Hotel Monticello, from Oct. 12 to Dec. 31.

MYSTERY WOMAN CAUSES ARREST IN MURDER CASE

Edward Barnes, 27 years old, was arrested by the Gary police yesterday after a woman who presented Chief of Police Stanley Bucklind with credentials showing she was a deputy prosecutor at Lima, O., asserted he was a suspect in a murder case there. The murder mentioned was that of Miss Thelma Woods and Earl Truesdale, whose bodies were found in a quarry.

At Lima, however, the authorities asserted the woman was not a deputy prosecutor and that Barnes was not wanted in connection with the murder. Chief Bucklind decided to hold Barnes for the night to find out the reason for the reports. Barnes, who has been living at 1209 Garfield street, Gary, asserted he knew nothing about the murder and would waive extradition.

GIRL, 14, SWIMS ACROSS NIAGARA; SETS NEW RECORD

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Fourteen year old Mary Bell of Port Dalhousie, Ont., made swimming history yesterday when she climbed down from the boat landing on the United States side of the Niagara river, not far below Niagara falls, and swam across to the Maid of the Mist landing on the Canadian side.

She is the first girl to swim the dangerous waters below the falls. She set a new record for the trip, crossing in ten minutes, a minute faster than the record made by William (Red) Hill, veteran Niagara riverman.

Mary revealed that she made the swim on a dare from the crew of the boat, Maid of the Mist, of which her father is the engineer. She has been swimming since she was five.

New South Wales Cuts Pay of State Employes

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Both houses of the legislature today passed a measure reducing from 5 1-3 to 33 1-3 per cent the salaries of all government employés earning from $1,000 to $7,500 a year.

BENJ. PEPOS HAS SOME LUCK, BUT IT DOESN'T LAST

Benjamin Pepos, owner of a rooming house at 52 West Erie street, had put a sizeable bet on Torch Fire in the seventh race at Hawthorne yesterday, and when the horse won at long odds he collected $2,000 in the Smoke Shop, 1036 North State street, he told the Chicago avenue police.

But as he walked out the front door with a woman whom he had met in the place, and whose name he did not know, three men armed with revolvers stopped him. They took not only his $2,000 but also his coupe, parked at the curb. The woman disappeared while the robbery was in progress.

Sergt. Edward Bezarek found the Smoke Shop closed when he arrived there to investigate after hearing Pepos' story. The police are seeking the owner.

SLAIN BY GARY POLICE.

Garfield Earl, 35 years old, a Negro recently paroled from the Indiana state reformatory, was killed by Gary police yesterday during a raid on a house which they suspected was the hiding place of Earl and seven companions sought in connection with a series of holdups.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE INSOLVENCY OF CITIES.

The present financial difficulties of Chicago's local governments are nothing about which to rejoice, but there is some comfort, perhaps, to be found in the knowledge that they are not unique. Large and small cities all over the country are experiencing much the same difficulty in collecting the amounts levied.

A few days ago the Rockford Register-Republic concluded from "the temper of Rockford's property holders" that public interest in tax matters was something more than academic. Demands for tax reform and lessened expenditure were interpreted as "signs of a taxpayers' rebellion."

The Detroit News finds "that in a number of the counties of Michigan upwards of half of the taxes have not been collected; in some of the townships considerably more than half are delinquent. It is a serious and unprecedented state of affairs. A study of tax delinquency shows that the rural population is defaulting less than town and city property owners . . . but in thousands of cases these sturdy home owners are defaulting. Their abhorrence of debt and their ingrained sense of the necessity of supporting government give way before the terrific demands of taxation."

If the full facts were known we have no doubt that something resembling Chicago's plight could be found in many and perhaps most of the large cities of the country (excepting, of course, Milwaukee). Chicago's situation is more difficult than that of the rest because few cities, if any, have suffered in recent years from misgovernment as Chicago has. At the same time the breakdown in the assessing machinery in Chicago with the resultant two years' interim between tax collections tended to destroy the habit of tax payment. Other cities suffered from the advancing costs of government, but no other great city in recent years has suffered a parallel collapse of its revenue machinery.

Because Chicago's difficulty is most acute, it is altogether probable that Chicago will be the leader among the many cities seeking financial stability and soundness. That is Chicago's traditional rôle among American cities. A generation ago Chicago was first to obtain a city plan. Today it is two years ahead of New York and the rest in combating the gangs.

The solution of the city's financial difficulties may prove complicated as to detail, but the general outlines are readily perceived, and they will have to be followed by states and nations as well as by other cities. There must, in the first place, be a marked retrenchment in government expenditures which will bring outlay below income and reduce income to a figure within the capacity and willingness of the taxpayers to pay. Secondarily there may be need of a revision of the revenue system to restore a steady flow of income to the public treasury. The governor's commission is making progress toward bringing about a reduction of expenditures and may produce an acceptable program for revenue legislation. There is reason to think that Chicago will be well on the road to financial stability when other communities are still up to the hubcaps in mud.

CRIMES OF VOLSTEAD ENFORCEMENT.

The prohibition district of Buffalo has produced another aspect of Volstead enforcement. A girl, whose name is mercifully concealed in a pseudonym, was brought into the city court, charged with drunkenness. A man companion, charged with intoxication and the use of profanity, was fined. He was revealed as a prohibition agent, and the girl, it was disclosed, had been hired by the federal enforcers as an investigator. It was pleaded for her that she had become intoxicated getting evidence. The two were arrested following an automobile accident which had been caused by their drinking.

Allen S. Bartlett, the head of the prohibition office in Buffalo, issued an order prohibiting further use of women in obtaining evidence and said he did not know the practice had been so general, but added: "It has never been condoned except in one instance. Then it was impossible to get evidence in any other way."

Prohibition has put the United States in some queer business, such as man killing and contributing to the delinquency of girls. In the case of Jacob Hanson, killed, and this "Ruth Callahan," demoralized, the Buffalo district has had two outstanding examples. In each case the crime of enforcement was worse than any possible offense under the Volstead act against which the enforcement was supposedly directed.

Volstead is just such a law as will produce turpitude in administration. Error being inherent in its purpose, depravity is unescapable in the execution of it. To common feeling and sentiment such debauchery of a young girl is of greater moral turpitude than the violation of prohibition of which she was to obtain evidence because it is given the sanction of law.

The advocates of prohibition have condoned so much irregularity, such disregard of law and of rights, that the excesses of enforcement have merit instead of condemnation. An unenforceable law, which has less and less general acceptance with the passage of time, is in itself provocative of disorders. The more it fails of public approval the more wretched the conditions of its administration become. It necessarily is a corrupting force, demoralizing to the agents employed, and when a pretentious morality indorses the methods the social injuries are complete. This episode in American history will run its course. It will be an amazing one when it is all in retrospect, an exhibit in moral hysteria.

GOOD POLICE WORK.

The police officers who handled the eviction disturbance the other day deserve commendation. In a very difficult situation they acted with firmness and as much moderation as the circumstances permitted. That lives were lost and serious injuries incurred was no fault of theirs. Bad judgment or lack of self-control would have precipitated worse results. These officers met a severe test in a way highly creditable to them and the police department and reassuring to the community.

THE SAD ISLANDERS.

The American islands in the Caribbean are full of reproaches and complaint. Some of these people were purchased by the United States. They were sold into American jurisdiction. Others were taken over by conquest. Porto Rico was taken by an army to which the natives were not unfriendly. The Virgin islands were dollar goods. Neither people had anything to say about it. Their fate was determined in treaties in which they had no part. The Danes sold one set and the Spanish were compelled to part with the other.

Whatever may be said in explanation or extenuation of it the islanders are in a fair way of being ruined under American administration. The United States, for one thing, extended its sumptuary laws over them. It is a droll injustice to buy people and then ruin them by fastening an alien moral code on them when that code is causing political turmoil at home. Americans can't make it work, but they impose it on people whom they have bought as chattels.

Wet islands under other administration are close to the American islands and enforcement of the Volstead act has resulted only in destroying native industry which used cane for rum manufacture and did a trade in it with people who had no moral objections to its use. It is a reproach to the United States that it will take territory and make itself a calamity to the inhabitants. It would be cleaner justice to allow the people to ruin themselves in their own way, if ruined they must be. If the United States cannot administer affairs without injuring people who have no remedy of their own it would much better clear out.

UNCLE SAM IN THE BARBERRY BUSHES.

Sturdy young field workers of the U. S. department of agriculture are digging up bushes of the common barberry or killing them with salt on private grounds around Chicago. The common barberry is host to rust spores which are carried into the wheat. The Japanese barberry is free from the disease and may be used for decoration, but Berberis vulgaris is an outlaw.

The state and the counties are supposed to take care of the Canada thistle, another pest, but Uncle Sam digs up the barberry bush, and an odd uncle he is when you step back twenty feet and observe him with a spade on Citizen Smith's patch of grass eliminating the error from the shrubbery.

Mr. Jefferson might remark to Mr. Hamilton: "Who is this person?" Even Mr. Hamilton might well reply: "I don't recognize him." He is the uncle who sends you nasturtium seeds and cookbooks. In New York he is disturbed because the citizens are buying wine in bricks. Father may come home with a half brick of Burgundy or send Willie over to the store for a quarter's worth of claret. Uncle is subsidizing the making of the brick, but he is perplexed. He has an eye on the dinner table, and this brick may be as much an outlaw with the citizen's roast beef as the common barberry is at the edge of his lawn.

It is conceivable that a citizen on his way home might be persuaded to stop for just one more brick and later wake up the neighborhood by yodeling on the front porch. Vintage bricks come of Uncle Sam getting into the barberry bushes. Hiram Johnson of California saw him there and put him in the waterworks business out in California. He also was put in the wheat and cotton business, but he can't sell what he bought.

It is feared the old gentleman has become a little balmy. He's likely to be found out in the clothes yard of a Monday, with clothes pins in his mouth, hanging up the wash. He can be asked in to mind the children and will dig dandelions or weed the garden. He is good for a bit of change anywhere he's found. He will sing bass, turn the grindstone and dig bait.

Editorial of the Day

[Columbus Dispatch.]

An article in Science by Frank E. Lutz, curator of the department of insect life in the American Museum of Natural History, entitled "Insects vs. People," will be taken by most people as a welcome reassurance, after reading the stories that have recently appeared from other writers about the danger of the human race being starved in a world swept of vegetation by swarms of voracious insects suddenly produced by some turn in their life conditions.

Insects do not coöperate, and a descent by them en masse upon man is inconceivable. On the contrary, they are constantly at war among themselves, and scientific control of insect pests depends upon this fact and man's ability to turn an insect enemy loose upon an insect pest.

But Mr. Lutz's article is chiefly interesting and reassuring in that he takes the case of "Insects vs. People" and shows that insects, in spite of the fact that many of them damage vegetation on which man depends for food, on the whole contribute to the process of vegetation far more than the damage they do to man's agricultural operations.

The agency that flying insects take in pollenation of blossoms that are not self-pollenating is obvious, but Mr. Lutz goes into the vast ramification of this work of the insects and shows that we are indebted to this insect work for vast numbers of species and varieties of plants that are of value to man.

Most people are familiar with the work of earth worms in making that thin layer of the surface of the ground which we call the soil such that it will support vegetation; but Mr. Lutz shows that earth beetles and other ground insects are vastly more beneficial in preparing the soil than are the ordinary earth worms. Indeed, in view of the fact that all man's food comes from the soil, insects would seem to be man's sine qua non.

HARD TIMES ARE HEALTHFUL TIMES.

As a rule, the death rate drops in hard times. This rather surprising result has been noted in this country and in Europe during several periods of stress due to war or to other causes. The reason is that on the average we eat too much, and have obesity or some other manifestation of overfeeding. In hard times we indulge our appetite less and reap the benefits. If times are too hard, we run into danger at the other end of the line. The consumption rate runs up and men suffer from hunger edema and other manifestations of prolonged undernourishment.

The chief fault in the American diet in time of plenty is the excessive amount of sugar it contains. Our per capita consumption of sugar is three times that of France and two and a half times that of Germany. What is more important, it was increasing steadily up to the time the "good times balloon" exploded. In consequence, we are supposed to have a million diabetics, and nine-tenths of the people over 40 years of age are too fat for good health or for efficient work.

Some part of the excessive use of sugar goes into the manufacture of alcoholic beverages in illegal plants, a method that is wasteful of the raw product. Most of it is consumed as sweet drinks and desserts. We acquire a sweet tooth and thereafter we use sugar as a flavor or condiment. This artificially acquired taste makes plain drinks and unsweetened foods taste flat.

Dr. Stone says excessive use of sugar not only gives us a perverted taste, threatens everybody with diabetes and consequent gangrene, and mires us in our own fat, but it is responsible for considerable eczema and many boils and ulcers, and lays the foundation for much of what we call arthritis. If a man has chronic arthritis, eczema, ulcers, or boils, and he does not know which way to turn, he might experiment for a while with a low sugar diet. Since a person on a low sugar diet tends to increase his consumption of starchy foods, the man who is trying out the low sugar diet must be careful to hold down his allowance of bread, cereals, potatoes, beans, peas, and corn.

Dr. Wilder makes a good point in an article on reducing. He says that the dieting should be continued until new food habits have been established. If a man discontinues dieting before he loses his sweet tooth he will put on excess weight about as fast as he took it off.

The objection to the overuse of sugars applies to all of them. Molasses and brown sugars contain minerals that white sugars are without, but there are better sources for these food elements. Fruit sugars and honey are likely to be associated with useful vitamins and salts, but there are other good sources of these and the sugar itself has essentially the same qualities as cane or beet sugar. The one advantage of fruits as a source of sugar is that they do not contain much of it.

IT IS HARMLESS.

Miss J. G. writes: Does the juice of half a lemon, taken in a glass of water every morning and night aid constipation? Is it harmful in any way?

REPLY.

MAY BE RAYNAUD'S DISEASE.

Mrs. D. S. writes: My daughter is 17. Every time she goes swimming the two middle fingers on both hands become lifeless. That is, she loses power in them and they become white. They remain that way for a half hour. Have tried rubbing and pinching them, but nothing happens.

What would you recommend? Why does she get that way?

REPLY.

COLLECTING BILL.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some eighteen months ago I had a rooming house and one of the roomers left owing me $82.50. Is there any way I can collect same without advancing any money? If so, will you please advise me through your column?

K. D. D.

One course would be to place your claim in the hands of an attorney for collection on a contingent fee. You can expect to encounter some difficulty in finding an attorney who would be willing to advance the court costs, if that is what you have in mind. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNDER SURVEILLANCE.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—I am a taxpaying citizen and own property. Next door to me there is a candy store owned and operated by a noncitizen who is maintaining a public nuisance. This candy store is used as a hangout by young hoodlums, who, when drunk, become most annoying to women, and they damage the neighboring property by breaking down fences, etc. They keep singing, quarreling and drinking at all hours of the night, much to the discomfort of my tenants. What steps must I take to stop this? J. K.

The officers report that they interviewed the owner of the candy store complained of and she stated that she had loaned some money to a woman who lives in the adjoining building and that she had asked her for the return of the money and in turn this woman called the police to get the boys away from the store and in all probability this is the cause for this complaint. Ford squads, large squads, foot men and citizen dress men have been instructed to pay particular attention to this candy store and should they find any hoodlums around there to take proper action.

JOHN H. ALCOCK,

AUTO LICENSES.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend bought a car about three weeks ago. He paid the finance company for the state and city license. The other evening he was arrested for not having his licenses. My friend showed the bill of sale, which stated that both licenses were paid for. Who pays the fine, the finance company or my friend? R. G.

He must pay it in the first instance. He can recover it from the finance company if he can show that it is attributable to their failure to carry out their agreement.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE-LINE: One of your contributors wondered whether any pupils were still living who went to the Dearborn school before the fire of 1871. I am one. It was a two story frame building with an iron fence around it. We came to Chicago Oct. 16, 1855. When I went to the Dearborn school to enroll the principal asked me where I had gone previously and I told her the Clark school in New York. She asked me what studies I had taken and I told her algebra, astronomy, German, and every Friday afternoon we had been taught embroidering, painting, and drawing. She said, "Why, child, you are rather young for such studies," and I told her I was the youngest girl in the class in the east. Later I attended the Kinzie and Franklin schools. The latter was then at Division and Sedgwick.

HANNAH SIMON.

In 1882, riding along the south shore on the I. C. trains to Stony Island avenue, you saw on both sides of the track wide slews filled with flowers and ferns. From Paxton avenue to Cregier were heavy woods on each side. The old Seipp home opposite the Jeffery avenue station was the only house.

At this time the Van Buren street station was a small red octagonal building which you reached on a cinder path across present Grant park and climbed up on to the cars.

In 1888 there was a small shipbuilding yard north of 16th street. The S. S. Alfred Booth was then in process of construction for the A. Booth Fisheries company. DUN.

In the winter months of 40 years ago the street car company put straw on the car floors so the passengers could keep their feet warmer. There was no heat except a small hard coal stove into which the conductor at rare intervals placed a small shovelful of coal. At bridges and viaducts a tow horse helped the two regular car horses pull the car up the incline.

Drivers sat outside in big clumsy buffalo robes on a small wooden seat. They had to get off every once in a while to clean the snow and ice clogged on the horses' hoofs. Occasionally the car went off the track and all passengers got out and helped push while the horses pulled it back. We are still complaining of our transportation. WADE.

THERE SHOULD BE A GATHERING PLACE.

There should be a gathering place
For shades of love ill-fated,
Where one might go and finally learn
How uselessly one waited.

Learn of ghastly errors.
Though love's shabbiness were bared—
Daylight has no terrors.

Only do these maddening hopes
Secret lie between us.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 8, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Dario Resta won the world's 100 mile speed championship at Speedway park by driving his French Peugeot 100 miles at an average speed of 102.3 miles per hour. His time was 58 minutes and 54 seconds.

DES MOINES, Ia.—As 7,000 persons packed the grand stand on the new one mile speedway to witness the 300 mile auto Derby, they saw Joe Cooper catapult over the rim of the saucer while going at a speed of 100 miles an hour in his Sebring. He was killed and his mechanician, Lewis Piel, was severely injured. With only 60 miles left to go, "Billy" Chandler blew a tire and his Duesenberg crashed through the wire fence at the "pole" and turned turtle. He was picked up for dead, but was revived. His mechanician, Maurice Keller, died several hours later in the hospital. The race was won by Ralph Mulford.

CHICAGO.—Johnny Evers, former idol of Chicago baseball fans and now captain and star of the Boston Braves, announced at the close of the National league games in Chicago that he is going to quit baseball because of ill health and the roasting he has been receiving as a result of a row on the ballfield at Pittsburgh.

AUGUST 8, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Bespattered with decayed eggs and pursued by a shouting, angry crowd, two followers of Dowie fled through the streets of South Chicago last evening and only by the aid of a friendly motorman of the Calumet Electric line were they able to escape. The supposed recognition by the crowd of one of the men as Henry Christensen, who had allowed his wife and child to suffer from burns, which later proved fatal to the former, without calling for medical assistance, caused the hostile movement on the part of a surrounding throng.

MILWAUKEE.—An organization of Republicans which has for its object the defeat of Gov. La Follette for renomination and the eliminating from the party platform of the declaration in favor of the primary election law was formed here.

PITTSBURGH.—Each side to the great steel strike claims gains. While the Amalgamated association closed the plant at Newcastle, the combine practically broke the strike at the Clark mill in this city.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Architect Henry Ives Cobb will leave for Chicago tomorrow morning for the purpose of inspecting the work on the Chicago postoffice and to hurry matters as much as possible.

AUGUST 8, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The day at the executive mansion has probably been the quietest since President Garfield was shot, despite the fact that for a time a rise in his temperature caused some alarm. Physicians consulted on a proposal to use an electric probe in an endeavor to locate the bullet and it is probable this will be done. At midnight the President was sleeping quietly without morphia. In the meantime his assailant, Charles J. Guiteau, maintains his cheerful demeanor in jail and enjoys excellent health. Gen. Crocker, the warden, denies that Guiteau is kept informed of the President's condition.

DETROIT.—Obsequies for the late ex-Gov. John J. Bagley took place today and were of a most imposing character. Excursion trains were run on all Michigan railroads centering here and hundreds of representative men from all sections of the state assembled to pay their last respects to the most popular governor Michigan ever had. The Rev. T. B. Forbush, formerly of Chicago, delivered a brief funeral address and a funeral oration was spoken by Chief Justice Marston of the Supreme court.

CHICAGO.—Joseph Knox, well known attorney, died at his home, 535 West Adams street. He was born in Blandford, Mass., in 1805, and came to Chicago in 1860 from Rock Island county, Ill., where he had lived for twenty-three years. For four years he was state's attorney of Cook county, being succeeded by his partner, Charles H. Reed.

AN EXPERIENCE WITH THE LAW.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—The writer has read and heard a great deal about the miscarriage of justice in our courts as practiced by some of our judges, but had never realized the truth of these statements until today, when I had the sad experience of being the complainant in a larceny case before Judge Borelli. In May, 1930, I was called to one of our establishments and was informed by the chef that the colored porter, who had worked with him had just emptied the cash register of the money and ran away. I attempted to locate the porter, and in June discovered that he was employed on one of the Goodrich steamers. I swore out a warrant for his arrest, and upon my arrival on the steamer with officers and the warrant the man evidently had been tipped off prior to our arrival and we could not locate him. Since then I have spent much time and close to $200 in trying to get the man. During these months of vigil I have been approached by different people at different times who claimed they were friends of the man and asked me to drop the case and that I would be reimbursed with the amount stolen. I refused, and I informed them that I would not rest until that man was brought to justice, regardless as to the length of time or the money it would take to get him.

Finally, yesterday, we located our man and arrested him. On the way to the detective bureau I asked him why he had stolen the money. He informed me in the presence of the arresting officers that he intended returning it. This morning he was brought before Judge Borelli and the judge asked him if he had taken the money. He told the judge that the chef took it and that the chef gave him one-half. Nothing was said about the defendant running away after the crime was committed.

The verdict was, "Discharged without prosecution." I do not know what is meant by such verdict, but I do know that our sixteen months' effort and expense to bring this man to justice was a waste of time and money. There is no justice as long as the doors to a judge's chambers are open to the "big parade," who go to and from and hold secret sessions with judges behind closed doors.

In the future when we are robbed there will be no more warrants sworn out. We will take the law into our own hands, and we will be brought before Judge Borelli, who will pronounce "Discharged without prosecution."

Iron Mountain, Mich., Aug. 4.—I think I can supply the missing lines in Mr. Taylor's poem and relieve his mind as to the missing lines. He was correct as to the nationality. As I remember it, the poem is:

"Ten thousand Swedes went through the weeds,
Chased by one Norwegian.
The dust from the weeds made snuff for the Swedes
And they captured Copenhagen."

TAXES AND DEPRESSION.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—High taxes breed doubt are an extortionate burden to ordinary folk, but it appears in vain to assume them in colossal degree responsible for economic depression.

Taxes are paid out by the governments. Every business activity gets some return by selling to those who directly or indirectly have received tax money to buy with. And it makes little difference to the national economy who does the buying, so long as such buying maintains its volume.

The idea that economically profitable buying is generated by large amounts only, or promotive individuals, appears equally untenable. The wealthy farmer is scarcely enticed to buy more land nor grow more wares under present conditions, no more than the steel mill is put up more buildings, add more machinery, and employ more men. Thus, high or low, are a negligible item in such affairs. Nobody will produce except for buyers and profits.

Buyers are the need of the economic world. It should be apparent to everybody that fluid wealth, buying capacity and activity, have gotten into hands which economically do not replace the hands that let go of it. To assume that the economically unprofitable hands which have absorbed the buying capacity would use savings in taxes to general economic advantage, by making things that people can't buy, rather strains the imagination. J. W. SMITH.

CORNERS.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Writing on the recent low in wheat, your reporter quotes Mr. Williams in Saturday's paper as having said that Joseph Leiter cornered the market in May, 1898. If I remember aright, the only one to successfully corner the wheat market was Hutchinson. In order to verify this, I went to the library, but was unable to find the book I wanted. Nevertheless, I seem to remember that old P. D. Armour was successful in breaking Leiter's attempt at a corner in December wheat, away back in 1897. Now, if this is so, how could Leiter come right back and corner May wheat? Maybe some of the old traders of those days can put me straight on this. K. A.

FLOWER OF THORNS

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and exile of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. She opens a hot dog stand on the Dixie highway. The estate of Winstead, of carpetbagging stock, adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, is a great help to Sally, although she doesn't know his real identity until the stand is successfully started. Sally falls in love with Lowndes Hastings. Sam forces Lowndes to admit in front of Sally that he is engaged to the wealthy Gertrude Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she doesn't love him. Sally becomes Sam's wife in name only. Sam gives Oakleigh back to Sally as a wedding present. The night of the wedding Sally's grandmother dies. Sally collapses and is brought to Winstead's while she is still unconscious. When she recovers Sam tells her that he is going abroad and when he returns she can sue him for divorce.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

DISCOVERING HENRY.

It was Sally's custom to go over Oakleigh at intervals, opening all the closed rooms, letting in air and sunlight. Moses, who with Affie still lived in his old cabin close to "the big house," was always grotesquely glad to see Miss Sally.

Today he opened all doors and windows as Sally directed, and built fires in the great chimneys. The old house wore the expectant air of waiting for its own to come home to it. There was no slightest sign of neglect, but Sally thought she perceived in the rooms a vast aching loneliness, as though Oakleigh knew and lamented that the Rutherfords were all gone.

There was a small room off the library which grandpapa had used for a private office, a sort of intimate den. A pastel of grandmamma, in her youth, was between the two windows. There was a shabby old wing chair, a leather covered lounge, a small square table, and the large bookcase desk that had been his own grandfather's. This last was a beautiful piece of mahogany, and it had always fascinated Sally when she was a child. She had always loved to finger his books, to see the quaint side panel just above the desk portion swing silently open when grandpapa pressed the cunningly concealed spring. She had forgotten it until that moment. She pressed the spring. There might be some old letters there yet. There were. Old bills, receipts, bank notices. A small packet held with an elastic with the draft of a letter in grandpapa's writing; that fine, scholarly, easy to read writing that was so characteristic. She picked it up, smoothed it out, and read:

Dear Winstead: I know you've always disapproved and opposed my speculations, and I have to admit you've been right several times—I lost out, when if I'd taken your advice I shouldn't have to appeal to you for further help now. But, really, all I need is a short ladder to help me climb out of the hole I've gotten myself into. What I'm engaged in now is perfectly sure to bring great results—in fact, to clear off the slate. No, I shan't tell you anything more about it, for I want to crow over you when I win—as I'm bound to, all your dismal warnings and croakings notwithstanding! I know how generous you have been, the help you've already given me. You have practically bought my place under the name of the mortgage you advised me against making. But you admit you did so reluctantly, against what you termed common sense, and with the devil's own croaking. Now, can I get five thousand more from you as a last loan? I must have it, Winstead, to save myself. On my honor, this thing I'm trying is a most wonderful opportunity. It simply can't fail. I admit that I have no further collateral to offer, and I'm compelled to ask you to do this for me on my bare word—but I'm sure to win enough to pay you back, I hope and believe, in full.

With thanks for all your past kindnesses—even the warnings and remonstrances which I realize were meant for kindnesses, too. Yours, R——

Had he copied the letter? Had he meant to send this and changed his mind? She couldn't tell. The letter was dated within a month or so of his death.

With a steady hand his granddaughter opened and spread out the letters—there were only three—from Henry Winstead. Dry business letters. It evidently referred to conversations he had had with the colonel, and repeated his warnings against his neighbor's course, which, he feared, must end only in disaster. Since the colonel was determined to mortgage Oakleigh to procure the funds he wanted, Henry Winstead obliged him, he said, to enable him to feel that it was as safe as any property could be under a mortgage. He made the loans from his personal funds, he stated—strictly a private affair. He advised strongly against that certain real estate firm with which the colonel had already had dealings.

Sally stood there stricken, staring wanly. Henry Winstead had warned and sought to advise grandpapa, and even against his common sense had been the reckless colonel's friend. He hadn't taken advantage of grandpapa any more than—than—than his son had taken advantage of her.

"Please," she addressed Henry Winstead that night, as he was rising from the dinner table, "don't go yet. There is something I must say. Something you must hear."

"Something I must hear? Is it—about—Sam?" his voice was alarmed.

"No," she reassured him. "But something I must say to you—Cæsar, bring the coffee into the library, please."

Henry followed her wonderingly. When the coffee had been brought and the man servant gone, she turned to her father-in-law directly.

"Please—I want to apologize," said Sally.

"Eh?" Henry stared at her owlishly.

"Please, I have to apologize. I—did you a great injustice," said the child's granddaughter.

"I—I accused you . . . I . . . thought . . . you had taken unfair advantage of poor grandpapa. He wasn't a clever business man . . . and you are. I thought you . . . wanted Oakleigh. That you . . . had gotten it away from him . . . through some shrewd deal. . . . Taken advantage of his gullibleness. You see?"

"Why, my dear—I can't blame you for that! He was such a magnificent person, your grandfather. All that a man should be. How could you help admiring and believing in him? I admired him very much. I always have."

"Your son gave me Oakleigh as a gift, the night we were married—the night your grandmamma died," she told him, watching him.

He nodded, his eyes kindling.

"To give you Oakleigh must have made the boy very happy," said the father understandingly. "I added my . . . blessing to it."

"He told me I didn't know the Winsteads . . . and he was very angry because I hadn't been nice to you. You remember, when you came to speak to me, how I looked at you? How hateful I was?"

"You are not looking at me hatefully now, Sally," he reminded her.

Tears came to her eyes. She felt that she was really seeing Henry Winstead, and she thought, with confused admiration and astonishment, that he himself was a very fine gentleman, a generous and kindly gentleman!"

"I was over at Oakleigh today. It was when I was examining the room he liked to use as a private den—a little room behind the library—that I remembered his old desk had a queer little secret slide. He used to put away small gifts there for me to find. Today I remembered it. I thought there might be some letters of his there. There were. These." She handed him the letters she had found.

"He made a shorter copy of this and mailed it to me," Henry said disgustedly. "My dear child, I'm sorry you found it. It must have distressed you greatly."

"It did. I—Mr. Sinclair tried to make me understand, but I wouldn't listen. I could only understand that Oakleigh was lost, that you could take it from us. I thought that you had gotten it away from grandpapa."

"It was quite natural that you should think so," said Henry.

"When I told him that, your son asked me not to make him consider me a bad," she told him, simply.

"It doesn't sound like Sam. I am astonished." He made a distressed and fluttering motion of the hands to express his chagrin.

"You mustn't blame Sam! I won't have you blaming Sam! Nobody must blame Sam! I . . . he . . . you don't know all that he has borne, all that he has done for me!" she sharply exclaimed.

"Nothing that a man does for the woman he loves is or can ever be too much," said Henry, simply.

She stared at him. Her lips quivered. Of a sudden she began to cry.

In the agony of his pity, in his desire to comfort and console, Henry put his arm around her, murmuring soothing words. "Don't cry so, Sally! Darling girl, don't cry! It's all right . . . it's all right . . . everything is all right now, child." In her misery she clung to him. Strange that she should find consolation in Henry Winstead's fatherly arms! Her head lay against his breast.

"I have been so unhappy . . . so alone," she whispered. "O, stand by me . . . father." She used the holy word involuntarily as she clung to him. Father! Henry was so thrilled that he could have wept over her.

"Daughter, darling daughter! Sam's sweet girl! Of course I will stand by you! What else am I here for, Sally? Dear child, here's your father, your old father who longs only to make you happy! My sweet girl, try to remember that you have found your father, that I—thank God! have found my daughter tonight. We have found each other, Sally!" He kissed her on the forehead, but she raised her face, shyly, and with emotion that all but choked him Henry kissed her on the lips.

BY ROBERTA NANGLE.

For the price of a ticket to the Chicago theater this week you can forget about the heat and take a thrilling ocean voyage from New York to France. "Transatlantic," the feature picture on the bill, is a plotty piece that becomes, under the skillful direction of William K. Howard, a sort of "Grand Hotel" story against a nautical background.

And what a lavish and realistic background it is! The action begins with the sailing at midnight of a palatial liner. You see the passengers, all of whom look like the sophisticated travelers pictured in rotogravure sections, hurrying up the gangplank; you see tons of luggage shooting down into the ship; you see kaleidoscopic shots of the crowds waving farewell from the dock, and finally, through a porthole you glimpse the shadowy skyline of New York.

As soon as the gigantic boat begins cutting through the waves you become introduced to the characters whose conflicting ambitious create an exciting drama during the voyage. First of all there is Edmund Lowe, looking as John Barrymore used to look before age softened his classic profile, and behaving beautifully in the rôle of a mysterious and fascinating gambler. That rôle is made to order for Mr. Lowe and he plays it for all it is worth.

Then there is Greta Nissen, who, having learned English like a good girl, is now pleasant to the ear as well as to the eye. She plays a gold digging dancer and almost succeeds in stealing a banker from his devoted wife. Lois Moran is appropriately cast as a nice young thing whose honesty and innocence turn Mr. Lowe into a doer of kind deeds.

The story moves along at an exciting pace and winds up with an ending that will surprise you. The photography is excellent, and the sets have a luxurious touch that makes you think they were done at great expense. I think you'll find "Transatlantic" diverting and worthwhile.

"MERELY MARY ANN."

Produced by Fox.
Directed by Henry King.
Presented at McVicker's theater.
THE CAST.

Mary Ann ..... Janet Gaynor
John Lonsdale ..... Charles Farrell
Mrs. Leadbetter ..... Beryl Mercer
Rose Leadbetter ..... Lorna Balfour
Vicar Smedge ..... Arnold Lucy
First Drayman ..... J. M. Kerrigan
Second Drayman ..... Tom Whiteley
Peter Brooke ..... G. P. Huntley Jr.
Brahmson ..... Harry Rosenthal

Here are Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor in the romantic Cinderella story that their fans cry for. "Merely Mary Ann" isn't another "Seventh Heaven," but it's a pleasant bit of entertainment for persons who like to see dreams come true in the movies. Janet, in the title rôle, plays a friendless little slavey in an English rooming house wherein Mr. Farrell, cast as John Lonsdale, a temperamental musician, resides.

Mr. Lonsdale, we learn as things get going, lives there not because he likes the place or the landlady but because he owes a lot of back rent and can't go elsewhere. He has a high and mighty family somewhere in the background but, being a proud son of a gun, will accept no help from them. He's bent on carving out his own success as a composer. Eventually he does write on operetta, inspired by the little mite who listened to his music as she polished his boots.

Beryl Mercer, whose presence is an asset to any picture, provides some delightful comedy as the sly Cockney landlady of the rooming house. Miss Gaynor and Mr. Farrell have some of the touching, romantic scenes that sent them both to stardom, and there's a sprinkling of music and singing to round out the picture.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The engagement of Lady May Cambridge, whose name has been linked with that of the prince of Wales in countless engagement rumors, was officially announced this afternoon. She will marry Capt. Henry A. Smith of the Royal Horse Guards.

Lady May is the niece of Queen Mary and she has long been one of the most popular women associated with the court. She is a great-niece of the queen mother of Holland, and the daughter of the earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary, and Princess Alice, Countess Athlone.

The couple met when her father was governor general of South Africa, when Capt. Smith was a lieutenant. The circumstances are immediately recalled of the meeting between the prince of Wales and Lady May when he was on his hunting trip in Africa. They met before the prince's trip was interrupted through the illness of King George V.

The prince of Wales and Lady May Cambridge were often together. They appeared behind the king and queen at a recent ball at Buckingham palace.

New York, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Vivian Duncan's 5 months old daughter, Evelyn, over whose nationality there was considerable question recently because she was born in Germany, the child of a Swedish father and an American mother, was peacefully admitted to this country by immigration authorities today when Miss Duncan and her daughter arrived on the liner Paris. Miss Duncan is the wife of Nils Asther, movie actor.

$50,000 Gift for U. of C. in Dr. Penrose Will

Money to Be Devoted to Geology.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Specific bequests of more than $175,000 were made in the will of Dr. Richard Alexander Fullerton Penrose, who left the residue of his estate, valued at $1,000,000, to the American Philosophical society and the Geological Society of America.

Dr. Penrose, who was a noted geologist and a brother of the late Senator Boise Penrose, died last week. He was a bachelor.

The University of Chicago receives $50,000 to be used for the benefit of the Journal of Geology, of which Dr. Penrose was one of the editors for many years.

The Economic Geology Publishing company, incorporated in the District of Columbia, is given $25,000 to be used for the benefit of its journal.

Dr. Penrose left $25,000 to his secretary, Miss Marion L. Ivens, and $3,000 to the assistant secretary, Miss A. M. Feeney. All his servants also were remembered.

Dr. Penrose devised to his brother, Dr. Spencer Penrose of Colorado, his interest in the estates of their father and mother, and interest in certain Philadelphia real estate. Dr. Spencer Penrose is the sole survivor of four brothers who gained unusual distinction in various fields of endeavor.

Hoover's Birthday on Monday May Find Him at His Camp

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Circumstances have combined fortuitously for the celebration of Presidents' birthdays for the last ten years.

Calvin Coolidge had his on the 4th of July, and usually at some summer White House providing a cool and rustic retreat.

No holiday insured comparatively free birthdays for Herbert Hoover, but he might be called the week-end birthday President. His first in office fell on a Saturday, and he celebrated at Rapidan camp. His second fell on a Sunday, and he celebrated at Rapidan camp.

His third, next Monday, Aug. 10, may find him far from Washington's humidity—at Rapidan camp. If he follows his own precedent of the last two weeks it will be late Monday or even Tuesday morning before he gets back to his desk.

PETTICOATS RETURN TO PARIS FASHIONS; SLEEVES ARE WIDER

Several ankle length dinner frocks had black lace petticoats showing three inches below the hems, and afternoon dresses displayed skirts slit in the back to reveal colored foundations—but the remainder of the important dressmakers' displays stressed a modified mode for modern women.

Historical influence was evident, but this was limited chiefly to ornamentation and such details as tiny muffs, pellerine collars, and modified mutton leg sleeves. Street skirts continued ten and twelve inches from the ground. Formal afternoon dresses were six to eight inches from the floor. Hipilnes were moderately close fitting and without an exaggerated tightness.

The countess, here for a brief visit, and Bela Kun, who holds a minor post in the communist international, met by accident at an informal gathering at the home of a mutual acquaintance. They greeted each other politely with a perfunctory handshake, chatted a few minutes and then were swallowed up in separate groups at the gathering.

Count Karolyi, who came here with his wife, had left for the Balkans before the meeting took place and apparently did not see his old archenemy while he was here. Bela Kun, who returned to Russia after the Hungarian revolt and was reported to have been severely criticized by Lenin for his handling of the Hungarian situation, is back at work at his comparatively unimportant job.

Here's one girl who will make her mark in the world—Lidona Zdenek, 15 year old junior of St. Mary's High school, Chicago. Several days ago THE TRIBUNE told about the masked high school band which would play two numbers at the Chicagoland Music Festival concert on Saturday night, Aug. 22, directed by Oscar Anderson, supervisor of instrumentalists in the Chicago public schools.

Lidona read the notice while at a camp at Fox Lake, Ill. She decided to be in that band. Fox Lake is fifty miles away, but she had friends bring her to this city for the rehearsal which was held in the Lyon & Healy concert hall in that company's building, Jackson boulevard and Wabash avenue.

Nearly every branch of youthful endeavor was represented at the meeting with an elevated railroad conductor thrown in—Pat J. Doyle, 19 years old, of St. Phillips High school, who plays an E flat alto saxophone. Ernest Gregory, a flutist, of Hinsdale High, is mowing lawns this summer and Otto Schlesinger, 15, a Senn student, works in a photo studio at 1310 Devon avenue.

Had the band champions brought their medals with them they would have filled a bushel basket. For instance there was Harold Loeff, Senn, national champion snare drummer this year; Donald Eldred, champion in bass drum and cymbals and Fred Marshall, city champion bassoon player for 1930 and 1931.

It was a happy group of musicians and they all left promising to bring two more players with them to the second rehearsal which Mr. Anderson will hold next Thursday night at the same place at 7:30 o'clock.

Y. M. C. A. Urges Sex Education for Parents and for Boys

Cleveland, O., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Need for "adequate sex education" in the Y. M. C. A. is urged in a resolution, and other proposed policies include cooperation in alleviating unemployment and a protest against motion pictures that portray "indecencies in family and social life."

"The Y. M. C. A. has need for sex education," said a resolution presented today by Prof. Claude A. Milner, chairman of the subcommittee on sex education of the Y. M. C. A. world conference. "Ideally, parents should give children sex education early in life. In view of the failure of many parents to do this, Y. M. C. A. directors and secretaries should provide sex education for boys and their parents."

The subcommittee on movies and the radio adopted a pronouncement against films portraying indecency in family and social life and against caricature of national characteristics and suggested setting up of a world-wide consulting board which would negotiate with producers on approved films. Use of the radio for education of the world on work of the Y. M. C. A. was advocated by the subcommittee.

Local Y. M. C. A. organizations are urged in another resolution to favor shortening working hours and taking other possible steps toward spreading employment. It also asked local associations to cooperate with employers.

The proposal to open the Y. M. C. A. to women was waived by the world conference, but will be discussed next week when the United States "Y" conference convenes following close of the world sessions Sunday.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—(AP)—A memorial service on the spot where their founder, Jacques Demolay, was executed seven centuries ago was held today on the Ile de la City by thirty American boy members of the Order of Demolay. This is the order's first pilgrimage to Europe where it has been touring since June 1. The party comprises boys from California, Iowa, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wyoming. The group, headed by George B. Sykes of Kansas City, will sail for the United States tomorrow.

Science Tries to Copy Power Plant in Sun

Seeks Beam Equal to 25 Million Volts.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A discovery promising 25,000,000 volt protons—an energy as tremendous as the hot interior of the sun—has been made at the University of California, Details were made public today in connection with some developments now pending in the east.

Protons are the nuclei—the centers—of atoms. They are far the heaviest portions. A 25,000,000 volt proton is an atomic high explosive shell, traveling with such intensity that it is expected to knock atoms to pieces, and perhaps to "unlock" the mystery of the energy of the atom.

This proton beam is equivalent to energy from a 25,000,000 volt X-ray tube, a power unit which is now only one of the dreams of science. It is nearly equal to the energy behind cosmic rays, which scientists say come from either the creation of matter in the depths of space or from its annihilation in the hot interiors of the sun and stars. Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence and M. Stanley Livingston of the department of physics of the University of California are working on the project after announcing a year ago that they had evolved the method.

"An 85 ton magnet under consideration opens the possibility of producing 25,000,000 volt protons," he declared. "Such energies are well above any that occur in radioactive disintegration processes and indeed are comparable with cosmical transformations which give rise to cosmic rays.

"When a radium atom disintegrates, it ejects an alpha particle [a positively charged helium atom] with an energy corresponding to 4,700,000 volts. The fastest alpha particle is that from thorium 'C,' and corresponds to 8,800,000 volts.

"The possibility of producing particles with energies greater than those occurring in natural radioactive disintegration process is of importance beyond evaluation.

"At present there is no other way of producing such high speed particles. The method for 25,000,000 volt protons would be to apply 25,000,000 volts to the electrodes of a vacuum tube; but such a pressure is hardly within the range of practicability, because 25,000,000 volts would cause a spark to jump a gap of several hundred feet in air.

"With the aid of the large magnet such high speed particles should be producible in a relatively small laboratory with voltages of but 10,000 to 50,000.

"Enormously larger numbers of these particles can be produced than the number from any available source of radium. It is calulated that the number of protons per second producible in this way would be as effective as many thousands of grams of radium."

A further possibility is production of X-rays from the impact of this proton stream upon a metal target. Theoretical physics show that the X-rays would be generated in small amounts, but no one has had the apparatus to test the theory.

CALCUTTA, India, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Sir Chandrasekhara Raman, "Einstein of the east," whom the west sought out as the recipient of the Nobel prize in physics, has been deluged with invitations from all over the world to lecture, and today another came from California, but the Indian scientist is too poor to travel.

He has no laboratory and only the most limited library. The man who has been honored by a dozen foreign countries with medals and degrees lives in relative obscurity and comparative poverty among his own people.

His home is a small, dark flat in the poorest quarter of Calcutta. Adjoining the dilapidated building are rows of little drygoods shops, their naked owners sitting cross-legged on their heaps of multi-colored cottons. Medieval bullock carts, loaded with the rich products of the orient, stumble through the labyrinth of narrow streets.

The room in which Raman made his discoveries concerning the nature of light has a stone floor, a leaky ceiling and bare walls, but visitors forget the shabby surroundings in his vivid personality.

Early Casualties of Summer Flirtations Beginning to Arrive

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The summer flirtation casualties are beginning to arrive. There's Blue Eyes who hasn't heard a word from the big vacation thrill since she got back. And she has been back two weeks, sitting within earshot of the phone which never rings.

And there's Hazel in much the same plight. Only her big boy promised to write, not phone, as it would take an expensive long distance call to reach across their separated territories. And Heart Broken has after her the wife of the young man who talked romance out on the pier's end on moonlighted nights.

And these are but a few of the early casualties reported. There are others, and there will be more.

There'll be more romances, happily, that will ripen and bloom as the months go on—romances begun at a seaside resort, on boats, on railroad trains, everywhere that vacationers go. Which is more the pity that they all don't have a happy ending.

But if you feel cheated, remember that there may be a girl back home, too, who has known the boy longer and whose heart would be more deeply hurt were her place permanently taken. Remember, too, that these brief vacation periods are a release from the established order of living, and flirtations are a natural enough happening. But that when it is time to go back home the old ties have the strongest claim.

There's nothing heart breaking, or there shouldn't be, about the eclipse of the boy friend, or the girl, met up with on boat, or train, or summer hotel porch. Nothing to get sour about. There's always another good year ahead, another boat to embark on, another park or canyon to see—and, maybe, better luck next year, if you don't let this year's experience sink you, if you don't take those promised phone calls or letters too seriously.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Marry for Love.

"Dear Miss Blake: Two men that I go with are deeply in love with me. They have had an argument and decided I must choose between them. It would be advantageous in all ways for me to choose one of them, but I love the other more deeply. How must I choose? FIFI."

Regardless of the advantages it would be a mistake to marry a man you did not love, Fifi.

Siamese Royalty Attends Lacrosse Game, Powwow

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—(AP)—The king and queen of Siam left their mountain retreat today to motor to Montreal. There they saw an exhibition lacrosse game and an Indian powwow in the interests of charity. Under their incognito as Prince and Princess Sukhodaya, the rulers of Siam have been resting quietly in the Laurentian mountains.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Request for Furniture.

"For years a young couple and their three children have been living in crowded furnished rooms. Now, if they can only secure some furniture, they can move into a place of their own, as some one has generously offered them six months' free rent. As the man has been out of work for a year, there is no money to buy furniture. Is there any one who can give this family a bed, table, chairs, a stove, bed coverings and, in fact, anything for their new home? A. P."

It would be dreadful if this family should have to pass up such an opportunity because of lack of furniture. I am sure there are many of you with articles of furniture you no longer need who could furnish their new home quite comfortably for them.

Beauty Salons Here Equal Best Abroad, States Antoinette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you are at all interested in knowing how the other half of the woman world is coerced into exchanging good money for the lure that lies in cosmetic pursuit, we might take Budapest, where, 'tis rumored, beautiful women are commoner than near-beautiful, middling, or plain.

H. W. Wyndham, of the Authors' club, London, writes in a current beauty monthly periodical about beauty shops in Budapest and how to get to them. From him we gather that, while our bell boys might be dispensing advice about where to get one kind of liquid lotion, your Budapest bell boy has at his fingertips the addresses and specialties of every beauty shop in town.

And the advertisements featured by the Budapest beauty salons have a frankness about sex appeal treatment results that ours are only just flirting with, as this ad, for instance:

"Ladies, do you want sex appeal? If so, we can supply it!"

Another ad offered in Mr. Wyndham's study of Budapest's methods reads to the effect that a lovely complexion is all very well, but women the world over require something more. "A single treatment from us," says this ad, "and our richest gentlemen will fight duels to win your favors."

And the treatments we girls have paid for without ever a sword being lifted in appreciation!

Still, flowers aren't so bad. Maybe we'd better stay home. Maybe the man around the house doesn't notice whether you've a facial or not; maybe he snorts, "You don't look any different to me" after you've starved off fifteen solid pounds. Anyway, he does let you do a powerful lot of beauty experimenting without ever dragging it up as a cause for divorce.

I haven't been to Budapest, but from what I've seen of other spots abroad, including Paris, I'm here to say that for treatments, hygienic conditions surrounding their giving and cosmetic products they have nothing better than you can get right here.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

A. R. McK.: FOR REMOVING AN oily film from the face, use alcohol or witch hazel. Wipe it over the oily surfaces frequently. Or, you may use equal parts of witch hazel and rose water. The removal of powder and make-up must be attended to carefully and fresh powder puffs used.

A. B.: TEMPORARY DRYNESS OF the hair responds to the oil shampoo. White mineral oil or olive oil may be used. Part the hair and apply the heated oil over the entire scalp, working it in with massage. Let it remain on at least an hour before shampooing the hair.

G. C.: THE ONLY WAY TO change the shape of the nose is by an operation. Such operations are performed by plastic surgeons.

Lake Geneva Flower Show Is Called Best

BY THALIA

In all the years since 1904 when the first modest little flower show was held at Lake Geneva on the old L. Z. Leiter estate there never has been quite such enthusiasm over the annual display of flowers, fruits, vegetables, and farm products brought in from the farms and estates around and about Lake Geneva as there was at the opening of this year's show at horticultural hall yesterday. The vegetables, the gladioli, the luncheon tables, almost every class of exhibits was acclaimed the best that there ever has been.

At a late hour the awards on all the various classes hadn't been decided and the judging committee still was busy trying to distribute honors. The first prize for decorated tables, one of the most popular displays, was won by Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter's table set with black glass dishes, black and crystal goblets, black candles in spiral brass candlesticks, and bird ornaments contrived of milweed pods with bead eyes and red flannel combs.

The second prize went to Mrs. Daniel Peterkin for a large table set with a centerpiece of gladioli and aconitum, and bowls filled with petunias, lavender candles in silver candelabra, lavender glassware, and mirror plates. Mrs. W. P. Finney's table in green and white flowers, purple glassware, and white napery and china won the third prize. Mrs. John Fowler of the Chicago club won first place in the window box class for an arrangement of pink gladioli, Mrs. E. P. Ellwood was second for her arrangement of auratum lilies, and Mrs. S. B. Barrett of Williams Bay third for her golden-rod in a yellow bowl.

More About Flower Show, Including Aquatic Garden.

Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson was in charge of the wild flower display, and assisting her were Mrs. John R. Wilson, Mrs. Martin Ryerson, Mrs. Charles B. Corey, and Mrs. Harley Clarke. Mrs. E. P. Ellwood, Mrs. Daniel Peterkin, and Mrs. L. B. Hamilton were in charge of the sale of vegetables in attractively decorated market baskets.

At the entrance to the show was the huge water garden arrangement containing 1,700 plants from the F. L. Hayley estate. High palms encircled a pool filled with ferns and blossoming water lilies and two bronze storks waded in the center of the miniature lake.

The tea tables, set in the patio under a big striped awning, were busily patronized all afternoon. Members of the Elgin club were in charge of the tea, and the Lake Geneva High school orchestra provided a musical program accompanied by two soloists from Milwaukee.

The Gardeners and Foremen's association cooperated with the Garden club in managing the show, and the proceeds go to charity. The largest individual exhibits were from the Martin Ryerson, Bylleshy, Henry Bartholomay, S. B. Chapin, Hutchinson, and Crane estates.

Mrs. F. W. Upham Returns from Vacation to Work.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham has irons in so many civic and charitable blazes that she can't, apparently, content herself with just keeping a long distance eye on them all summer long. She's coming down from her camp at Keene valley in the Adirondacks to be in Chicago all next week. She is to stay at the Drake, and will return to the mountains thereafter until sometime in the fall.

Miss Libby Chase hasn't set the date for the showing of the movies of her and Miss Alicia Patterson's South Seas travels yet, but is waiting to hear when Miss Patterson is coming up from the east.

Heard about hereabouts—Miss Ghita Watson and her mother, Mrs. Walter Wolf, are busy making plans for Miss Ghita's and Walter Field McLallen's wedding to take place about the middle of September in Winnetka while the Wolfs are spending the summer. The bride-to-be already has found an apartment and other details are being decided upon every day . . . Miss Armour, whose engagement to W. Irving Osborne Jr. was announced about the same time that the Tobin McLallen was, isn't to be married until much later in the fall, and hasn't even talked about wedding plans yet. . . . the interior of the Duncan Hodges' new house, done by Walter Frazier with Mrs. Hodges and her mother, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, participating, is perfectly stunning—modern without being too modern . . . Thomas Fishers recently had as a visitor, Agnes deMille, a most entrancing dancer and person, but she has gone now.

Friends of Mrs. Glenn Hall, the former Germaine Ames, who haven't seen her for a long time, are remarking how well she looks and how becoming her silvering hair is, done in the new all-over ringlet way. Mrs. Hall who lives in Rye, New York departs today after a visit with her brother and sister-in-law, the James C. Ameses.

Some Visits as Well as Painting of Portraits.

Incidentals—Mrs. Reuben G. Bush of New Orleans is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, the Charles Lobdells in Hubbard Woods . . . Mrs. Hoyt Irwin who has been visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Evans in Barrington has departed for Seattle . . . George Harcourt, the portrait painter who has been in Lake Forest first with the Thomas E. Wilsons while he painted Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, and later with the Clarence Mortons Goodwins while he did a portrait of Mary Regnery of Hinsdale] has now gone to Hinsdale with his two daughters to be with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Regnery while he paints their youngest son. Mrs. Goodwin has gone to Desbarats . . . Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter S. Crosley's most recent guests have been Edmund Burke Ball of Muncie, Ind. [whose wife recently presented the Lincoln Marriage Temple, where Abraham Lincoln's parents were married in 1806 at Harrodsburg, Kentucky, to the state of Kentucky] and Mrs. Mattie Porter of Washington, D. C.

Hot Weather Adds to Lure of Algonquin

Every week the district workers of the United Charities receive letters from mothers of large families whom they send to Camp Algonquin for a two weeks' vacation. These letters are brief.

Take for example the letter of Mrs. Morris, written a few days after arriving in camp:

"Well, miss, it is all so nice I hardly know what is the nicest part," she wrote. "But when you have been cooking for a family of nine for ten years, I guess the nicest thing is to have that dinner bell ring and just walk in and eat all you want.

"We went fishing, too; we only caught three fish but we fried them and made sandwiches, so everybody in the crowd had a taste of fish. Then yesterday we took a hike and had fun just like kids. I don't suppose we will ever have such a good time again."

Five weeks more to taste the joys of Camp Algonquin. Five more weeks for tenement mothers and children to sleep the long hours away from clanging street cars and elevated trains rumbling past a bedroom window.

There are many tenement mothers who haven't had vacations since they were married. For years they have kept their noses to the grindstone caring for too-large families, cooking, washing, mending, stretching a dollar immeasurable distances.

More money is needed to give these mothers the outings they long for. Until the camp closes, the superintendent, Mrs. Astrid Save, hopes that every available place may be filled with mothers and children in need of vacations. Can you help? Ten dollars will provide an outing of two weeks. The Chicago and North Western railway sees to it that the guests are carried free to their destination.

Ten dollars came yesterday for the camp from Grace C. Haynes, who wanted it to be used to send some mother there for a two weeks' vacation. Five dollars came from Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gullans and another $5 from Mrs. Agnes Goldberg, making a total in the camp fund of $3,662.26.

The ice fund received $5 from Mr. and Mrs. Gullans, $5 from Mrs. S. L., and $1 each from L. M. S. and Mr. Wynn. This gives a total of $2,284.15 in the ice fund.

A city of tents is due to spring up like mushrooms today in Grant park, and just in case you're puzzled as to what it's all about—it's the circus.

Four trains carrying the circus personnel, to be exact 1,600 persons, 43 elephants, 1,009 menagerie animals, and 700 horses, will arrive at the Illinois Central railroad yards between 4 and 7 a. m. today. The first tents to go up will be the commissary, dining room, and draft horse tops, then the menagerie and the big top with seats for 16,000 persons. By noon the entire thirty tents will be in place.

A good many children and grownups as well are making plans to be under the big top for the opening performance promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The children especially are eager to see Hugo Zacchini fired from a cannon, as he was last year, and the clowns, of course. The circus will play twice daily for nine days.

American Honored by Albania for His Founding of School

KAVAJA, Albania, Aug. 7.—C. Telford Erickson, founder of the Albanian American institute at Kavaja, the first college to be established in this country since Aristotle, tutor of Alexander the Great, taught on the streets of Stagira 2,200 years ago, was awarded the Order of Scanderbeg by Prime Minister Pandeli Evangeli.

C. T. ERICKSON.

Dr. Erickson has devoted the last 26 years of his life to work in Albania. He is field representative of the Near East foundation. Scanderbeg, an Albanian prince, who died in 1463, was famous for successful resistance to the Turks. He was named George Castriot, but called Scanderbeg, meaning Prince Alexander, as he was considered the spiritual descendant of Alexander the Great of Macedon.

Albania, later conquered by the Turks, was not liberated until Woodrow Wilson insisted upon its independence at the peace conference. The Turks had ruled nearly 500 years.

At the request of King Zog in 1926, the Near East foundation matched dollar for dollar with the Albanians and went into the country and took over the administration of Dr. Erickson's School of Agriculture, which was suffering from lack of funds, and established the Albanian-American institute. The Albania parliament has given 1,000 acres for the project which is tax exempt.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' BLOUSE.

This Vionnet blouse is one that most women will want. The sharp diagonal closing seems to run up to meet the softly falling revers, and they do their bit in detracting from the breadth, as does also the diagonal closing. The sleeves have deep, flared cuffs, and the entire blouse is as chic as can be. White crêpe satin will be stunning worn with a black skirt and a yellow eyelet batiste worn with a matching silk crepe will be lovely.

The pattern, 3167, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Sessue Hayakawa (Tsuri Aoki) have started legal steps to adopt a 2½ year old fatherless American-Japanese boy out of Los Angeles "Little Tokio." They plan to take him back to Japan with them and make him a Japanese-Japanese boy, instead of a Japanese-American. They had the child with them here for a few weeks, but at the present time he is back with his mother awaiting the end of the legal proceeding.

Hayakawa bestowed the new name of Yukio on his little ward. The Hayakawas already have adopted and raised two Japanese girls, both of whom are now happily married in their native land. Hayakawa has finished his American film comeback appearance in "Daughter of the Dragon," and is awaiting another film rôle here, but if it doesn't come soon he returns to Japan in early autumn.

Irene Rich is cast as Jackie Cooper's mother in a featured rôle in "Champ." Wallace Beery plays the broken down prizefighter whose youngster, Jackie, idolizes him. Miss Rich is the society woman who finally takes the little boy from his father to make an upper eruster of him.

Food Talk.

Despite the fact that Epicurus taught that whatever gives the highest pleasure is the highest good he must have been temperate and moderate for he lived to the good age of 82. And he was a great deal saner than we speed-mad-moderns who pursue what we think is pleasure so feverishly that there is no real pleasure in the chase or the possible attainment.

Once in a while those of us who are responsible for the food of the family need to sit back sanely and try to discover what actually gives the most pleasure in food and then try to attain that. Learning to do the simplest things in cooking exceptionally well might be a good beginning.

The other day a housewife asked me to tell her how to make apple sauce such as her mother made. "Mother always chilled her sauce in the summer time," she said, "and it was a delicate champagne color, fine textured and of a consistency neither liquid nor solid. It refused to flow yet it was not stiff enough to hold its shape.

Apple sauce of this description is delicious, and yet it is too rarely served. There are a number of reasons why one can fail in making so simple, yet so pleasant a food. An apple should be ripe yet not overripe. Apples that are too ripe are dry and coarse in texture and lack flavor. A juicy, firm textured apple with pronounced flavor is best. A sauce of fine color depends upon the apple, the paring knife used to peel and slice the apple, the container in which the apple is cooked, and the use of additional flavors.

Apples should be sliced with a stainless knife and once sliced they should be cooked immediately. Apples that stand around oxidize and become dark in color and cooking does not remove this objectionable quality. An enamel pan or a highly polished aluminum pan is most desirable. Aluminum that is not kept in a shining condition but intead has a dark oxidized film on the inside of the pan will contribute an unattractive color.

In a juicy apple only enough water should be added to start the fruit cooking well. It is easy to add too much water and obtain a soupy consistency. Cover while cooking but watch to see that the apples do not become dry. About one cup of water to four cups of sliced apples should be sufficient to produce sauce of the right consistency. Add the sugar after the apples have mushed up well. Sugar added before this stage will toughen the uncooked fruit and result in lumps that are difficult to beat out. Of course, one may always resort to the use of a sieve but this means extra work.

Apples lacking flavor may be improved in a number of ways. A few slices of lemon added while the apple is cooking supplies tartness and emphasize the apple flavor. A combination of orange and lemon juice stirred into a thick apple sauce just as it is removed from the fire is very pleasant. A stick of cinnamon, some whole cloves or a few raisins will contribute flavor and a touch of color that appeal. The use of powdered spices gives dark color and does not always appeal.

Once the apple sauce is cooked it should be cooled at room temperature and then chilled in the refrigerator. Apple sauce with cookies or a square of gingerbread makes a delicious dessert for either luncheon or dinner and it should not be overlooked as a breakfast fruit.

Assistance Offered in Imparting Vital Knowledge to Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Sometimes as I write about a subject that is vital—one that is near to my heart, I seem to see the objections raised, the questions put, the letters that might be written opposing the thing I have to say.

This feeling is never stronger than when I feel impelled through some experience, or through much correspondence, to write on the importance of sex education.

There are two kinds of things I can feel happening as the articles recommending it are read. One is a recoil against the idea as being utterly obnoxious. This is felt by people who are still unnatural in their relation to such natural things as the beginning of life, the reproduction of life, and sex.

The other response I sense taking place is an honest questioning. It takes this form: Is it wise? Should it be done? And why should it be done? It may be that you're right, but why?

Sometimes it is not only a matter of my sensing these reactions to the articles—sometimes I receive letters expressing them. It is not possible to answer such letters fully enough to be satisfying. It is not even possible for me to cover the reasons thoroughly in this column. But I can refer those readers to brief reading matter that sets the whole thing forth in a clear and convincing way. These booklets are based not on opinions but on facts. They are interesting and authoritative.

If you really want to be helped to think out whether there should be early sex education in the home, and why there should be, and then how, the information will be sent you on receipt of a stamped, self addressed envelope.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover left tonight for Akron, accompanied by the chief of the bureau of naval aeronautics, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, and Mrs. Moffett; the naval aid to the President, Capt. Russell Train, and Mrs. Train, and Mrs. Frederick Butler, one of Mrs. Hoover's secretaries. Tomorrow Mrs. Hoover will christen the new navy dirigible, the Akron, by loosing a flock of pigeons over the bow. Immediately afterward she and her party will return, going at once to the camp on the Rapidan. There they will join the President and a party who left this afternoon for the camp. Red Jersey Vest Seen at the Smart Resorts

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Now that the season at Deauville has begun, high and thrilling novelties in beach and bathing clothes are out in public. This famous resort is the home of spectacular shore styles and out of the freakish and bizarre of each Deauville season some fashion or other emerges to become what the clothes professionals call a "runner," which means it grows from the Deauville mode into one of general success.

Pearl embroidered pajamas and chiffon bathing suits may, and do, appear on the sands that hem Deauville on the west, but they are good only for a line of publicity. This summer the eccentric stuff is being shoved aside by a legitimate and practical beach style—the bright red jersey vest, which is being worn over bathing suits and pajama trousers, and which seems to have a bright future in resort fashions.

Mary Nowitzky designed the first red jersey vest for sea side wear, and it is to be seen in the accompanying sketch. This is the one that is going over big at Deauville. It has a tricky neckline, being buttoned close around the neck in double points in front, while below these points is a diamond shaped space where the skin shows through, and below this the tiny blue buttons fasten the vest to below the waistline. It is closely fitted, and has a cutaway effect in front.

Bright Sayings of the Children

I took my little niece to the beauty parlor with me, where the operator was in the process of giving a permanent wave. Dolores saw her when the operator had all the irons on the customer's head, and exclaimed excitedly: "O, Aunty Evelyn, that lady has a Ferris wheel on her head."

DOHERTY TAKES KANSAS GAS WAR INTO NEW FIELD

He Buys Half Interest in Daily Newspaper.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 7.—(AP)—The Kansas City Journal-Post, afternoon newspaper, announced today purchase of a half interest in its assets by Henry L. Doherty, head of the billion dollar Cities Service company, who has been a target of the Kansas City Star in a gas rate war.

H. L. DOHERTY. [U. & U. Photo.]

At the same time it made public a letter addressed by Doherty to trustees of the William Rockhill Nelson estate, from which the present owners of the Kansas City Star purchased the Star property. The letter called upon the trustees to expel the present management of the paper and asserted the sale was "illegal" and the present conduct of the management "lawless and reckless."

Libel Suit Last Month.

Previously, on July 10, Doherty filed suit against the Star for $12,000,000 damages for libel, charging the newspaper had been unfair concerning him and the Cities Service company. In his suit he alleged he was libeled by an article stating he profited personally from an engineering and management fee paid by subsidiary companies. He also charged the Star was interested in the formation of a competing gas company. This the Star denied.

Responding to the Doherty counter-attack today, George G. Longan, president and general manager of the Star, said:

"The Star is still interested in the one thing Mr. Doherty doesn't discuss. That is the price of gas and the proper regulation of an unregulated monopoly. Furthermore, I think the public will have a complete understanding of Mr. Doherty's motive."

Answered Editorially.

More extended reply was made in the editorial columns of the Star. There the Star said, in reference to the purchase of a newspaper interest:

"Henry L. Doherty now has resorted to a method that occasionally has been adopted by big interests fighting for special privileges."

It also said:

"His demand that the William Rockhill Nelson estate take possession of the Star and oust the present management on his behalf, is, of course, a mere gesture of wrath. The sale of the Star to its present owners has been confirmed by the Supreme court of Missouri and the Supreme court of the United States.

"There will be no letup in the Star's fight for reduction of excessive rates—a reduction already made throughout Kansas by non-Doherty utilities in accordance with what they have said was 'the trend of the times.'"

Prior to filing his libel suit Mr. Doherty wired Postmaster General Brown urging the Kansas City Star be barred from the mails. He also wired Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, calling attention to what he called a threat of Gov. Harry Woodring of Kansas, who he said had been influenced by the Star to throw certain Cities Service subsidiaries into receivership and to ban in Kansas the sale of all Cities Service stock except first preferred.

GOV. EMMERSON AT CAMP GRANT FOR INSPECTION

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Gov. Louis L. Emmerson arrived at Camp Grant this evening to inspect the cantonment and to rest awhile. He was received by a military escort.

The governor will remain until Monday, when he will leave for Sparta, Wis., to visit Camp McCoy. He will return Tuesday and remain until Thursday, Governor's day. So far as is known, no Illinois governor has stayed at a peacetime army camp for as long a period as Gov. Emmerson plans to remain. His long visit was explained as being partly "a rest."

Gov. Emmerson motored to Rockford from Springfield. He arrived too late to receive the governor's salute of seventeen guns, so this honor will be accorded tomorrow. He was met by the Black Horse troop of Chicago and escorted to division headquarters where he was received by Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn and Adjt. Gen. Carlos Black.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago was expected this evening, but sent word he could not arrive until later, probably early next week.

YOUTH HELD TO GRAND JURY FOR 3 AUTO DEATHS

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Joseph Dykton, 18 years old, 114 East 119th street, held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter after an inquest into the deaths of three girls crushed beneath an automobile Thursday at 111th and State streets.

Dykton said that he had been driving slowly when his car struck that of Donald Brunette, 11733 Wentworth avenue, forcing it upon the sidewalk where it struck the three children. Lillian Williams, 7 years old, 11715 Lowe avenue, and Mary Onyszczuk, 11 years old, 11721 Lowe avenue, were instantly killed, Mary's sister, Stella, 5 years old, died yesterday at the Roseland Community hospital.

$500,000 ESTATE IS DISPOSED OF BY TAUSSIG WILL

Maurice Taussig, architect, who died at his home, 1000 Chestnut avenue, Wilmette, on Aug. 2, left an estate of $500,000, it was revealed yesterday when his will was admitted to probate by Oscar Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner.

The bulk of the estate was left in trust to Taussig's son, Joseph M. Taussig. The paintings and architectural library in Taussig's home were bequeathed to his business partner, Eugene Flesch.

Gifts of $2,000 each were made to the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives, and the Jewish Orphans' home in Cleveland, and a fund of $1,000 was left for the care of Taussig's father's grave in Prague, Czecho-Slovakia.

BANDITS SEARCH UNTIL THEY FIND $4,200 IN CAFE

Three bandits made a $4,200 haul yesterday when they invaded the restaurant at 2556 South Western avenue and threatened Michael Dore, part owner, and Mrs. Frances Lockhart, wife of his partner. John Lockhart, the partner, was upstairs at the time, unaware of the holdup.

Dore, Mrs. Lockhart, and several patrons were in the place when the gunmen alighted from their machine, driven by a fourth man, and confronted them. They took several dollars from the till, and then demanded "the rest of it." They referred to money kept on hand to cash checks for workers in neighboring factories.

Dore denied knowing where the money was kept. The bandits threatened four times to kill him before they were convinced he was telling the truth. One of the gunmen started searching behind the counter, whereupon Mrs. Lockhart screamed. Finally, the searcher found the concealed money.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—The colors of Joseph E. Widener, who is absent in Europe, were carried to victory in the Test stakes today by the Buchan filly Buckup, which ran one of the gamest races of her career to beat eight others in a rousing finish. Driven out by Mack Garner, Buckup won by three-quarters of a length from Harry F. Sinclair's Ladana, with John Hertz's Risque a head away in third position, and only a head before the fast-closing Avenger, from the C. V. Whitney string. Risque was the 9 to 10 choice.

Avenger pulled up lame after the race and doubtless will be laid by for some time.

It was Mr. Widener's first victory in the Test, the value of which to the winner was $3,050. Under 118 pounds Buckup stepped the seven furlongs in 1:25⅘ and by the performance strongly reëstablished herself in the first flight of 3 year old fillies.

The defeat of Risque was the biggest sort of surprise to Trainer Willie Knapp, who made no secret of his belief that he had the best filly in the race. Risque was soundly beaten and can have little excuse, for the 121 pounds she carried, while top weight, was level with Ladana and only three pounds more than that borne by several of the main contenders.

It was Ladana which went out to set the pace when the break came, but the early foot she showed did not leave the field far behind. Peake and Volla were outrun, but the others were close behind the pacemaker.

Bass in Fox River Boards Passing Canoe

BY BOB BECKER.

When a small black bass is frightened in shallow water it has no hesitancy in taking to the air to escape in a hurry. This fact was illustrated two days ago when we were walking down the middle of the St. Charles river below the Dayton dam, which is about five miles above the city of Ottawa.

We were splashing along in the shallow water where once the famous Dayton rapids shot canoeists down to the mouth of the Fox river at a dizzy pace. This summer, due to low water, the river for several miles can't even float an empty canoe more than a few yards at a time.

Bass Jumps Into Canoe.

As we were hauling our canoe over this stretch of river bed, which has all the earmarks of a stone quarry with many tons of rock exposed, there was a swish of water at our left, and kerplunk! the little bass dropped into the canoe.

Vincent Smith, our canoeing partner on the Fox river trip, picked up the startled, high jumping fish and dropped him into a small pool unharmed. Afterwards we figured that the little bass must have been so completely flabbergasted by the sight of a canoe in that stretch of the river, an area no self-respecting craft should ever penetrate in its present condition, it lost its head and started sailing instead of swimming.

Lower Fox Affords Fishing.

Fishermen in Chicagoland who wish to toss a lure at game fish within the state will find the lower Fox river fairly good for small mouth black bass and catfish. When we traveled down this stream a few days ago, the common report was that the undersized bass were biting freely but the big fellows weren't. However, we have a hunch that later in the season when the extremely hot weather has passed, one can pick up some bass in the lower river.

Here you find both deep pools and some rapids. Camping spots are available. One fisherman we talked with in this section has hooked more than twenty bass on live bait but was complaining that they weren't "keepers."

South Chicago Nine Defeats Zeigler, 3 to 1

South Chicago, Cook county champion, took its first step toward the 1931 Illinois State American Legion Junior Baseball league championship yesterday by defeating Zeigler, 1930 state titleholder and representative of downstate Illinois, in the first game of the series at Wrigley field, 3 to 1.

Victory this afternoon for South Chicago, in the second contest will give it the state championship and the right to compete with the winners from Iowa, Kansas, and Missouri in the regional tournament at Ottumwa, Ia., on Aug. 13 and 14. The third game will be played tomorrow at Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, Speedway, Ill.

Ziegler took a 1 to 0 lead as errors paved the way for the first run in the fourth after three hitless innings. M. Milosevich singled, stole second, and scored on Radlowski's error. Then, with the bases filled, McKirchy struck out Minkalis and Tatar tapped to Schupp to retire the side.

McKirchey opened the last half of the fourth by striking out. Alata tripled to deep right and came home with the tying run when Holem hit to Second Baseman Tatar and was safe at first.

In the sixth Schoenfeldt was walked and went to second on Radlowski's sacrifice. He reached third on Tatar's error and South Chicago took a 2 to 1 lead when Schoenfeldt scored on McKirchy's single. The South Chicago hurler stole second and went home on another error by Tatar.

GALLANT KNIGHT, OUT OF HANDICAP, FACES LONG REST

Gallant Knight, which broke a world's record for 6½ furlongs at Churchill Downs last Derby day and regarded as one of leading handicap performers of the year, may not race again this season.

This became known yesterday when his name did not appear in the list of entries for the $25,000 Hawthorne handicap to be run today. He is suffering from a badly injured tendon, a recurrence of an old ailment which put him on the shelf in mid-summer last year.

Prince Tokalon was the only favorite to win on yesterday's Hawthorne card. His victory brought the total victories of favorites to six since the meeting opened. Thirty-seven races have been run.

Jockey Charley Allen, who had contracted to ride Battleship for Walter J. Salmon in the Handicap today, had to cancel when Dark Sea was named for the race. Dark Sea is owned by Herbert M. Woolf of Kansas City, who holds Allen's contract. As a result Allen will ride Dark Sea and Herman Schutte will have a leg up on Battleship.

Ever since the Chicago season opened Ben Rosenheim has been trying to win a race with his 3 year old Atill. He finally found a bunch of maidens he could beat in yesterday's second race. As usual he was heavily backed and was the second choice.

Bachelor's Toy, one of the most consistent failures of the season and hailing from the Jackson Park stable of Chicago, finally ran himself right out of the racing game. When he finished last in yesterday's third race he was ordered shipped back to Kentucky to be used for anything except racing purposes. He almost broke the south side a time or two when he failed. He is a highly bred colt, being a son of Bachelor's Double-Mertoy. But he never learned how to win a race.

Sun Beau will say good-by to his Chicago public for a few weeks soon after today's Hawthorne Handicap is run. He travels to Saratoga tomorrow and will remain fn New York until about Sept. 20 when he returns to Hawthorne to take part in the Hawthorne Gold Cup to be run early in October. This will be the last race the world's champion will ever run. He is to be retired to Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Virginia breeding place after his Hawthorne cup engagement.

Battaglia Ends Training for Morse Bout

Frankie Battaglia, Canadian Italian, will conclude his training today for his eight round middleweight elimination bout with Johnny Morse at White City Monday night. Battaglia, the favorite in Promoter Mique Malloy's tournament to crown a 160 pound champion for Illinois, is in such excellent shape his handlers have decided against any strenuous drill tomorrow.

Clyde Chastain, Texas middleweight, who meets Al Stillman, St. Louis heavyweight, in another of the tourney preliminaries, likewise will curtail his activities after today's drill. Chastain and Stillman are also scheduled for eight rounds.

The third eight round bout on Monday's card, also a tourney elimination contest, will bring together Gary Leach of Gary, Ind., and Johnny Burns of California.

Other bouts on Monday's card feature Walter Madey, south side heavyweight, against Biff Bennett, Fort Sheridan, in five rounds; a five round encounter between Marion Matuszeck and Billy Gale of Logan Square, heavyweights, and Dick Siska, winner of 31 consecutive fights, with Johnny Rich in a five round opener.

Jimmy Archer Given Award, Saves Two Lives

Jimmy Archer, catcher for the Cubs from 1910 to 1915, yesterday was presented with the president's medal and a bar of the national safety council by the council president, C. W. Bergquist. The award was made in recognition of Archer's feat in saving the lives of two farmers at the Union Stock yards.

Archer, a hog buyer for Armour & Co., went out to meet a load of hogs that had come into the yard last winter. The drivers, Carl W. Frank of Compton, Ill., and George H. Nurnberg of Meridan, Ill., stepped down from the truck and collapsed, victims of carbon monoxide from a leaky exhaust.

Archer set to work using the prone pressure system of resuscitation. In ten minutes one victim had recovered and in another twenty minutes the second was breathing naturally. Safety officials said that rarely can a rescuer resuscitate two victims at the same time.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Speeds approaching 400 miles per hour are anticipated at the Schneider cup races on Sept. 12, it was indicated today when the rules for the contest were released by the Royal Aero club.

The course where the British won the cup a second time in 1929 was quadrilateral, but this year it will be triangular. The flyers will attempt to gain the world's fastest flight over the Solent and Spithead course. The course is a fraction over 31 land miles, which will be flown counter-clockwise seven times

PHILS GET FIVE IN FIRST; BEAT GIANTS, 13 TO 5

Chuck Klein Hits 25th and 26th Homers.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7.—[Special.]—Scoring five runs in the first inning today, the Phillies took a lead which they held to the finish in defeating the New York Giants, 13 to 5. Clarence Mitchell was on the mound for New York as the Phils made the opening spurt on four walks and three hits.

Chuck Klein connected for his 25th home run of the season in the third and hammered out his 26th in the seventh with two mates on base.

Phil Collins was no puzzle to the Giants, who collected 16 hits, as compared to the eleven the Phils got off four Giant pitchers, but, after having been touched for two runs in the first, he pitched shutout ball until the eighth. Klein also got a single for a perfect day at the plate. Bill Terry of the Giants hit three doubles. Score:

who also made it known that Mel Simons, center fielder obtained from Louisville at the outset of the season, has been sent to Toledo on option.

In the game yesterday afternoon the Sox didn't have much scoring opportunity except in the instance of the Simons and Faber extra base hits. The ability of most of the batting effort is reflected in the fact that Blaeholder, in addition to holding the Chicagoans to four hits in seven innings, had six assists and one putout, and his successor, Kimsey, had two assists in one inning, the total of nine fielding chances in a nine-inning game for the pitcher being unusual. There were only three putouts by St. Louis outfielders, and Goslin put in his second day in left field without a putout or an assist.

KLEIN GAINS 5 POINTS IN BIG 6 BATTING RACE

Chuck Klein continued to set the pace for the Big Six batters of the Major leagues yesterday, slamming out three straight hits, two of them home runs. The perfect day increased Klein's average five points and left him only two behind the National league leader, Virgil Davis, who dropped two points to .350 as he hit once in four times up. Bill Terry of the New York Giants captured third place on the National league list as three doubles in five times up increased his mark four points while Charley Grimm of Chicago failed to hit. The American league leaders were also.

I saw two of the greatest ballplayers that ever lived going around town painting houses and barns to pick up a ten dollar bill here and there. I don't want to be taking in houses and barns to paint when I am through, but I am no better right now than they were in their prime and my earnings are proportionately no greater than theirs were.

Discovered the Money's Gone.

"Some ballplayers, you know, when they get big pay all of a sudden and then get the world series money in two or three lumps, don't know how they've spent it until it's all gone. It's hard to know how to invest money for protection when you get it suddenly. I was talking to a young fellow a little while ago about investing his pay. Two years ago the boy was living in a little town way off somewhere where a couple of dollars was party money and this year he's getting more income than the richest man in his home town.

"I asked him what he was doing with his money. Well, he said he was darned if he could figure it out. It was gone, though. He bought some suits of clothes and then he bought a car and then he bought some stocks on a tip and the stock was wiped off the board. Then he lost a little bet and he said, 'well, all I can make out about this money is that I seem to owe $200 to the bank back home.' I'll write him some business yet, not for my sake, but for his.

"Do you know what I am looking for? You never heard of a champion ball club's salaries being reduced did you? But I'm telling you that baseball is a business and if the players themselves don't do something to stimulate the baseball business, we're just as likely to have to stand a cut as any one else. What I think is that there ought to be more fighting on the ball field and not so much of this visiting back and forth and twining loving arms around our opponents' shoulders.

Wants More Showmanship.

"The players ought to have more to say to the newspapers instead of letting the managers do all the talking. Suppose I let fly and say Goose Goslin of the Browns is a rotten ball player and just generally no good. If that gets into the papers, the next time we play the Browns, their whole club will be sore at our whole club and you will see some fighting for the ball games. And, of course, the customers are going to come out to see the fight.

"A while ago there in St. Louis we put a pitcher on second base one afternoon because we didn't have a second baseman. I was pitching and when I scored from third I clowned it up a little bit, running almost into the St. Louis dugout on the way to the plate. So some paper took it up and said the Athletics were all puffed up with conceit and clowning to make mugs of the Browns. The next day, Manager Killifer gave the Browns a pep talk before the game and told them that he would fine anybody $50 for talking to anybody on our club. Well, that's the way it ought to be, because we drew 30,000, paid.

Difficult to Squander Now.

"If a ballplayer gets sore at somebody on another club, let him say so and let the papers print it instead of allowing the managers to censor everything. We can work up some fights and keep our salaries up by stimulating the business."

It is going to be very difficult for the young men of the Philadelphia ball club to squander off their world series money this year with this young insurance agent, who rates insurance just behind the divinity and the U. S. government, riding the trains with them, eating with them, and playing with them, with a fountain pen and a sheaf of dotted lines on his person even when he is out in uniform.

FRANCE AGREES TO FINANCE 1932 OLYMPIC SQUAD

PARIS, France, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Emile Morinaud, under secretary of public education, today assured the French Olympic committee funds would be forthcoming to send a French team to the winter games at Lake Placid, and the summer games at Los Angeles next year.

Morinaud said the first advance for training expenses already had been voted and he expected parliament to vote the necessary expenses when it reconvened in October.

The French Olympic committee recently announced that failure of parliament to pass a bill authorizing expenses would prevent its sending a team to the tenth Olympiad.

brellas until roars of protests from onlookers behind were heeded. At intermission and at every "time out" up went the umbrellas again for brief protection. Just as a matter of curiosity we weighed our overcoat afterward and it weighed 18 pounds, so heavily was it saturated with moisture. Here is the lineup:

Game Becomes Kicking Duel.

With the supposedly inferior Maroon line showing unexpected strength and preventing consistent gains, and with Eckersall and Steffen unable to break free, the game became a punting duel between Eckersall and Larkin. Eckie's longer kicks were minimized by Gopher men getting down the field better and preventing long runbacks.

Well along in the first half, Bobby Marshall, Minnesota's colored end, got around end for a 25 yard gain into Chicago territory. There the Maroon line held, so on the final down Marshall dropped back to his own 38 yard line for a place kick. His powerful forwards checked the charging Maroons; so he had plenty of time, although the ball, of course, was slippery. Straight and true went the oval over the crossbars with about two feet to spare in height. That was the ball game, although none realized it at the time. Twice thereafter Marshall attempted similar kicks from about the 40 yard line, but both failed.

Eckie's Kick Wide.

Early in this half Eckersall also had a chance for a dropkick, at which he was best in the west. The pass, however, was poor, and the attempt went wide. It was his only opportunity. Despite his failure to score, Eckersall was the life of the Maroons with his punting, tackling as safety man, and the menace of his runs, despite the close watch to which he was subjected.

It was the same Bobby Marshall of the place-kick who frustrated what looked like a sure touchdown by Eckersall which would have meant victory. Near the end of the first half Eckie received a punt on his own 20 yard line. Down the east side of the field he sped until only Larkin, safety man, was between him and the goal posts. Outspeeding his lone interferer, Eckie eluded Larkin.

Marshall, however, was streaking across the field on a diagonal and finally took a despairing leap for a tackle. He was a trifle short and his arms slipped from Eckie's knees, but with one hand the colored boy in some manner grabbed one of Eckie's heels. On the slippery turf that twist unbalanced Eckersall and other Gophers came up to hurl themselves on the Maroon captain. That was Chicago's greatest chance.

Larkin Downs Ball Behind Line.

Late in the second half Larkin received one of Eckie's long punts behind his own goal line. Confused because rain had obliterated the whitewash lines, he attempted to run back the ball, realized his mistake, and then touched the ball down for a safety and two points.

During this second period the play was unusually even, with neither eleven threatening unless by a break. Chicago punted frequently, hoping that Eckersall on receiving a return punt might break loose for one of his famous runs. Although he was unable to do so, Coach Stagg after the game said it had been one of Eckersall's greatest football performances, both as a player and as a field general.

A couple of years ago I met Sherm Finger, Maroon fullback in this game and now of the Minnesota coaching staff, and he told me of an incident in the game. According to his story Marshall gave him a good healthy kick in the back when the umpires were not looking. Many, many years thereafter he was present in Minneapolis at a meeting of "M" men and related the incident. The chap to whom he told the story took him over to Marshall and said:

"Bobby, here's a fellow who says you kicked him in a football game back in 1906." Marshall grinned good-naturedly and replied, "Ah never kicked nobody. I was colored. I was always on the receiving end."

Youthful Team Wins Women's Foursome Play

The third foursome event on the Chicago district women's golf schedule was played at Medinah Country club yesterday with a team of young players carying off the honors. The team, composed of Miss Jane Weiller, Vernon Ridge, 88; Miss June Beebe, Olympia Fields, 89; Miss Priscilla Carver, Mission Hills, 89, and Miss Virginia Ingram, Sunset Ridge, 90, shot a total score of 356 to win low gross. Their combined handicaps amounted to 16, the lowest in the tournament. Miss Weiller, Chicago district champion, aided her team materially by sinking a 25 yard approach for a birdie 3 on the third hole.

Low net prize was won by a Glen Oak team with a combined handicap of 100. They were: Mrs. T. S. McCarty, 106—19—87; Mrs. A. F. Hefferman, 102—26—76; Mrs. J. R. Hackett, 106—27—79, and Mrs. John Morrell, 113—28—85, with a total of 427—100—327.

Mrs. O. F. Burnett, former champion of Medinah, playing with Mrs. Lee Mida, Butterfield; Mrs. A. E. Sheill, Glen Oak, and Mrs. E. T. Nicholas Jr., Lincolnshire, needed a 5 for a 39 on the incoming nine when her tee shot landed near the base of a tree in an almost unplayable lie. Before she realized it, she had taken three quick shots and accumulated a 9 on the hole. Mrs. Mida was more fortunate in getting out of trouble. Finding her ball in high grass against the trunk of a tree, she took the point of her putter and shot it out like one would use a polo mallet.

Smith has a six goal handicap, and substituted for Inglehart of Old Aiken in the second game of the international series at Onwentsia, when the Americans played against the Argentinas. Lineup:

Lt. G. F. Smith.	No. 1	Charles Glore

Barton Is Too Enthusiastic.

Manager Hornsby can use either Charley Root or Bob Smith tomorrow, but probably will depend on the former. Manager Street is going to try to get by on the services of Sylvester Johnson.

Malone's woeful first inning started with a walk to Adams, who went to second on a passed ball after Watkins' demise. Frisch singled to left and Adams stopped at third. Bottomley flied to short right center and Barton grabbed the ball by knocking Cuyler out of the way, but if the latter had been permitted to make the catch he probably could have thrown out Adams, who scored. Hafey singled to right, Frisch going to third. Both scored on Martin's double to center. Jim Wilson's single scored Martin.

The first noteworthy accomplishment by the Cubs was the hit with which Barton opened the second inning. He lined to right in his customary fashion, but made the mistake of believing the hit was worth two bases. He was tagged out as a result. Then the Cards proceeded to torment Malone again. With two out, Adams singled to center and a moment later he scored on Watkins' homer.

Well, at Last, Our Cubs Rally.

Bottomley walked in the third and Hafey beat out a bunt to Jurges. That was the finish of Mr. Malone. Martin bunted and May caught it on the fly. J. Wilson also bunted and beat it out for a hit, filling the bags. Gelbert walked and forced in Bottomley. Grimes bounced to Blair, whose throw to Hartnett caught Hafey at the plate. Jurges leaped for Adams' high bounder and threw him out.

The Cubs rallied sensationally in the fourth. They exploded a pair of hits, making their grand total three. Blair lined a single to center and English hit one safely to left. Cuyler flied to center, Barton died swinging, and Dan Taylor flied to right.

Poor Old Hack Gets It, Too.

Necessity demanded that poor old Hack Wilson, who already has more than his share of trouble, be dragged into the debacle in the sixth. It was May's turn to bat, but Hack was selected for the job. Hack was all spick and span in a freshly laundered uniform, but the 15,000 ladies' day fans didn't like his appearance. They gave him a mother-in-law's welcome. Then when Hack let a third strike float over they "cheered" again.

Teachout, who did fairly well when he appeared in the sixth, wasn't quite so good in the seventh and another Cardinal run scored. Bottomley led off with a single to center. Hafey fouled to Jurges and Martin hoisted to Taylor in deep left. Jim Wilson walked and Gelbert singled into left, scoring Bottomley.

The Cubs were a bit stronger in the ninth. Cuyler started the last gasp with a single, but Barton fouled out and D. Taylor grounded to short. Then Grimm and Hartnett walked to load the bases. Jurges grounded to Grimes for the final out.

LOTT AND SUTTER REACH FINALS IN MEADOW MEET

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP)—George M. Lott Jr. of Philadelphia and Clifford Sutter of New Orleans reached the singles final in the Meadow club invitation tennis tournament today.

Lott won from Ellsworth Vines Jr. of Pasadena, who was forced, through illness, to default after four sets had left the score deadlocked. The scores were 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, 9-7, and default.

A strange incident also marked Sutter's victory over Gregory S. Mangin of Newark. Sutter won, 7-5, 10-8, 6-2. The closely fought match turned into a rout in the third set when Mangin, fighting desperately to turn the tide, rushed to the net and slipped to the turf, jamming himself in the stomach with his racquet. He was "out" for five minutes and finished the match in a daze.

TIE AGAIN IN 2D INDIANA STATE OPEN PLAYOFF

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7—[Special.]—Neal McIntyre of the Highland Golf and Country club and Ralph Stonehouse of Pleasant Run tied again today at the end of their second 18 hole playoff for the Indiana state open golf championship. The playoff will be continued Monday.

The Indianapolis pros shot 74s today. Stonehouse, as on Thursday, again squared the match at the fifteenth hole and then halved the last three in par.

Van Artsen reached the finals by eliminating Wesley Carlson, defending champion, 9-7, 6-3, yesterday, while Malone was defeating Paul Wandas of Glen Ellyn, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4. Forty competed.

In the women's singles Miss Willie Aveling, Wheaton, present champion, will meet Miss Virgin' Hitt of Glen Ellyn. Miss Aveling and Mrs. H. C. Mason of Wheaton will meet Miss Fredergast and Miss Slote for the woman's doubles championship.

The Carlson-Fisher and Karstons-Lutzow combinations have a semi-finals match to dispose of in the men's doubles before engaging Waterman and Rienheart for the crown. The mixed doubles finals will be played next week. An open tournament for juniors will start Aug. 17.

Martin's 74 Defeats Field of 150 in Exmoor Jamboree

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Exmoor, one of the oldest golf clubs in the Chicago district, held its annual Jamboree yesterday, and Dick Martin of Briergate, probably the youngest of the field of more than 150, was the chief celebrant. Dick, Big Ten champion from Illinois last year, took low gross honors with a card of 74, two over par.

DICK MARTIN.

The Jamboree was restricted to an afternoon round of 18 holes, but that appeared to satisfy all of the participants, who dined on the big outdoor pavilion in front of the clubhouse at the end of the day.

Huszagh Wins Two Prizes.

Ralph Huszagh of Sunset Ridge took away two prizes, as did Martin. The former won low net for the day, coming home with a card of 82—13—69, and with his host, R. M. Cobb, captured the prize for the best net score compiled by a member and his guest. Cobb toured the course with a 91—16—75. Their combined total was 144.

Martin shared in another prize when he included himself in the winning low net foursome, the other members of which were A. H. Harrison, 77—2—75; W. N. Plamondon, 86—16—70, and G. R. Lashelle, 100—20—80, all of Exmoor. Their joint total was 297.

Plamondon Is Second.

Plamondon won second low net with his 86—16—70. Low net on the first nine was shared by A. A. Wilson of Exmoor and H. Falvey of Bunker Hill, the former shooting 46—12—34 and the latter 49—15—34. The best net on the second nine was scored by E. J. MacIlraith, competing unattached, who had 48—15—33. Second honors for the two nine hole rounds were won by R. Hackett of Exmoor, who turned the first nine in 41—7½—33½, and H. A. Sieck, from the Meadow Brook club of Detroit, Mich., whose net for the second half of the round was 47—13½—33½.

Will Be Residence for 118 Members.

BY AL CHASE.

Work will start next week on the new six story residence building for the Young Women's Christian association at 105-107 South Ashland avenue, as a result of a contract having been awarded yesterday to R. C. Wieboldt company for its construction. Robert S. DeGolyer & Co. are architects.

MRS. W. L. HODGKINS.

Completion is set for May 1, 1932, when the new structure will be dedicated, according to Mrs. W. L. Hodgkins, who last January was elected president of the Metropolitan Y. W. C. A. for the fourth consecutive year.

The new residence will cost $270,000, which includes land, building and furnishings. It will have living quarters for 118 girls and will have a dining room with a capacity of 160, which means outsiders will be accommodated. In addition it will have several rooms for small meetings and luncheons.

Connected with Branch.

The building, which will be 46x100, will be connected with the adjoining West Side branch of the Y. W. C. A., which has been at the southeast corner of Ashland and Monroe for fourteen years. The older building has a swimming pool, gymnasium and other regulation Y. W. C. A. activities.

The site was the gift of the Wieboldt foundation. The funds necessary to erect and furnish the new building were obtained by Mrs. Hodgkins from an anonymous donor. Mrs. Allam M. Clement is chairman of the building committee for the new structure. Mrs. Arthur S. Hook is chairman of the West Side branch of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. Ralph W. Kimball is chairman of the West Side residence.

New Dormitory for N. W. U.

Work will start at once on a $92,000 dormitory at Northwestern university, on the men's quadrangle of the north campus at Evanston, to house scholars of the Austin foundation, the proctors, and the faculty advisers. It will accommodate forty-five persons. There'll be a recreation room, with library and study hall in the basement.

The Chicago Title and Trust company has negotiated a $300,000 loan, six years at 6 per cent, for Jesse Spalding and others on the 90x189½ parcel at 227-235 West Madison street, improved with four and five story buildings.

Lucius J. Otis has given the Chicago Title and Trust company a trust deed securing a $270,000 loan, six and a half years at 5 per cent, negotiated through the New York Life Insurance company, made on the property at the southeast corner of Jackson and Dearborn.

SUIT IS FILED IN REPUBLIC STEEL COMPANY DEAL

Cleveland, O., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Nullification of the agreement whereby the Republic Steel corporation gave 22,340 shares of the old Republic Iron and Steel company common stock to the Cleveland Cliffs Iron corporation in exchange for 50,000 shares of Trumbull Cliffs Furnace company common stock was sought in a suit here today.

The suit was filed by Attorneys Wilkin, Krewson & Wilkin for E. B. Dyson of Akron and Jennie W. Rudell of Garrettsville. The stock was valued at $1,650,000. The plaintiffs demanded its return or the payment of that amount.

Defendants are the Republic Steel corporation, Cleveland Cliffs, and officers and directors of the companies, including Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier; William G. Mather, J. O. Eaton, E. B. Greene, T. N. Girdler, F. N. Hobson, H. T. Gilbert, G. N. Humphrey, and C. E. Sullivan, all of Cleveland; F. J. Griffiths of Massillon, Myron A. Wick, Chagrin Falls; Philip Wick, B. J. Fairless, R. J. Wysor, J. T. Herrington, and W. B. Collins, all of Youngstown.

The complaint says that the Trumbull stock was worthless and that the deal was consummated "for the benefit and enrichment" of Eaton, William G. Mather, the Cleveland Cliffs company, and their associates. The deal was made in December, 1929.

Du Pont to Give 103,500 Shares for Newport Assets

Under the agreement of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company to purchase the assets of the chemical division of the Newport company, Du Pont will give 103,500 shares of 6 per cent debenture stock. Cash of Newport and subsidiaries and earnings from May 31, 1931, to Aug. 1, will be distributed to Newport stock holders.

SEARS, ROEBUCK PROFITS SHOW 11 PCT. ADVANCE

Gain Made as Dollar Volume Drops.

Profit of Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the first 28 weeks of its fiscal thirteen month year, ended July 16, showed an increase of 11 per cent over the corresponding period of the previous year, the company reported yesterday. Earnings for the period amounted to $6,008,483, before provision for federal taxes, against $5,617,567 in the comparable 1930 period, which was an increase of $390,916, or approximately 11 per cent.

GEN. R. E. WOOD. (Kadel Photo.)

The earnings showing of the mail order and chain store company was achieved in the face of a decline in the dollar volume of sales of 6.8 per cent, and an extraordinary appropriation of $250,000 for unemployment relief. Total sales for the period ended July 16, this year, amounted to $184,197,397, as compared with $198,263,008 in the same weeks last year.

The midyear earnings' statement was the first ever issued by the company and the practice of making such reports will probably be continued in coming years, Gen. Robert E. Wood, president, stated.

Better Management.

Gen. Wood ascribed the earnings achievement to better management in the retail store division.

"Our retail management is improving all the time," he said, "and has been an important factor in the improvement in earnings over last year. So far we haven't lost any merchandising profits because of declining prices over the last year and a half. However, declining prices make it more difficult to show an operating profit.

"We roughly figure that our selling prices were about 15 per cent under last year. On this basis there was some increase in physical volume of merchandise handled. The decline in inventory prices this year was about the same as in the same period of 1930. Inventories for this time of year are the lowest they have been for five years at least."

Gen. Wood added that the largest profit is ordinarily realized in the last three months of the year. The company, he added, has not cut wages, but rather has increased operating efficiency and in some instances has given additional vacations without pay. He stated he is still opposed to any reduction in the basic wage rate.

Listed Inventory Drops.

The company's listed inventory at the close of the half year period was $63,167,366 against $73,294,033 on July 18, 1930. But for the extraordinary expense of unemployment relief the earnings would have shown an increase of $650,000 over last year.

Safeway Stores, Inc., for the six months ended June 30 last, reports a net profit of $2,000,961 after all charges, including federal taxes, equal after preferred dividends to $2.61 a share on 656,669 common shares outstanding at the end of the period.

Sales in July totaled $17,159,593 in comparison with $18,199,527 in July, 1930, a decrease of 5.58 per cent. Sales for the seven months totaled $121,-143,893, as against $128,830,483 in the like period last year, a decrease of 5.5 per cent.

Kress & Co. Report.

S. H. Kress & Co. reported July sales totaled $5,103,939, against $5,050,-980 in July, last year, an increase of 1 of 1 per cent. For the seven months to July 31, last, sales were $31,947,337, against $35,375,674 in the same period of 1930, an increase of 1.5 per cent.

Sales of the H. C. Bohack company for July were $3,395,379, against $3,930,949 in July, 1930, an increase of 13 per cent. For the six months to July 31, last, sales were $17,529,-437, against $18,612,880 in the same period of 1930, an increase of 12.2 per cent.

National Tea company reports consolidated sales for the month of July, 1931, of $6,385,015, as compared with $6,812,233 for the corresponding month of last year.

Improved Handling Is Seen Boon to Market for Fish

BY SCRUTATOR.

Live stock raisers who are wondering why the market for their products has declined may well consider a few things that have been happening in the fish industry.

Improvements in the methods of commercial fisheries have wrought great changes during the last few years. Mechanical refrigeration for storage houses and freight cars has been perfected to a point where fish can be satisfactorily preserved for a long time.

Figures supplied by the department of agriculture indicate the competitive nature of fish and meats. They show that the high period of fish storage occurs from August to January, coinciding with the period of lower meat consumption.

Estimates Consumption.

Armour's live stock bureau in its monthly letter to animal husbandmen takes the figures for 1929 supplied by the bureau of fisheries and estimates that for that year the total fish consumption of the country was 2,789,000,000 pounds, or 23 pounds per capita.

This represents a decided increase in only a few years, for a department of commerce bulletin estimated that in the period 1919-1923 the per capita consumption of fish was only 15 pounds, compared with 21 pounds of chicken and 18 dozen eggs.

The per capita consumption of fish last year has not been estimated, but the 1930 figures for meat are 50 pounds of beef, 6.8 pounds of veal, 6.6 pounds of lamb and mutton, and 68 pounds of pork.

Salmon Ranks First.

Canned fish shows a like trend. Estimated consumption indicates a 69 per cent increase in the eight years ending 1929. Salmon ranks first in actual consumption with sardines second and tuna third.

Improvements in freezing processes and the use of cellophane wrappings, however, are held responsible for most of the increase in the consumption of fish as well as the changes in the demand for the various kinds of fish. Improved refrigeration has enabled localities to use varieties hauled long distances where formerly they had available only the kinds produced locally or the tinned products.

Commercial fisheries have adopted entirely new methods of handling their products. Instead of shipping by express and using ice they are now able to send their goods in freight cars, most of which are cooled mechanically, at carlot rates. Also, they trim off the non-edible portions, which in the case of haddock amounts to 60 or 65 per cent of the weight, thereby cutting transportation costs.

Whale Industry Booms.

The whale industry is a particularly glaring illustration of the manner in which fish have invaded the domain of live stock. Originally used principally for making soap and lubricants, whale oil, due to improvements in refining processes, is now widely used throughout Europe in the production of margarine and lard substitutes.

This use has not spread to America, but its adoption abroad has affected our exports of animal fats. And even in this country whale oil is displacing other fats in the production of soaps and lubricants. Imports of whale oil in 1930 were 9,995,088 gallons, against 7,270,000 the year before.

World production of whale oil last year was 400 per cent of the 1924 supply. Norway leads the world in this industry, having produced about 65 per cent of the supply in late years.

CLEARANCE SALES BUILD UP RETAIL BUSINESS VOLUME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 7.—Business in retail and wholesale lines the last week managed to hold its own and despite a continuance of seasonal summer quiet, a feeling of cheerfulness was noticeable, Bradstreets reported today.

Although no noteworthy upturns are as yet apparent, lively interest throughout the various trades is concentrated on prospects of what the coming season will develop, and the encouraging optimism that marked the previous week has not lost its force, the report said.

A fairly good volume of retail trade by many stores was obtained through clearance "sales," and demand for seasonal lines was maintained in several cities by unusually hot weather. Wholesaling has shown a better tone from the previous week, the report said, and there is evidence of unusual effort to increase business. Retailers everywhere are disposing of their seasoned stock by price reductions.

Dunn's review reports. "Preparations for fall was the major element of activity in both wholesale and retail trades during the week. No expectations seem to be entertained for immediate or large gains in distribution, but there are indications that a forward movement of some proportions is anticipated. While retail sales volume is mainly lower, except for some light weight wearing apparel and belated vacation requisites, this was to be expected following the practical completion of summer buying and the pause that generally precedes the commencement of covering fall requirements.

"Demand for the new styles of women's millinery has started, with retailers in some of the smaller cities ordering briskly."

U. S. to Test Recapture Law; Refuses to Pay Railroad

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A new test of the railroad excess profits recapture law was begun today, with the government declining to pay the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad sums due for transportation services.

Comptroller General McCarl notified the line that all money due it from the government would be withheld until the total equals the sum which the interstate commerce commission has ordered the railroad to pay into the treasury.

The next step of the carrier was uncertain today, but it was thought likely the case, like that of the St. Louis and O'Fallon, would finally be carried to the Supreme court.

The interstate commerce commission on April 7 ordered the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, a bridge line between Washington and Richmond, to pay into the railroad revolving fund held by the United States treasury, $696,705.

This was done under the provision of the 1920 transportation act which was framed to entitle the government to half of what a railroad earns in excess of a "fair return." The law fixed a "fair return" at 5½ to 6 per cent and the commisison in making rates has held the percentage should be 5¾.

Fund for Needy Roads.

Sums so paid to the government are deposited in a revolving fund from which it was intended that loans be made to needy railroads. No such loans have yet been made, however, as the government's final right to the money has never been established.

The interstate commerce commission, convinced it cannot carry out the terms of the law, has recommended that congress repeal the fair return and recapture clauses.

Prior to the April 7 order the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac had paid under protest $194,991. The excess profits of the road for the years 1920 to 1923 inclusive were fixed by the commission at $1,783,392. The final date for settlement by the road was today.

The case was the second final recapture order issued by the commission. In it efforts were made to correct methods of estimating the value of the railroad's property which were held improper by the supreme court in the O'Fallon case.

Several score of tentative recapture findings have been issued but all are subject to review by the commission before becoming final.

Leaves First Move to U. S.

The St. Louis and O'Fallon railroad, when a final recapture order was issued, went into the United States district court in an effort to avoid payment. The Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac, however, left the first move to the government.

Without any precedent on which to act, the commission directed Chairman Ezra Brainerd to ask Comptroller General McCarl what could be done. McCarl answered by notifying the Richmond offices of the railroad that the government would withhold all pay due the line from the government for hauling mail, freight, and passengers.

The excess income of the Pere Marquette railroad for the years 1920 through 1925 today was tentatively fixed by the interstate commerce commission at $1,641,025. Of this sum $820,512 is held to be due the government under the law permitting it to recapture one-half of all earnings in excess of 5¾ per cent. Today's decision, however, is subject to protest, argument, and review before it becomes final.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 7—Only about 700,000 shares were traded in on the New York Stock exchange today, but a somewhat improved tone was apparent in most sections of the list. Pivotal industrials and specialties which have been among the most popular trading mediums met with sufficient in the way of support buying to sustain them against such sporadic selling as developed from time to time, and most of them finished with moderate gains in place of the minus signs they have had to carry regularly for the last week or so.

United States Steel common bettered its rating by more than a point, Case Threshing Machine forged ahead 1⅛, and such redoubtables as Consolidated Gas, New York Central, American Can, Radio corporation, General Electric, Johns-Manville, and Montgomery Ward were all able to display symbols of progress when the gong rang on their goings on.

About the only feature of interest to the whole dreary session was the early weakness in the railroad shares, due, of course, to investment disinclination in the face of uncertainties regarding trade and settlement of the rate application. New York Central, New Haven, and other representative issues of the group yielded to new low levels for the bear movement on losses of from 2 to 4 points or more before any sign of support in their behalf was forthcoming.

Canadian Pacific at Low.

Canadian Pacific, on the basis of the old shares, sold at its lowest price in thirty years. Several others of the group chalked up new lows for the post-war depression.

There were reports that some of the selling in this quarter was coming from foreign sources, but quarters usually well informed on developments of that nature dismissed such rumors as unfounded.

Here and there throughout the list of second and third grade issues were evidences of better buying. Whether this represented real accumulation or merely pool acquisitions could not be ascertained. Houston Oil, General Foods, Goodyear, and several others of that category were among the beneficiaries. Bucyrus Erie rose nearly 2 points, a price appreciation of more than 25 per cent and an unusual occurrence in this sort of market.

American Telephone found the pressure lifted at last and recovered nearly a point of the losses it has been sustaining from day to day this week since Wall street began to speculate on the probabilities of the corporation's dividend. Other utilities were inclined to sag. Trading volume in the group was light and price movements of little consequence on the whole.

The chemicals were irregular and the oils dormant.

Motor Shares Dull.

Motor shares merely kept up appearances. General Motors held steady around yesterday's levels and Auburn managed to recover a point or so of yesterday's 7 point loss, but there the activity of the group just about ended.

Safeway Stores perked up in the early trading on its better 1930 earnings report, but enough selling developed toward the last to virtually wipe out the initial gain.

Both the common and preferred of Radio corporation were higher on the corporation's unexpected good earnings report for the first six months of the year.

As usual the market got little help from the news by and large. Weekend trade summaries reported business about holding its own, with midsummer dullness still the rule in most directions.

OUTLINES PLAN FOR HANDLING '31 CANADIAN WHEAT

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Four statements stood out today in Premier Bennett's announcement on the handling of the 1931 wheat crop. They were:

An initial payment of 35 cents a bushel to wheat growers who enter a voluntary pool; the operation as "private" concerns of the 1,600 odd country and terminal elevators owned by the three prairie wheat pools; government action looking toward the orderly marketing of the 1931 crop, and a definite assurance that "panic conditions" will not be permitted to control prices this year.

Mr. Bennett's declaration followed upon the conferences which have been in progress this week between the government and representatives from western Canada.

J. T. Brownlee, premier of Alberta, Howard McConnell, provincial treasurer of Saskatchewan, and John I. MacFarland, general manager of the Central Selling agency, Winnipeg, were the delegates with whom the prime minister and his colleagues threshed out the arrangements for the marketing of the crop.

World's Supply of Coffee Increases by 266,158 Bags

The world's visible supply of coffee, excluding interior stocks in Brazil, showed an increase of 266,158 bags during July to 6,989,952 bags as of Aug. 1, compared with 5,377,915 bags on the corresponding date of 1930, the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange reports.

CANE GROWERS IN CUBA ASK U. S. FIRM FOR RELIEF

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 7.—Sugar cane growers of the Camaguey division after a meeting here announced it had been agreed to ask the Cuban Cane Products company, an American organization, to adjust the growers' obligations downward in proportion to the price of sugar.

A statement said the company had not been able to advance funds for cultivation of this year's crop of cane, and the adjustment downward was proposed so the growers might obtain private financing.

The statement said promises made by Gerald Smith, vice president of the company and his representative in Cuba, had not materialized, and the condition of the growers was desperate, since 5,000 members of the association owed more than $12,000,000. Another meeting will be held in Camaguey Aug. 16, it was announced.

Copper Sales Still Small; Buyers Hold Out for 7½c

Purchasing of copper remains small both in the domestic and export markets with buyers unwilling to pay more than 7⅛ cents a pound for domestic delivery. Producers are out of the market, holding their metal at 8 cents, but their subsidiaries are selling fabricated products on the basis of 7⅝ cent copper. Custom smelters, in the main, are quoting 7⅜ cents a pound, but a moderate tonnage continues to be available at 7⅛ cents, delivered.

STERLING, OTHER CURRENCIES ARE OFF IN NEW YORK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 7.—The foreign exchange market here was extremely weak today, with sterling breaking badly and declines in all the other important European and South American currencies.

Two immediate explanations were offered. The first was that it was a sympathetic movement with the foreign exchange market in London.

A second explanation, and one which had many followers, was that France has been a heavy buyer of sterling in this market for several days and suddenly discontinued her purchases with the result that there was a large drop in the demand this morning.

The only fact upon which there is general agreement is that over night there was a sudden drying up of demand in this market.

Sterling opened at 4.84 1-16 for cables and 4.84 15-16 for checks. The price at which gold normally moves from London to New York is 4.84 13-16. After the break, therefore, there was only a margin of ⅛ before it would become profitable to ship metal to this country.

Francs were also off 3-16 to .0391⅛, bringing the currency ¼ below par. All other European currencies were down, but because of the intense interest in the English situation at the present, the other declines received comparatively little attention.

National Dairy Co. Head Corrects Income Report

National Dairy Products corporation and subsidiaries had no drop in surplus for the first half of 1931, Thomas H. McInnerney, president, said yesterday, referring to the corporation's earnings statement issued in New York Friday by the Associated Press.

The New York statement reported a "consolidated surplus" of $10,552,826 for the first half of 1931, as compared with a "consolidated surplus" of $12,947,211 for the same period of 1930. These figures, Mr. McInnerney said, should have been reported as consolidated earnings available for common dividends. Reports reaching him, he said, indicated that the New York statement had been incorrectly construed to mean that the corporation had dipped into its big surplus account to finance 1931 operations.

City Ice and Fuel.

Will you please give me a report on City Ice and Fuel company? When are preferred dividends paid?—A. C. W.

City Ice and Fuel company carries on a business established in 1894. Through subsidiaries it operates 145 ice manufacturing plants in 26 states in the United States and Canada. A large portion of its revenues is derived from the icing of refrigerator cars. The sale of coal is also an important item. It has one plant which manufactures and assembles refrigeration machinery.

Both sales and net income increased steadily from 1925 through 1930. Sales for 1930 were $30,621,942, against $27,-875,429 in 1929. Sales for 1925 were $14,164,772.

Net income for 1930 was $6,611,905, which was 5.11 times dividend requirements on 199,252 shares of 6½ per cent preferred [par $100] and equal to $4.65 per share on 1,178,000 no par common shares. For 1929 net income was $6,056,673, which was 7.17 times dividend requirements on 130,000 shares of preferred and equal to $4.69 per share on 1,120,770 no par common shares. Net income for 1925 was $2,-590,211.

Increases in sales and net income have been due partly to acquisitions. That the introduction of economies has also been a contributing factor is indicated by the increase in ratio of net to gross earnings from 13 per cent in 1923 to 22 per cent in 1930.

Net profit was $2,052,631, or $1.19 per common share, against $2,150,756, or $1.41 per common share on the same number of shares for the first half of 1930.

President Suhr ascribed this decrease to a mild winter which reduced coal sales and a cool spring which decreased the sales of ice. He stated that net earnings for June, 1931, were $92,439 greater than earnings for June, 1930, and that the heavy volume of business had continued into July, 1931.

At the close of 1930 current assets were $8,093,648, and current liabilities were $2,922,317. Cash and marketable securities were $1,596,804. Working capital was $5,171,331, against $5,116,638 the year before. Bonded debt totaled $8,474,480.

The common dividends have been $2.60 per year since 1929. Stock dividends totaling 3 per cent were paid in 1930. Preferred dividends are payable quarterly June 1, etc., to stock of record May 15, etc.

GRAIN PITS ADOPT STOP, LOOK, AND LISTEN POLICY

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A belief that the wheat market had declined to a level where a "stop, look and listen," policy was advisable on the part of the world's trade found numerous advocates on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. The theory that economic pressure will result in a rapid readjustment between supply and demand and ultimately result in advancing prices materially above the prevailing figures gained many converts, and some of the leading operators and commission houses who have been talking lower prices for many months deserted that side of the market.

Fred J. Uhlmann of the Uhlmann Grain company, regarded as one of the best posted men in the wheat trade, who has been talking lower prices for a number of months in a long summary of the world's situation, expressed the belief that taking a long look ahead he felt that it was time to get off the bear side of the market.

While claiming that no one could foretell the immediate swings, and there is no telling when the market will advance, the price of May wheat at current levels may look very cheap next year he says, as it is not likely that we will go through another period of such great depression. He feels the chances are for an improvement in general business next year.

Expect Acreage Cut.

Readjustment in the world's supply and demand position in wheat is expected to be brought about by a material contraction in the acreage for the 1932 crop. Clement, Curtis & Co., in a special review of the market made the point that the market today represents the maximum pressure of every bearish influence that can be brought into play. J. S. Bache & Co. have been suggesting the purchase of wheat on scale orders as an investment for several days.

The change in sentiment which has occurred of late was reflected in the action of the wheat market, and the latter was also helped to some extent by reports of frost in the Peace river area in Canada. This section has been regarded as having the best outlook in the prairie provinces, and while it was not known as yet whether any damage had occurred or not, the trade both in American markets and at Winnipeg, expressed considerable apprehension.

China Heavy Buyer.

There has been a tremendous demand for North American wheat at P ic coast ports of late from China, which is regarded as trying to replace grain lost in the record breaking floods now prevailing. As near as could ; determined sales there of late have aggregated 4,750,000 bu, including 2,000,000 bu Manitobas. American and Canadian millers were heavy buyers of No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern spring wheat at Winnipeg, as were exporters with the result that stocks of the choice grain are now reported as small.

At no time were wheat futures lower than the finish of the previous day, and the close was about the top, with net gains of 2¼@2⅝c, recovering as much ground in one day as had been lost in the previous 4 days. While a liberal percentage of the buying was regarded by some operators as short covering, sentiment was more favorable to the buying side than for many weeks, although a change in the European situation was claimed to be necessary to maintain bulges. September closed at 50¼ to 50⅝c; December, 53⅞@54c, and May 58⅝@59c. Winnipeg closed 2¾@2¾c higher with October at 55¾c, while Liverpool was ⅛@⅝d lower, October being 53⅝c.

Albania After Corn.

American exporters were asked to offer around 80,000 bu yellow corn to the Albanian government yesterday in a cable received by the Chicago Board of Trade.

Strength in wheat combined with local and commission house buying lifted corn futures rather sharply after an early dip that carried December off ⅛c to 40¼c, a new low for the season, and the close was 1¼@1⅝c higher, with September, 52c; December, 41⅞@41¾c, and May, 45⅝@46¼c. Shipping sales aggregated 60,000 bu. Crops reports from the west were again decidedly mixed.

Oats were bought by cash interests and by the local element in sympathy with the strength in other grains and finished ⅛@⅜c higher, September closing at 22¾c; December, 24⅛@24¾c, and May, 26⅜@26⅝c. Rye advanced ⅞@1⅜c with wheat, the September closing at 34¾c; December, 40¼c, and May, 42⅛c.

EGG FUTURES ADVANCE

Short covering and new buying entered the egg futures market on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, carrying the price up ⅝c at the close. November butter likewise received improved support, advancing ⅝c. Potatoes were steady and about unchanged. While storage news in eggs was less favorable than last year, there being 2,600 cases less out, the outward movement was slightly heavier than expected. Also receipts were lighter and the cool market higher, facts which induced the support. Butter news was bullish, receipts being light and a heavy outward movement being reported by the four markets. There was a slight checking influence to the buying in the reports of rain and cooler weather in production states but the market held firm to the close. Sales: Butter, 1,708,800 lbs; eggs, 660,000 doz; potatoes, 920,000 lbs. Prices follow:

Receipts at Chicago today — Cattle, 500; hogs, 5,000; sheep, 500.

Packers want strictly good and choice steers and fat light weight hogs. They have been paying good prices for them all week, but less desirable grades—grass cattle and heavy hogs—have been neglected. Consequently the price trend has been down. This was especially evident on Friday's market.

In the case of sheep and lambs, Friday's market strengthened a little, but the strength noted in prices was largely confined to the light weights. Other grades were not particularly changed. Continued hot weather in most of the large consuming sections of the country kept orders of cattle, hogs, and sheep rather light, and local killers were regulated more or less by the dressed meat market in Chicago. Reports from the dressed trade were not particularly bearish, although salesmen reported that the market on pork was slow and weak except on light weight loins. They were wanted, and consequently light weight butcher hogs found best outlet.

Most Active Sale.

Trading carcasses of beef also met active sale. In fact all of the better grades of beef were strong. Likewise better grades of cattle were stronger. Grassy kinds and common grades of all bovine stock, however, changed in sympathy with the slump at corresponding grades of beef.

Poor quality in the lamb market was responsible for a good share of the week's break. Many thin lambs and sheep from dry sections of the west have been offered and strictly good and choice kinds have been scarce.

Cattle Mostly Grassers.

As the summer season progresses, the supply of strictly good and choice corn fed cattle are becoming scarcer, and an increasing proportion of grass cattle are being offered on the market. This naturally creates two markets. The fat steer market has been active and strong to higher all week, but the grass steer market has been slow and lower. In other words, the price range between best and common grades has widened.

Tarrings advanced to $9.40 during the week, that being the highest paid since early in May. Common grass steers declined to around $5.00, although this native grassers of inferior beef quality have sold as low as $4.50 and $4.00. The general average for the week showed little change due to the two way trend in prices.

In fat cattle were on sale Friday but there was hardly a definite market established. A few good steers and yearlings sold at firm prices, but the bulk of offerings consisted of fair quality grass steers and butcher stock. Demand for them, of course, was extremely limited and most transactions were made on a bargain basis, or at the lowest levels of the week.

Hog Prices Decline.

Friday's hog market failed to hold up as it did during the early part of the week. Demand was limited and values started out on a 10c to 15c lower basis, and developed into a 40c to 50c lower market before the close. Most of the desirable light weight butchers, however, found outlet during the early rounds, selling to city packers and eastern order buyers. The bulk of the crop was left for big packers, who were bearish.

The day's highest price was $8.00, or 50c below Thursday's crop. The average price showed fully 25c decline at mid. Some of the heavy butchers late in the day were fully 50c lower than the previous session. Packing sows were on a $4.35 to $5.75 basis mostly.

Receipts of hogs Friday were estimated at 14,000 head, compared with 31,871 the previous Friday. For the five days of the week, 88,100 hogs were offered, compared with 91,493 for the first five days last week, and 104,685 for the corresponding five days last year.

Best Lambs $7.85.

Best fat lambs sold up to $7.55 Friday, that price being 10c above Thursday's top. The supply of sheep and lambs Friday was rather light and city butchers and eastern order buyers picked up most of the good and choice grades at $7.50 to $7.85. Less desirable grades ranged downward from $7.00, with common "throwouts" going at $4.00@5.00.

The market suffered rather sharp declines during the week. Best lambs were 25@50c lower, but common grades of lambs showed as much as $1.50 decline for the week. Compared with a week ago, fat sheep were fully 50c lower. Best ewes early in the week sold at $3.50 and at the close $2 was top.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw remained quiet today, and with no sales reported, the price was unchanged at 3.50c for spots duty paid.

Trading in futures was on a restricted scale, reflecting dullness of the spot market. Sales for the day amounted to only 5,250 tons. Final prices showed net advances of 1 to 2 points. Prices follow:

Withdrawals of refined improved somewhat in anticipation of the week-end holidays. Otherwise there was no new feature, with new business still restricted to moderate offerings of second hands at 4.60@4.65c, and refiners holding unchanged at 4.75c.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—(AP)—COFFEE—Futures were generally lower today under liquidation and European selling which may have been influenced by lower cost and freight offers, accompanied by reports of lower freight rates from Brazil.
